

Annual Report 2009–2010

Right to Information and Information Privacy

Foreword by the Premier

The Queensland Right to Information Reforms have positioned Queensland as the most open and transparent government in Australia. The Right to Information Act 2009 and the Information Privacy Act 2009 are key planks of the reforms that give people a right of access to information held by the government unless, on balance, it is contrary to the public interest to give the access.

As recommended in the report by the Freedom of Information Independent Review Panel in June 2008, I retained responsibility for the development of the new legislation and for the first year of its implementation.

One of my responsibilities is to provide Parliament with the first report on the operation of the Right to Information Act 2009 and the Information Privacy Act 2009.

This report gives an overview of right to information and information privacy activities across both state and local government in Queensland and includes details of the matters prescribed under the Right to Information Regulation 2009 and the Information Privacy Regulation 2009 in relation to access and amendment applications. The reporting period is 1 July 2009 - 30 June 2010.

Shortly after the new legislation commenced on 1 July 2009, I issued a Statement of Right to Information Principles for the Queensland Public Service that set out the government's expectations for the implementation of the reforms (see Appendix A). Consistent with these principles and the requirements of the Right to Information Act, this report also highlights the efforts by Queensland public sector agencies in proactively releasing information through publication schemes, disclosure logs and administrative access schemes.

I am pleased to present the Right to Information and Information Privacy Annual Report 2009-10 to Parliament.

Overview

In September 2007, the Premier commissioned an independent panel, led by Dr David Solomon AM, to review Queensland's Freedom of Information (FOI) laws. The subsequent report by the FOI Independent Review Panel (the Panel Report) contained 141 recommendations that provided the government with a clear plan for reform directed at greater openness and accountability in government. In its response to the Panel Report, the government supported 139 of the 141 recommendations either in full or in part.

A key element of the reforms involved the passage of the Right to Information Act 2009 (RTI Act) and the Information Privacy Act 2009 (IP Act). This new legislation substantively commenced on 1 July 2009 and repealed the Freedom of Information Act 1992.

Under the RTI Act, the public has a statutory right to access information held by government unless the information is exempt from release, or if released would, on balance, be contrary to the public interest. The RTI Act also contains a reduced number of exemptions, requiring agencies to place a greater focus on questions of the public interest when deciding if information should be released.

The IP Act is designed to work in parallel with the RTI Act and provides a statutory right to apply to access and amend personal information. The IP Act also codifies what was the existing administrative privacy regime under the repealed Information Standards 42 and 42A by setting out the Information Privacy Principles to which all agencies must adhere, except for Queensland Health, which is subject to the National Privacy Principles.

Governance

As part of the RTI reforms, a governance framework was established to recognise the key roles in information policy in the Queensland public sector. This framework included:

- setting out the roles and functions of the Information Commissioner, the Privacy Commissioner and the Right to Information Commissioner under the RTI and IP Acts to champion right to information and privacy issues in Queensland
- establishing the Department of the Premier and Cabinet as lead agency for RTI and privacy issues for the first year of the operation of the RTI and IP Acts to assist the Premier in administering the legislation and lead the RTI reforms across the Queensland public sector
- the Queensland Government Chief Information Officer leading the whole-of-government Information Management Strategy which included releasing the Queensland Government Strategic Information Management Framework and incorporating the key principles of the reforms in the Towards Q2 through ICT Strategy
- work by the Public Service Commission to incorporate obligations about information management in senior executive performance agreements and induction programs and promote and foster the organisational change required for the implementation of the reforms in the public service
- the Queensland State Archivist leading the improvement of awareness and compliance with record keeping and records management requirements across government.

Queensland State Archives' Seminar Series

In 2009-10 there was an overwhelming response to Queensland State Archives' Recordkeeping Seminar Series. The seminars formed part of a training program rolled out to hundreds of public sector employees across the state.

With the introduction of the RTI Act and the IP Act, effective recordkeeping has become an imperative in the workplace, prompting demands for more specialised training.

The Seminar Series was an opportunity for public sector employees to learn about recordkeeping and ensure they were up to speed with their agency's obligations.

The Seminar Series complemented Queensland State Archives' Recordkeeping Awareness Program, 'Queensland records – they all count'. Eye-catching imagery, like the world record barramundi caught in the Atherton Tablelands and the world's biggest lamington ever made, have been making their way across the state and drawing attention to the Awareness Program. By capturing and managing public records, public sector employees are safeguarding and contributing to the State's rich corporate and social heritage.

From 1 July 2010 the Attorney-General and Minister for Industrial Relations assumed responsibility for administering the RTI and IP Acts. The Department of Justice and Attorney-General now undertakes the lead agency role for whole-of-government Information Policy in Queensland.

Implementing the 'push model'

Consistent with the FOI Independent Review Panel's recommendations, the RTI and IP Acts emphasise that Ministers and agencies should implement a 'push model' when dealing with government information where the need to formally apply for documents from a Minister or an agency should only be as a last resort.

Ministers and agencies made significant progress in the 2009/10 reporting period in the implementation of the 'push model' which included incorporating three key elements:

1. Publication schemes – Ministers and agencies were required to proactively publish information that was considered to be significant to the community on the agency website in compliance with the Ministerial Guidelines – Operation of publication schemes and disclosure logs
2. Disclosure logs – Ministers and agencies were also required to publish information that had already been released to an applicant in response to an RTI Act application on an agency website in compliance with the Ministerial Guidelines – Operation of publication schemes and disclosure logs
3. Administrative access schemes – agencies also developed administrative access schemes to facilitate access to government information for the community without the need for a formal application under the RTI Act.

Whole-of-government initiatives in relation to implementing the 'push model' included:

- The regular release of the summaries of the activities and decisions of State Cabinet.

These summaries enable the community to keep track of the matters discussed at Cabinet that have significant implications for the state, communities, businesses and individuals.

- The publication of the Ministerial Charter of Goals which outlines the government's election commitments and other significant priorities that each Minister is responsible for delivering. The Premier viewed the release of these letters as an important step in encouraging the community to hold the government to account.
- The publication of each government department's Gifts and Benefits Register. Any gift or benefit that has a retail value of more than $150 must be recorded in the register and is published as part of a department's publication scheme. This contributes to enhanced transparency and reinforces the obligation on public servants to carry out their duties impartially and with integrity.

Examples of administrative access schemes developed by agencies included:

- The Department of Community Safety implemented an Administrative Access Scheme for the Queensland Fire and Rescue Service (QFRS). The benefits of the scheme include quicker outcomes and greater satisfaction for users of QFRS services and lower costs for applicants and QFRS. Under the scheme QFRS releases the following information:
 - Operational reports relating to motor vehicle incidents, fire reports and fire investigation reports

- Prosecutions and compliance activities
- Community safety activities
- Policy and procedure documents
- Statistics regarding QFRS service delivery.
- The Department of Education and Training (DET) adopted a preferred method of public access which was outside the formal RTI and IP channels. For example, the process of administrative access to school records was set out in the department's policy IFM-PR-005: Access to Records Held in Schools.
- Queensland Health has an administrative access scheme entitled the Health Information: Disclosure and Access Policy (HIDAP). During 2009/2010, Queensland Health processed in excess of 17,000 applications under the HIDAP scheme.

Reporting requirements

Under section 185 of the RTI Act and section 194 of the IP Act, the Premier is required to prepare an annual report about the operation of the RTI and IP Acts and table it in Parliament.

Pursuant to section 194(3) of the IP Act, the Premier has prepared one report for both RTI Act and IP Act matters.

The report includes details of the matters prescribed under section 8 of the Right to Information Regulation 2009 (RTI Regulation) and section 6 of the Information Privacy Regulation 2009 (IP Regulation) for the 2009/10 financial year (see Appendix B).

Ministers and agencies have provided information to the Department of the Premier and Cabinet for inclusion in the report, based on the legislative requirements.

Summary of data

The detailed data obtained from Ministers and agencies is set out in Appendix 1 - 14 of this report and includes the information required under:

- subsections 8(1)(a) to (g), 8(1)(j) and 8(2) of the RTI Regulation; and
- subsections 6(a) to (g) and 6(j) of the IP Regulation.

In relation to subsection 8(1)(h) of the RTI Regulation and subsection 6(h) of the IP Regulation, Ministers and agencies have advised that there has been no disciplinary action instigated against an officer arising from the administration of the Acts.

In relation to subsection 8(1)(i) of the RTI Regulation and subsection 6(i) of the IP Regulation, Ministers and agencies have advised that there were no proceedings brought for an offence against section 175(1) or (3) of the RTI Act or section 184(1) or (3) of the IP Act.

The total number of RTI and IP Act applications received by Ministers and agencies in 2009/10 is set out in Table 1 by portfolio.

As shown in Table 2, which sets out the total number of applications received by Ministers and agencies in the last ten years, there has been a small reduction in the number of applications as compared to 2008/09.

Table 3 sets out the percentage of pages released in full or part by Ministers and agencies in response to access and amendment applications over the last ten years. The data received shows that the percentage of pages released for 2009/10 is similar to the figures over the previous five years. These percentages are based on a comparison of the total number of pages released with the total number of pages considered when assessing applications.

Table 4 sets out the number of internal review applications received.

Table 5 sets out the amount of fees and charges on a portfolio basis.

Table 6 sets out the information provided by agencies in relation to the efforts undertaken in the 2009-10 reporting period to further the objects of the RTI and IP Acts (as required under subsection 8(1)(k) of the RTI Regulation and subsection 6(k) of the IP Regulation).

Appendix A

Statement of Right to Information Principles For the Queensland Public Service

Information is the lifeblood of democracy. To reach its full potential, a State like Queensland needs citizens who are informed and a government that is open and responsive.

My Government firmly believes that making more information available to the community contributes to informed and useful debate on issues. The free flow of information enables the public to genuinely engage with government in the policy development processes, as well as going some way towards helping the public to better understand how government works.

The Right to Information reforms are about a better way for a modern Queensland public sector to do business and to get the best results for Queensland.

At the heart of these reforms will be a public service that conducts itself in the most open and transparent way possible, because that openness and transparency are fundamental to good government.

The processes of government should operate on a presumption of disclosure, with a clear regard for the public interest in accessing government information. The Queensland public service should act promptly and in a spirit of cooperation to carry out their work based on this presumption.

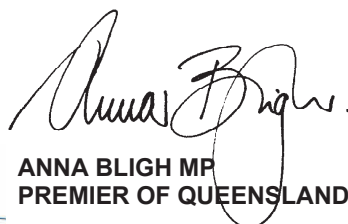

Government information must be valued as a public resource that contributes to an open and participatory democracy and improves government decision-making.

It is the Queensland Government's expectation that the Queensland public service recognises and respects that Government is the custodian of information that belongs to the community, and will:

- Maximise the public's access to government information by administratively releasing information where ever possible, so that recourse to the Right to Information Act 2009 and Information Privacy Act 2009 is a matter of last resort.
- Recognise, respect and maintain the community's trust in government to appropriately and securely collect, store and use their personal information.
- Act to process requests for information rapidly and fairly, rendering all possible assistance to the community in responding to their requests for information.
- Continually improve systems, processes and skills to maximise access to government information and the protection of personal information.
- Use innovative ways to ensure information is available to all sectors of the community.

These reforms are a significant step forward in public administration in Queensland. I thank you for your assistance in the implementation of the new legislation.

ANNA BLIGH MP
PREMIER OF QUEENSLAND
