Questions on Notice

Deputy Premier and Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

1. I refer to page 44 of the Service Delivery Statement for the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning where it mentions that the Government is yet to decide the future of the remaining South Bank Corporation assets. Will the Deputy Premier advise the likely timing of a decision being made and whether this will involve the sale of land or assets with the total value of assets in the SDS estimated at $697.7 million?

2. I refer to footnote 8 at page 15 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning and note that the survey is based on only three responses. Will the Deputy Premier advise (a) how many industry organisations dealt with the Major Projects Group, (b) whether three respondents is an adequate sample size and (c) if more than three survey responses will be used to measure industry satisfaction in future years?

3. I refer to page 14 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning where it details a measure of stakeholder satisfaction with Queensland's planning system. Will the Deputy Premier advise how many stakeholders participated in this survey?

4. I refer to the capital deferrals listed at page 18 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning. Will the Minister advise of the reasons for each of these capital deferrals listed on this page and the revised date of acquisition/completion for each item?

5. I refer to page 2 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development Infrastructure and Planning where it mentions the department's focus on "facilitating and delivering coordinated and complex projects". Will the Deputy Premier list all new applications received for 'coordinated project' status or, as previously described, 'a project of State significance', since 26 March 2012?

6. I refer to page 30 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development Infrastructure and Planning where it sets out the strategic direction of Economic Development Queensland including to "address market gaps" and "accelerate land supply". Will the Deputy Premier list any new land releases or housing estate developments being undertaken by Economic Development Queensland that were not already underway or initiated under either the former Property Services Group or the Urban Land Development Authority since March 2012?

7. I refer to footnote 57 at page 28 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning. Can the Deputy Premier advise why City North Infrastructure's budget has been transferred to Treasury and Trade?

Questions on Notice

Deputy Premier and Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

8. I refer to the new service standard at page 13 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning entitled "Value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation". Will the Deputy Premier advise how this service standard differs from the previous standard in the 2012-13 Service Delivery Statement entitled "Estimated value of additional capital attracted to Queensland as a result of the department's investment and business development assistance"?

9. I refer to page 10 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning and the department's function to "assist the development of coal seam gas/liquefied natural gas and major resource projects". Will the Deputy Premier advise how an allocation of $2.5 million will be spent towards best practice regulation for the coal seam gas industry including use of external consultancies and/ or internal staff?

10. The minerals deposit in the North West and mid-west could easily yield an increased economic benefit for Queensland if more modern and efficient infrastructure was provided to support investment in the same way other great mining regions in the state are. The North West Minerals Province contributes $15 billion p/a to the economy, mostly by transport along an antiquated Mount Isa-Townsville rail line that is currently working beyond capacity. Why is the State Government grossly underfunding maintenance and development of this rail line given the forecast increase of usage by mines for 2013-14.

11. Can you please explain how the various areas of the Department of State Development, Infrastructure & Planning contribute to the goal of growing the Queensland economy?

12. What are the next steps for the Strategic Assessment of the Great Barrier Reef?

13. Can you please explain some of the components of the figure on page 13 of the SDS relating to the 'value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation'?

14. The SDS notes the establishment of the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority, how will the $10.9 million capital program for the Gold Coast Commonwealth Games Village be disbursed by the authority?

15. The SDS notes the establishment of the Government Land and Asset Management group, what sort of transactions will this group be undertaking and how will these benefit the state?

16. The SDS highlights the establishment of Economic Development Queensland, how will EDQ attribute economic benefit to major projects across the State?

Questions on Notice

Deputy Premier and Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

17. The SDS (on page 14) proposes a target 16.2% increase in the average percentage of stakeholder satisfaction with Queensland's simplified planning system. What planning reform measures will be implemented to achieve this?

18. The SDS (on page 14) proposes a performance target of a 10% improvement in time taken for referral agency responses and State assessment manager decisions. How will this 10% improvement be achieved?

19. The SDS (on page 11) states the red tape reduction commitment will continue through a range of initiatives, including reviewing referral triggers. What opportunities have been identified for further refinement of referral triggers?

20. The SDS (on page 11) states that the new planning framework will, amongst other things, deliver cultural and attitudinal change. What steps are being taken to achieve this?

No. 1

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to page 44 of the Service Delivery Statement for the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning where it mentions that the Government is yet to decide the future of the remaining South Bank Corporation assets. Will the Deputy Premier advise the likely timing of a decision being made and whether this will involve the sale of land or assets with the total value of assets in the SDS estimated at $697.7 at $697.7 million

ANSWER:

- The government is currently considering the future of the Corporation and its remaining assets, and working through identified business strategy options. These strategy options include the potential transfer of the Corporation's assets, their retention and their redistribution within government. In undertaking an assessment of the available options, government is looking to ensure any final outcome minimises any cost to taxpayers and reduces the ongoing impact on the State's financial position.

- No decision has been made by government as yet on the future of the remaining South Bank Corporation assets; however a decision is expected to be made before the end of 2013.

No. 2

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:
I refer to footnote 8 at page 15 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning and note that the survey is based on only three responses. Will the Deputy Premier advise (a) how many industry organisations dealt with the Major Projects Group, (b) whether three respondents is an adequate sample size and (c) if more than three survey responses will be used to measure industry satisfaction in future years?

ANSWER:

a) Over 60 industry organisations dealt with the Development Facilitation Services unit, formerly the Major Projects Group, Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning.

b) The survey was sent to 10 organisations that were assisted by the Development Facilitation Services unit. Despite the efforts by the department, only three organisations responded.

   This survey coincided with the decision to cease operations of the Development Facilitation Services unit, which has now transitioned into the single State Assessment and Referral Agency.

c) The response rate was lower than expected and following this Major Projects Office in consultation with the Corporate Planning and Reporting Unit planned a retargeting of the survey and a review of the survey recipient list for 2013-14.

   In line with the whole-of-government planning and reporting cycle this is scheduled to occur in January/February 2014, in order to conduct the survey in March/April 2014 and determine 2013-14 performance by the end of April 2014.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 3

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to page 14 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning where it details a measure of stakeholder satisfaction with Queensland's planning system. Will the Deputy Premier advise how many stakeholders participated in this survey?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government's six month action plan for January to June 2013 included a commitment to hold the first State Planning Forum. This commitment was met on 27 March 2013 when the inaugural Queensland Planning Forum was held.

There were 57 attendees at the forum, including 45 representatives from peak bodies, councils and the development industry, with the other 12 being representatives from a range of state government agencies. The non-government representation canvassed development, planning, housing, building, environmental, legal, commerce, agriculture, resources, tourism, local government and consultancy sectors. The survey was sent after the forum to the 45 attendees from the non-government bodies, councils and the development industry, and a high response rate at 60 per cent (27 responses) was achieved.

These issues have not been surveyed before, and the results will set benchmarks to measure stakeholder satisfaction in relation to further planning reforms.

Stakeholders will be surveyed on an annual basis, with the next survey being undertaken after the annual Planning Forum currently scheduled for March 2014. In addition to the discussions and ideas generated at the forum, surveying stakeholders each year will enable the government to monitor and evaluate the progress of its reforms as they are delivered.

No.4

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to the capital deferrals listed at page 18 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning. Will the Minister advise the reasons for each of these capital deferrals listed on this page and the revised date of acquisition/completion for each item?

ANSWER:

The capital budget statement notes on page 18 of the Service Delivery Statement refer to funding for seven projects in 2012-13. No projects have been delayed, with all projects (except the Materials Transport and Services Corridor and Gladstone Targinie Project, which is ongoing) having had the acquisition process completed or discontinued, with compensation still to be finalised for some properties.

Under the provisions of the Acquisition of Land Act 1967, the Coordinator-General is obligated to pay compensation for the taking of land which has been gazetted (or where notices have been issued and then discontinued). The finalisation of the compensation process is dependent on the time taken for interest holders to submit claims for compensation, the proper assessment of these claims in accordance with the statutory provisions and final agreement with the claimant. The finalisation of compensation has no impact on construction and operation of the project.

1. Callide to Gladstone LNG Land Corridor (Callide Infrastructure Corridor)

- Compulsory acquisition of land in the Callide Infrastructure Corridor is completed with compensation being finalised. The compensation process for this project is expected to be completed in the second quarter of 2016. The finalisation of compensation has no impact on the construction or operation of the project.

2. Gold Coast Showground Relocation

- The land acquisition is complete and payment of an advance against the compensation has been made. The finalisation of the compensation payment is dependent on a proper assessment of the claim within the statutory provisions. Final agreement with the claimant is expected in second quarter of 2015.

3. Materials Transport and Services Corridor in the Gladstone State Development Area

- Negotiations are continuing for the purchase of the parcels of land required for the project. Changes to tenure within the corridor have occurred and need to be finalised prior to the purchase of the land. The $19.5 million budget for this initiative is expected to be spent in the 2013-14 financial year.

4. Stanwell to Gladstone Infrastructure Corridor

- The compulsory acquisition of easements in the Stanwell to Gladstone Infrastructure Corridor has been completed and compensation is being finalised. The expected completion date for compensation is the second quarter of 2015.

5. Surat Basin Infrastructure Corridor Project

- The taking of land for the Surat Basin Railway project located within the Surat Basin Infrastructure Corridor State Development Area has been discontinued. The Surat Basin Joint Venture advised the government in December 2012 that due to global market conditions affecting the coal industry and delays in other key coal chain projects, the timeframes for the Surat Basin Rail project would be delayed. As a result, acquisition did not proceed.

6. Targinie Precinct (Gladstone State Development Area – Targinie Precinct)

- Acquisition of land within the Gladstone State Development Area – Targinie Precinct is ongoing. Negotiated acquisitions and compensation claims are being finalised. Finalisation of the compensation process is dependent on the time taken for interest holders to submit claims for compensation, and the time needed to reach final agreement with the claimant.
- The expected completion date for finalising compensation on this project is the second quarter of 2017.

7. Townsville Eastern Port Access Corridor

- The compulsory acquisition of land in the Townsville Eastern Port Access Corridor has been completed and compensation is being finalised.
- The expected completion date for compensation on this project is the end of 2015.

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to page 2 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development Infrastructure and Planning where it mentions the department's focus on "facilitating and delivering coordinated and complex projects". Will the Deputy Premier list all new applications received for 'coordinated project' status or, as previously described, 'a project of State significance', since 26 March 2012?

ANSWER:

Applications received for declaration as 'coordinated project' (note that prior to 21 December 2012, 'coordinated projects' were called 'significant projects'):

Date of application	Project Name	Proponent
28.03.12	Galilee Infrastructure Corridor	East West Line Parks Limited
27.04.12	Yarwun Coal Terminal Project	Tenement to Terminal Limited
03.09.12	Cairns Shipping Development Project	Far North Queensland Ports Corporation Ltd (trading as Ports North)
21.09.12	Port of Gladstone Gatcombe and Golding Cutting Channel Duplication Project	Gladstone Ports Corporation Limited
27.09.12	Pisolite Hills Project	Cape Alumina Limited
12.10.12	Gold Coast Ocean Terminal Kirra	Leda Holding Pty Ltd
05.11.12	Santos GLNG Gas Field Development Project	Santos GLNG
20.12.12	Clyde Park Coal Project	Clyde Park Coal Pty Ltd

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 6

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:
I refer to page 30 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning where it sets out the strategic direction of Economic Development Queensland including to "address market gaps" and "accelerate land supply". Will the Deputy Premier list any new land releases or housing estate developments being undertaken by Economic Development Queensland that were not already underway or initiated under either the former Property Services Group or the Urban Land Development Authority since March 2012?

ANSWER:

The proclamation of the Economic Development Act 2012 in February this year enabled the creation of Economic Development Queensland and the declaration of new Priority Development Areas (PDAs). Economic Development Queensland is undertaking a range of residential, urban renewal and industrial development projects across Queensland.

The Parklands Priority Development Area, declared on 1 February 2013, creates an effective planning framework for the delivery of the Commonwealth Games Village and also provides opportunities for development of commercial, office and residential development to link in with the new Gold Coast University Hospital and Griffith University.

Economic Development Queensland will be the landowner at Parklands from 1 October 2013 and will facilitate development of the Games Village.

It will undertake demolition of the Parklands site and deliver early and enabling works, including bulk earthworks and the main trunk roads and infrastructure. This work will be progressed in advance of the main village development, which will be undertaken by a third party developer.

Economic Development Queensland is managing the selection process for this developer. This will accelerate the delivery process, which could not be achieved as quickly without the involvement of Economic Development Queensland.

In the Redlands, two more Priority Development Areas were declared in June 2013 at Toondah Harbour and Weinam Creek, creating opportunities to bring forward marine-related development and improvements to public infrastructure.

The Blackwater East Priority Development Area was also declared in the Central Highlands Regional Council area, where up to 130 hectares of land will become available, mainly for residential development.

In August 2012, I announced $15 million in additional funds to accelerate residential projects in the towns of Moranbah and Blackwater to make a positive impact on land supply and affordability.

Those funds allowed for an additional 146 lots in those areas to be progressively released to market by 31 March 2013. This has led to a reduction in market prices, which is assisting to normalise land prices in the region.

Additional opportunities to address market gaps and accelerate land supply in regional and resource towns are being investigated in close collaboration with the Government Land and Asset Management Group, also within my Department.

Other Priority Development Areas are being investigated, with further declarations expected this year that will provide significant economic development opportunities.

There have been 1062 land lots released across residential projects since I have been the responsible Minister. Each of these releases address market gaps by providing a diversity of lot sizes, housing configurations and price points not previously available in their respective markets.

Economic Development Queensland's residential development division has settled 317 lots for a total revenue of $52.4 million in the five-month period from 1 February 2013 to 30 June 2013. In the 12 months of the financial year 2011-12, the former ULDA settled 254 lots for a total revenue of $48.1 million.

The industrial development program is a long-term, end-to-end process to plan, secure and develop land supply as part of Queensland's strategic land objectives. Since March 2013, the program has focused on the rationalisation of the industrial land portfolio through sales in core estates and the sale of non-core land.

Within the Lytton Industrial Estate, a 7.5 hectare lot is being taken to market, representing a significant economic development opportunity within the Australia TradeCoast precinct.

Since the creation of Economic Development Queensland on 1 February this year, the industrial team has generated $10.5 million in sales revenue (to 30 June 2013) through the settlement of 11 inventory lots. In addition, a building was sold for $8.1 million.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 7

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to footnote 57 at page 28 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning. Can the Deputy Premier advise why City North Infrastructure's budget has been transferred to Treasury and Trade?

ANSWER:

City North Infrastructure Pty Ltd (CNI) is the State owned Special Purpose Vehicle established in December 2006 to manage the delivery of Airport Link and related road infrastructure projects.

Along with its project management role, CNI is also responsible for delivering a $13.1 million program of urban mitigation works across the project corridor as a condition of the Environmental Impact Statement approval for the Airport Link project.

However, in anticipation of the Airport Link construction work being completed in early 2013, a decision was taken that CNI would cease as an operating entity from 30 April 2013. Accordingly, Queensland Treasury Holdings Pty Ltd, which holds the State's investment in CNI, retains ownership of CNI and its residual assets, throughout a subsequent liquidation process.

As CNI no longer requires its approved budgets for outward years, the program management funding for CNI and the balance of capital funding for the urban mitigation works contained in the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning's forward estimates, has been transferred to Queensland Treasury and Trade. This will fund the on-going urban mitigation works and the costs associated with CNI's wind-up.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 8

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

I refer to the new service standard at page 13 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning entitled "Value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation". Will the Deputy Premier advise how this service standard differs from the previous standard in the 2012-13 Service Delivery Statement entitled "Estimated value of additional capital attracted to Queensland as a result of the department's investment and business development assistance"?

ANSWER:

The 'value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation' is comprised of $200 million attributed to the Industry Capability Network (ICN) and $30 million attributed to a performance target of the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning (DSDIP).

The $200 million ICN component of the measure identifies the impact of the ICN's procurement and business matching services in the planning and construction phases of major resource and infrastructure projects. The ICN is commissioned by the department to deliver these services.

DSDIP provides facilitation services to businesses which are considering entry or expansion in Queensland and require government assistance to make the project happen in a timely and efficient manner. These businesses are important to increasing jobs, diversifying regional economies and increasing productivity through greater innovation.

DSDIP complements the work of Trade and Invest Queensland which is the lead promotion point for the state internationally. The practical facilitation support that DSDIP provides reduces the time, cost and risk to companies considering expansion in Queensland. In many cases this support is instrumental to the decision of companies to expand their operations in the State.

The service standard in the 2012–13 Service Delivery Statement entitled "Estimated value of additional capital attracted to Queensland as a result of the department's investment and business development assistance" only includes the DSDIP component and does not include the ICN component which was not reflected in the 2012–13 Service Delivery Statement.

The figures take into account prevailing market conditions and the need to deliver better value for money from industry assistance as set out in the Commission of Audit.

No. 9

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:
I refer to page 10 of the Service Delivery Statement for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning and the department's function to "assist the development of coal seam gas/liquefied natural gas and major resource projects". Will the Deputy Premier advise how an allocation of $2.5 million will be spent towards best practice regulation for the coal seam gas industry including use of external consultancies and/or internal staff?

ANSWER:

- The $2.5 million is appropriation funding from Queensland Treasury and Trade for the operation of the GasFields Commission.
- The Gasfields Commission Act 2013 (Qld) came into effect on 1 July 2013, providing the GasFields Commission, as an independent statutory body, with official powers to manage and improve the co-existence of landowners, regional communities and the onshore gas industry in Queensland.
- The Commission is achieving significant outcomes for communities affected by the growth of the onshore gas industry. The Commission independently evaluates policy, regulation and industry practices, makes recommendations to the Queensland Government, and promotes co-existence with the agricultural industry.
- Funding for the GasFields Commission provides the capacity to employ staff directly or to commission independent expert advice to support their work.

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 10

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The minerals deposit in the North West and mid-west could easily yield an increased economic benefit for Queensland if more modern and efficient infrastructure was provided to support investment in the same way other great mining regions in the state are. The North West Minerals Province contributes $15 billion p/a to the economy, mostly by transport along an antiquated Mount Isa-Townsville rail line that is currently working beyond capacity. Why is the State Government grossly underfunding maintenance and development of this rail line given the forecast increase of usage by mines for 2013-14?

ANSWER:

The Mount Isa Line extends for 1030kms from Stuart (near Townsville) to Mount Isa and includes the Phosphate Hill branch. The Mount Isa Line is the critical link from the North West Minerals Province to the Port of Townsville and serves as a vital lifeline for bulk industries throughout the region including minerals, fertiliser, nickel, sugar and other containerised freight. The Mount Isa Line also services a number of communities along the line through passenger transport, the conveyance of general freight and as a major employer along the corridor.

In 2011/12 the Mount Isa Line supported the region's mineral production worth $6.22 billion[1] by carrying approximately 5.8 million tonnes of product.

Queensland Rail, as the monopoly owner of the Mount Isa Line, is regulated by the Queensland Competition Authority and has an obligation under legislation to provide open and transparent access to rail operators requiring access to the Mount Isa Line.

As a commercial, contestable line, capacity enhancement investments must provide Queensland Rail, the asset owner, with a suitable commercial return. Since 2009, Queensland Rail has undertaken the following significant network enhancements:

- completion of an additional 64 km of concrete resleepering
- the installation of equipment to ultrasonically measure the track geometry and profile of the rail
- the installation of weather monitoring stations, Hot Box and Acoustic Bearing Detectors, Overload Detectors
- Level Crossing upgrades to improve safety.

These measures have resulted in a dramatic decline in derailments caused by infrastructure failure.

[1] Figure provided by the Rent and Statistics Unit, Department of Natural Resources and Mines: 19 June 2013.

These progressive improvements and the continuous maintenance of the rail corridor satisfy current and forecast tonnage growth demand. In the last 10 years Queensland Rail has not rejected a request for capacity on the Mount Isa Line.

In 2012, Queensland Rail released its Mount Isa Line Rail Infrastructure Master Plan 2012 (Masterplan). The Masterplan presents options to enhance the capacity of the system to cater for base, medium and high tonnage growth scenarios.

Queensland Rail continues to work with customers on innovative supply chain solutions that are designed to utilise the latent capacity on the network, unlock the full potential of the regions, and ensure that the supply chain performs to its maximum potential.

To be effective, any investment by Queensland Rail on the Mount Isa Line must also be complemented by investment in the above rail assets of the rail operators on the line, Aurizon and Pacific National.

The North Queensland Resource Supply Chain Steering Committee was set up with the aim of improving coordination amongst infrastructure owners, operators and current and future users of the North Queensland resource supply chain and to develop:

- effective recommendations for implementing operational and capacity improvements on this important supply chain
- a comprehensive demand model to enable the future prioritisation of infrastructure projects on the corridor.

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 11

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

Can you please explain how the various areas of the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning contribute to the goal of growing the Queensland economy?

ANSWER:

The Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning (DSDIP) was created to drive the economic development of Queensland and champion the interests of business and industry.

As highlighted in DSDIP's Strategic Plan, the department's purpose is clear – to deliver major infrastructure, economic development, and planning services to communities across Queensland. Within Government we champion the interests of business and industry. The department works to facilitate growth, provide certainty and cut red tape, to ensure Queensland is competitive for business start-up, investment and expansion.

The Department comprises eight business groups and 19 regional locations, which together are working hard to grow the Queensland economy. These business groups and their functions are summarised below.

The Coordinator-General has wide-ranging powers under the State Development and Public Works Organisation Act 1971 to plan, deliver and coordinate large-scale infrastructure projects, while ensuring their environmental impacts are properly managed.

Economic Development Queensland (EDQ) is the department's commercialised business unit with the ability to plan and enable development outcomes. It assists residential, urban and industrial development with its primary focus to facilitate economic development throughout Queensland. Significant economic activity is generated by the market as a result of EDQ enabling development. For example, at Northshore Hamilton in Brisbane, there are currently six major developers active.

State Development Group develops economic and infrastructure policies and plans, and facilitates industry development, regional development and investment projects.

The Major Projects Office manages, delivers and facilitates high priority commercial projects. This area focuses on significant, complex and high profile projects and regions with a state development benefit for Queensland.

Planning Group is working to reform the state's planning framework to empower local communities and facilitate economic growth.

The Government Land and Asset Management Group is delivering enhanced economic and social outcomes from government property assets by providing a centralised function for identifying, assessing and managing the state's real property-based assets to their fullest potential.

The Regional Services Group provides a network of regionally-based offices that support the delivery of the department's services across regional Queensland. It also provides services and support on behalf of other government departments engaged in programs that support economic development.

Finally, the department's Strategy and Governance Group provides high-quality business, corporate and policy services to the Department. This area consists of the Corporate Services branch, Internal Audit branch, Strategic Policy branch, Communication Services branch and the Legal team.

The Department celebrated its first year of operation on 3 April 2013 and has already made significant progress towards achieving its purpose. Already DSDIP has:

- restored the power and authority of the Coordinator-General to properly coordinate and facilitate major projects important to the state's development, resulting in a threefold increase in the rate of decision-making on his predecessor
- introduced the Planning for Prosperity temporary state planning policy
- delivered a 10-year strategy to upgrade the Bruce Highway
- progressed the statutory regional planning process for the Darling Downs, Central Queensland and Cape York
- implemented the blueprint to reinvigorate Mary Valley by facilitating economic development and returning government land to private ownership
- established the Royalties for the Regions program and delivered Round 1 which will see $49 million invested to benefit communities in resource regions
- introduced the Economic Development Act 2012 and established Economic Development Queensland
- reformed planning assessment and approval processes in the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 and began the State Assessment and Referral Agency (SARA) project
- released proposed draft of state interests for single State Planning Policy for targeted consultation
- identified state planning powers to be transferred to local government to empower local communities
- established Infrastructure Queensland to advise on long-term infrastructure planning, prioritisation and ongoing management and maintenance
- set out a clear policy direction for the development of the Galilee Basin, that will provide certainty for landholders and the resources industry
- established the Resources Cabinet Committee to cut red tape and regulatory costs impacting on the resources sector

- played a central role in the Fitzroy Basin Mine Water release program to address the legacy mine water impacts on the productivity of Central Queensland mines, whilst also protecting water quality for the public and other users
- established the GasFields Commission to strengthen co-existence between landholders, regional communities and the onshore gas industry
- partnered with the Queensland Resources Council and Australian Petroleum Production and Exploration Association (APPEA) to introduce a new industry-led code of practice introducing a streamlined, self-regulated approach to local industry participation in private sector projects
- established Defence Industries Queensland and appointed a new Defence Industries Envoy.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 12

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:
What are the next steps for the Strategic Assessment of the Great Barrier Reef?

ANSWER:
The Queensland Government agreed to undertake a strategic assessment of the Great Barrier Reef Coastal Zone under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999. The terms of reference governing the Strategic Assessment were endorsed in August 2012 following a public consultation process.

Since that time work on the Strategic Assessment has been progressing. The Strategic Assessment will describe and assess the way in which Queensland's coastal management, planning and development processes identifies and protects matters of national environmental significance, including the Outstanding Universal Value of the Great Barrier Reef coastal zone.

Two draft reports are currently being prepared. The first is a program report which describes in detail the Queensland management, planning and development framework, also known as the Program. The second is a strategic assessment report which assesses the potential impacts on matters of national environmental significance from the implementation of the Program.

Once these two draft reports are completed they will be provided to the Australian Government who will submit them to an independent review which is required by the terms of reference. Following the consideration of independent review outcomes, the draft reports will be provided to the Australian Government Environment Minister who will release the reports for public consultation.

Under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 the minimum length for public consultation is 28 days, but this may be extended at the discretion of the Australian Government Environment Minister. Given the complex nature and length of the draft reports I would support an extended consultation period of at least six weeks to ensure that the community and stakeholders have an adequate opportunity to comment.

It is expected that the draft reports will be released for public consultation later this year. The draft reports will inform the 38th session of the World Heritage Committee in 2014.

Following completion of public consultation and consideration of all comments received the reports will be finalised and provided to the Australian Government Environment Minister for consideration.

The final Strategic Assessment Reports will be provided to the World Heritage Committee for discussion at its 39th session in 2015.

QUESTION:
Can you please explain some of the components of the figure on page 13 of the SDS relating to the 'value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation'?

ANSWER:
As outlined in Question 8, the components of the figure of $230 million on page 13 of the Service Delivery Statement (SDS) relating to the 'value of private sector capital investment leveraged through industry facilitation', are $200 million attributed to benefits arising from the work of the Industry Capability Network (ICN) and $30 million attributed to projects supported by the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning (DSDIP).

The ICN component of the measure identifies the successes of the ICN's facilitated procurement and business matching services in the planning and construction phases of major resource and infrastructure projects. The ICN is funded by the department to deliver these services.

DSDIP provides facilitation services to businesses considering expansions in Queensland. These businesses are important to increasing jobs, diversifying regional economies and increasing productivity growth. DSDIP facilitation support reduces time, cost and risk to companies considering expansion in Queensland, and in many cases is instrumental to the decision of companies to expand their operations in the State.

QUESTION:
The SDS notes the establishment of the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority. How will the $10.9 million capital program for the Gold Coast Commonwealth Games Village be disbursed by the authority?

ANSWER:
The $10.9 million referred to are funds that were allocated to Major Projects Office for relocation of the Gold Coast Showgrounds from Parklands to Carrara. These funds will be directed towards compensating the previous owners of the Carrara site; however the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority has no role in this.

No. 15

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The SDS notes the establishment of the Government Land and Asset Management group, what sort of transactions will this group be undertaking and how will these benefit the state?

ANSWER:
The Government has recognised the need for stronger central management of land and property – for a more strategic approach to optimising land and property use and refocussing under-utilised assets.

The rationalisation of assets as recommended by the Queensland Commission of Audit (recommendation 46) was consistent with current initiatives and policy direction, including the establishment of the Government Land and Asset Management group within the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning in February 2013.

Established with a direct reporting relationship to the Economic Development Board, and therefore a direct line to myself as the Minister for Economic Development Queensland, Government Land and Asset Management will play a key role in progressing this agenda.

Government Land and Asset Management's key objective is to ensure that real property-based assets are identified, assessed and managed to their full potential.

The group is currently undertaking a Property Asset Utilisation Review which is investigating a whole-of-government approach to management of the state's property portfolio. With input from government agencies and the private sector, the review will provide its initial recommendations to the Economic Development Board in November 2013.

The group will also undertake the delivery of significant and complex transactions on behalf of the Queensland Government. Many of these transactions will flow from the initial November release of the review.

Additionally, the Government Land and Asset Management group will manage a land supply program which will invite not-for-profit organisations to express interest in submitting proposals for selected parcels of surplus government-owned land. The use of land in this way will achieve social and economic outcomes, such as affordable housing, using means other than unbudgeted state capital.

Government Land and Asset Management has fiscal repair as a key focus and will engage in significant transactions that will result in significant financial returns and economic benefit.

Ultimately Government Land and Asset Management, through its various activities, will promote systemic and cultural change – fixing the system to avoid being in the same position in the future and thinking differently about Government's real property use into the future.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 16

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The SDS highlights the establishment of Economic Development Queensland, how will EDQ attribute economic benefit to major projects across the State?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government established Economic Development Queensland (EDQ) under the Economic Development Act 2012 to facilitate economic development, and development for community purposes in Queensland.

Economic development will be delivered through the continued management of existing Priority Development Areas (PDAs) and industrial estates and the declaration of new PDAs. This activity facilitates the generation of jobs and industry from development activity in a range of residential, urban renewal and industrial projects. As part of this activity, EDQ also extracts value from under-utilised State Government-owned land.

Importantly, as a self-funded business unit, the work of EDQ helps to stimulate economic development through private enterprise. This is being demonstrated through the declaration of a number of Priority Development Areas throughout Queensland.

The first of these was declared on 1 February 2013: the Parklands PDA site for the 2018 Gold Coast Commonwealth Games athletes' village, which EDQ is responsible for delivering. The Commonwealth Games and associated infrastructure will inject an estimated $2 billion into the Gold Coast economy and generate up to 30 000 full-time equivalent jobs.

The longer-term legacy development will form part of the Gold Coast Health and Knowledge Precinct, in proximity to the new Gold Coast University Hospital, Griffith University campus and the Gold Coast Rapid Transit.

Three more PDAs were declared last month (June 2013). Two PDAs were declared in Redlands to address the potential for these sites to provide for marine-related and other development, while also addressing the need for new and upgraded public and community infrastructure. Development schemes will be prepared for Toondah Harbour and Weinam Creek PDAs based on an assessment of market interest, investment attraction, environmental factors and infrastructure capacity. This will provide greater certainty for development and maximise opportunities to improve the amenity and attractiveness of both sites.

Blackwater East PDA was also declared in June 2013 to provide up to 130 additional hectares of land for residential development in response to the resources boom. A development scheme will provide the framework for the release and development of land in this area, providing economic benefits to the region.

Redevelopment of the $5 billion Northshore Hamilton PDA will continue for the next 15 to 20 years, delivering a pipeline of development opportunities and jobs generation for the construction industry. At maturity, Northshore Hamilton will be home to more than 15 000 people and a place of employment for up to 30 000 people. To date, more than 2000 dwellings have been either delivered, are under construction, in market or approved at Northshore.

Other PDAs, which are likely to provide significant economic benefits to Queensland, are being investigated. In addition to the declaration of new PDAs, EDQ facilitates residential development across the State. The acceleration of land releases in Blackwater and Moranbah – announced by me in August 2013 with a commitment of $15 million – has made a positive impact on the availability and affordability of land, helping to normalise land prices in these resource towns.

EDQ's residential developments are contributing economic benefits in regional and resource communities by improving the availability, choice and affordability of housing. Innovative and ecologically sustainable development is showcased to councils and other service providers for industry to adopt in their residential projects, thus providing ongoing savings for home buyers and local governments.

The industrial arm of Economic Development Queensland assists to attract business and industry to Queensland. Dealing directly with the private sector through its sales program, EDQ is able to attribute both investment and job creation to specific development projects.

This facilitation role enables private proponents to negotiate tenure outcomes which provide certainty to their investment decisions. EDQ also plays a key role in the establishment of significant industries within the Abbot Point and Gladstone State Development Areas.

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The SDS (on page 14) proposes a target 16.2% increase in the average percentage of stakeholder satisfaction with Queensland's simplified planning system. What planning reform measures will be implemented to achieve this?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government over the past year has progressed a range of initiatives to deliver on its commitment to reform Queensland's planning and development assessment system.

These reforms support the state's continued growth and prosperity and aim to restore efficiency, consistency and certainty to the planning and development system.

The program of reform aims to streamline assessment and approval processes, reduce red tape and empower local governments to plan for their local communities.

Consultation with industry, local government and state agencies has informed these key reform initiatives. At the Queensland Planning Forum held in March 2013, key industry stakeholders and participants from local government informed government that new ways in planning and development assessment are required, with two thirds of participants outlining their dissatisfaction with the old planning system. It was also clear from these participants that we are on the right track, with participants indicating strong agreement with what this government has achieved and implemented so far.

The government's planning reform agenda will deliver a new, robust focus for long term regional plans; deliver a new single and transparent State Planning Policy providing key guidance to local government and industry on the state's planning interests; establish the new State Assessment and Referral Agency; and develop a new infrastructure planning and charging framework to provide a more equitable and transparent framework for industry and local government.

Although the government's commitment to planning reform is already evident, on 12 June I announced the next logical step in this reform process, an overhaul of the Sustainable Planning Act 2009.

The introduction of new planning legislation into Parliament next year is the next step in reform, which follows on and complements the new approaches to be achieved through the State Assessment and Referral Agency, new regional plans and the single State Planning Policy.

Arrangements for the new legislation will ensure that work already progressing in councils on their new schemes can continue with confidence, and support will be provided to local governments to progress new scheme provisions during the reform process.

The new Act will result in less prescription and more navigable legislation that will save time, cost and effort by all users of the system – particularly developers, councils and the state.

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:
The SDS (on Page 14) proposes a performance target of a 10% improvement in time taken for referral agency responses and State assessment manager decisions. How will this 10% improvement be achieved?

ANSWER:

On the 1 July 2013, the State Assessment and Referral Agency (SARA) commenced with the Chief Executive of the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning becoming the Assessment Manager or referral agency for all development applications where the state has a jurisdiction.

SARA delivers a coordinated, whole-of-government approach to the state's assessment of development applications. Some of the many benefits include a single:

- agency lodgement point for development applications, where the state has a jurisdiction
- coordination and contact point
- final decision maker to ensure no 'unreasonable' requirements are imposed on applicants.

SARA has introduced a number of key elements to enable timeframes to be reduced. These include:

- the State Development Assessment Provisions (SDAP) which sets out the matters of interest to the state for development assessment, which focus the assessment only on matters included in the provisions
- the online system called MyDAS, the online application preparation and lodgement system, cuts down timeframes as information can be provided to the department electronically, removing the need for double handling
- the existing statutory timeframes have not been changed but new operational timeframes have been agreed with the relevant state agencies to improve efficiencies across these agencies
- assessment timeframes under SARA are closely monitored enabling business improvements to be identified and implemented in a timely manner.

The government, through the department will review and monitor the systems and performance of development assessment through this agency to continually improve and ultimately provide the most effective land use planning and development assessment system in Australia.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 19

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The SDS (on page 11) states the red tape reduction commitment will continue through a range of initiatives, including reviewing referral triggers. What opportunities have been identified for further refinement of referral triggers?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government's commitment to streamlining state planning arrangements has:

- reduced the burden of planning and development processes on industry and the community
- increased certainty about the state's interests in planning and development
- clarified state requirements for all levels of government, industry and the community.

Since its introduction in 1997, state agencies have increased their involvement in the assessment of development applications under the Integrated Development Assessment System (IDAS) by 'rolling in' existing state approvals, or by dealing with emerging issues.

Little consideration was given to the impact of the growth of referral triggers on the development assessment system as a whole.

Until recently there were 111 Integrated Development Assessment System triggers in Schedule 7 of the Sustainable Planning Regulation 2009. Many of these triggers were further divided by thresholds giving a total of 431 separate triggers.

Unless the usefulness and relevance of referral triggers is periodically reviewed, regulation does not add value to the system and has the potential to impede timely development approvals.

Some referral triggers are necessary due to the need for technical expertise to assess a particular proposal. But it is often possible to replace referral triggers with greater guidance through planning instruments, or in cases where the trigger is no longer relevant, to remove it.

Over-reliance on referral triggers to address matters of state interest is inefficient for government and industry and does not foster consistency and transparency in development decisions.

The reform of the Queensland planning framework seeks to improve land use planning and development to offer a more streamlined, efficient and effective system.

The Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning has led and coordinated a review of referral triggers with a view to reducing both the number of referral triggers and the number of development applications required to be referred.

The first round of trigger review amendments to the Sustainable Planning Regulation 2009 came into effect on 3 August 2012. These amendments removed advice referrals for conservation, heritage and acid sulphate soils matters, and concurrence referrals for transport and preliminary approval matters. Together, these accounted for about 1500–1700 referrals a year, many of which were for development applications that would not otherwise require referral, leading to substantial savings for industry and other applicants.

The second round of referral reductions, involving further transport and environmental referral triggers, and accounting for about 1000 referrals a year, came into effect progressively during March 2013.

The State Assessment and Referral Agency arrangements have also recently come into effect and create a single point for almost all assessments of development applications by the state. As part of this significant reform a single set of State Development Assessment Provisions has been created.

A single point of assessment and consolidated assessment provisions provide an excellent basis for monitoring and identifying duplicated, unnecessary or redundant referrals and requirements, and are likely to lead to further reductions in the matters referred to the state.

Furthermore a single State Planning Policy is being developed which will give planning guidance to local governments about the state's interests in the development of their planning schemes. "Front loading" the state's interests in the planning system will take further pressure off state involvement in development assessment, leading to further opportunities to reduce referrals in future.

2013 Estimates Question on Notice

No. 20

Deputy Premier, Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

QUESTION:

The SDS (on page 11) states that the new planning framework will, amongst other things, deliver cultural and attitudinal change. What steps are being taken to achieve this?

ANSWER:

On 12 June 2013, the Queensland Government announced the commencement of a review of the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 (SPA). This responds to the current concerns of many stakeholders, including local governments, about the shortcomings of SPA and the effect it is having on the way planning and development is conducted in Queensland.

The government has worked to reduce the burden of red tape and unnecessary regulation for business and industry, and deliver positive change. An overhaul of the state's planning and development assessment legislation is the next logical step in that reform, following on from the changed approaches being achieved through the implementation of the State Assessment and Referral Agency (SARA) and the development of the new State Planning Policy (SPP).

The Queensland Planning Forum held on 27 March 2013 was a key step in the long process of changing behaviours and is being followed by ongoing monthly forums between the department and stakeholders including industry and local government. Forums are a key way to explore new ways of conducting planning and development assessment in the state and are an important focus for change in behaviours. They enable better, more informed understanding of the diverse views of stakeholders and the impacts and implications of current approaches and intended change. They are a necessary step in changing culture.

The introduction of new planning legislation into Parliament next year signals a strong expectation by the State that the way planning and development in this state will change, to better focus on delivering economic outcomes for Queenslanders. It shows that the State is leading change as the new Act continues the new approaches that have already begun under the SARA and SPP initiatives. A new Act that has a clear and focussed purpose, and is stripped back to only what needs to be regulated by the State, is a clear message about doing things differently and is a platform for cultural change.

The new Act, when delivered with education and operational changes and ongoing engagement with stakeholders, is the next key step by the state in catalysing attitudinal change and transforming the state's planning and development assessment system and culture. Changing the way the state works with councils, and supporting them in adopting the new framework, will also be key to this transformation.

To assist in implementing improved planning processes and attitudinal change at the local level, a 'Planning Healthcheck' pilot project has been developed by the department to assist councils gauge how their planning and assessment systems are working, and to ensure that they:

- minimise delays and cost to the applicants
- provide certainty to the to the local community and applicants
- are fair and reasonable
- facilitate innovation.

The project includes a simple toolkit for councils enabling them to measure their internal processes against leading practice and performance indicators to assess the 'health' of their planning system, and identify areas for improvement.

The 'Planning Healthcheck' will not only look at the application by councils of contemporary planning processes and standards, but will also look at attitudinal factors of councils and their staff in implementing them.

Five local governments have agreed to take part in the pilot project, with results expected to be available by the end of August 2013.

Where to from here—Governing for future growth 33

Foreword

The Queensland Government is unashamedly pro-growth. It is only through increased economic growth that we will provide sustained jobs and prosperity for Queenslanders, and address the legacy of debt that we inherited.

While we have taken the tough decisions to repair the state's finances we also understand that economic growth is vital if we are to put the state's books in order.

To deal with the terrible legacy of the previous Labor administration, Queensland must have a decade of economic long term and sustainable growth. Only by increasing the state's economic output will we rebuild the state's finances and provide an improved standard of living for Queenslanders.

That is why the Queensland Government is committed to driving growth of a four pillar economy - through clear leadership, providing greater certainty and cutting costs of doing business. This approach is vital to secure Queensland's future competitiveness and the prosperity of our communities.

Over the last year, the Queensland Government has taken major steps to create the right conditions for business to flourish. We have focused relentlessly on those areas within the government's control – cutting red tape, streamlining planning and major project approvals, cutting the cost of doing business and facilitating economic growth. We have also been determined to do all we can to increase productivity within government. This is essential to improve public services and contribute to the task of fiscal repair.

The increased confidence this approach has brought is reflected in latest economic data where Queensland outperforms the rest of the nation. But we cannot afford to be complacent.

Governing for Growth sets out a renewed focus and determined actions across government to enable growth.

The framework demonstrates a wholesale change in approach. It shows how government can help to create jobs and grow the economy if we provide clear and consistent decision-making, tackle excessive cost and regulatory burdens on business and bring the community on the journey with us. All too often in the past government has been an obstacle not an enabler of economic growth.

Governing for Growth provides a stock take of actions completed and underway. These actions set the foundations for long-term improvements in Queensland's economic performance.

We are determined to ensure that Queensland has the most attractive business environment in Australia. In doing so, we will regain the state's reputation as the number one place to invest.

A great state with great opportunity.

The Honourable Jeff Seeney MP
Deputy Premier and Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

Executive summary

Alongside the task of fiscal repair, the Queensland Commission of Audit set out a case for strong and decisive action to restore the state's record of productivity and economic growth. Our economic strength and prosperity into the future will be built on the reforms we make now, and in the next few years.

Governing for Growth provides a framework for whole-of-government action to support a stronger Queensland economy.

Queensland is a great state with great opportunity.

But how do we enhance our competitiveness in a global market where there is new competition every day? How do we ensure the economy can grow and develop so Government can re-invest to ensure the delivery of the infrastructure and services Queenslanders need?

Many issues are impacting on our economy and business competitiveness, including:

- ongoing global economic uncertainty
- fluctuating commodity prices and alternative sources of supply coming on-stream
- a relatively strong Australian dollar
- skills gaps
- rising labour costs and the costs of inputs
- a tightening fiscal environment at all levels of government.

Often these are market-related or Commonwealth Government issues and well beyond the control of the state government.

But what we are determined to do is to focus on those issues within our control.

So the question is: what can the Queensland Government do to lock in sustainable economic growth?

Governing for Growth focuses on practical actions in those areas where the state government can make a real difference. It is about growing the economy and providing an environment where business and industry can prosper and create wealth.

Governing for Growth provides the basis for the state government to:

- provide leadership and certainty so that business can invest with confidence
- reduce the cost of doing business
- ensure government is efficient and effective
- work with business and industry to communicate to Queenslanders the benefits of economic development.

To achieve this, government will focus its actions on six priority areas:

- simplifying business regulation
- minimising impediments to business growth
- fostering economic growth and resilience
- enabling infrastructure for economic growth
- driving productivity growth in the public sector
- communicating the importance of economic development.

Governing for Growth identifies actions the Queensland Government has already delivered, along with a number of current initiatives to help drive long-term economic growth. Case studies highlight the benefits that the state's economic reforms are bringing to Queensland businesses and communities.

Actions that remove constraints to growth or that actively promote productivity improvements focus on reducing the cost of doing business and regulatory reform across the four pillars of agriculture, resources, construction and tourism, and more broadly:

- boosting economic opportunities and productivity by reforming the way infrastructure is planned, prioritised, funded and used
- encouraging innovation and helping business access new and expanding markets
- seizing regional economic growth opportunities
- working in partnership with local government and business to better communicate the importance of economic development to the state's wellbeing.

The next stage is to develop a more detailed whole-of-government action plan to drive economic growth over the next decade. The action plan will be informed by consultation with industry and the wider community and will support the long-term vision set out through the Queensland Plan.

A key aspect of Governing for Growth is changing the culture across government agencies so economic growth is encouraged and is clearly understood as a Queensland Government priority.

Governing for Growth will ensure all government agencies play a full role in enabling economic growth, and help to restore Queensland as the number one state in the nation to start or grow a business.

Governing for growth—Enabling a stronger Queensland economy

Over the last decade, the state has offered one of the strongest growth rates of all advanced economies. Queensland has a dynamic economy, with world-leading resources in agriculture, mining and energy markets, an internationally recognised science base and talented people and businesses. However, we face increased international competition, significant cost pressures and a challenge to boost productivity to ensure economic growth into the future.

Alongside the case for fiscal repair, the Queensland Commission of Audit urged strong and decisive action to restore economic and productivity growth. Transforming the role of government is necessary to address the major demographic, economic and fiscal challenges faced by our communities and industries.

Faced with these challenges, 'business as usual' is not an option. The state government must change the way it provides services to better meet the needs of Queenslanders and create a more dynamic economy.

Since March 2012, the Queensland Government has undertaken significant work to provide certainty for businesses and investors, reduce costs for industry and create the right conditions for economic growth. There have been major reforms to fiscal settings, planning reforms, cutting red and green tape and reducing timeframes for major project approvals.

But this is just a start.

To seize market opportunities and address the challenges we face requires further action. The state government will progress a systematic approach to identify and develop practical actions to increase the productive capacity of the Queensland economy. Governing for Growth sets out priority areas for economic reform to create the conditions for the private sector to invest, innovate, grow and create new wealth.

It is important to recognise that the private sector is the engine of economic growth. However, government shapes the Queensland economy with its decisions every day – in areas such as planning, regulation, infrastructure and spending. The Queensland Government plays a central role in shaping the conditions for private sector success and addressing the barriers and impediments faced by industry. Clear leadership and stable and certain decision-making are needed if Queensland is to compete for business investment against lower cost destinations.

Governing for Growth sets the foundations for long-term, sustainable economic growth.

Economic and fiscal challenge

The global and Queensland economies have been going through major structural changes. These have been driven by the rapid industrialisation of China, India and other Asian economies, and also as a result of the Global Financial Crisis (GFC) and its aftermath.

Over the past decade, our economy has benefited from higher global demand for our natural resources. This has led to a shift of capital and labour into the mining, exploration, mining services, and construction sectors. We are now experiencing another shift as the economy transitions from investment in major resource sector projects to the production and export phase. Our economy has also absorbed massive shocks from natural disasters in recent years. The total cost of natural disasters since 2010 now stands at nearly $14 billion.

Against this backdrop, the Commission of Audit—and the 2013–14 State Budget—identify several key challenges confronting the Queensland economy. These challenges include the rise of new competitors in the global economy, a high Australian dollar and at home a legacy of expanding regulatory and tax burdens.

The Commission of Audit set out the challenge for Queensland—"to lift its productivity performance to sustain the economic growth which will improve living standards for its citizens."

The Commission of Audit also found that the Queensland economy over the last 25 years has been driven largely by population growth, increased workforce participation and the development of the state's vast mineral resources. We cannot rely on these factors alone to drive its economic growth over the next 25 years and beyond.

The recent economic performance of Queensland and Australia has been marked by a decline in productivity. Notably, Queensland's productivity has fallen further than Australia's and is now lower than it was a decade ago.

Over the four years to 2011–12, Queensland's multi-factor productivity (a comprehensive measure of productivity that takes into account labour and capital inputs) has declined two per cent in average annual terms, while the rest of Australia's remained unchanged.

Based on the scenarios developed for the Commission of Audit, long-term economic projections show that Queensland's per capita economic growth rate over the next 40 years is likely to be significantly lower than it was over the last 25 years. Improved productivity performance is vital if we are to improve living standards and manage the pressures that come with a growing and ageing population.

Without a lift in productivity, a substantial budget deficit is also likely to re-emerge beyond 2015–16, affecting the cost of living and quality of public services. This makes a clear argument for further, sustained policy action.

The government has set out a clear fiscal strategy to tackle the deficit it inherited.

The strategy is guided by four principles:

(i) stabilise then significantly reduce debt

(ii) achieve and maintain a General Government sector fiscal balance by 2014–15

(iii) maintain a competitive tax environment for business; and,

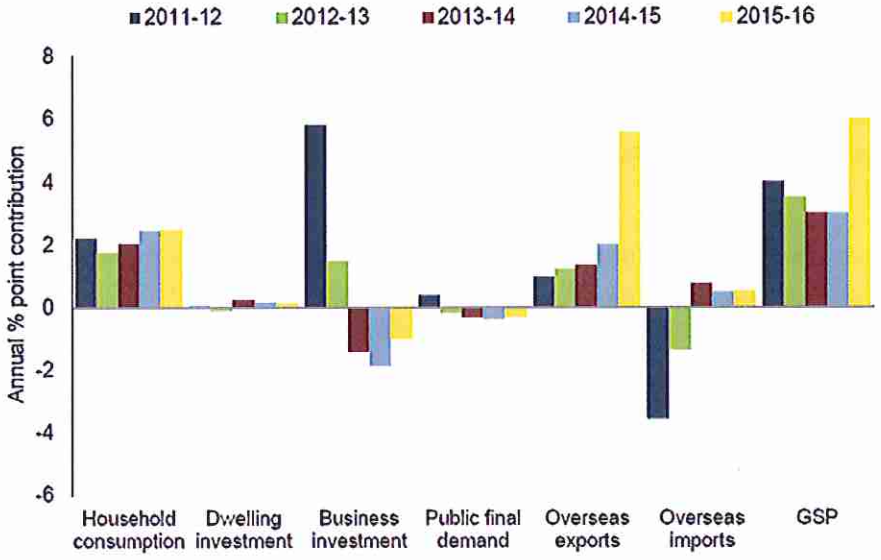

(iv) target full funding of long-term liabilities, such as superannuation in accordance with actuarial advice.

Governing for Growth complements this fiscal strategy. It deals with the growth side of the ledger, setting out a clear framework and actions to support the economy and drive productivity growth.

Queensland economic outlook

The 2013–14 State Budget forecasts gross state product (GSP) growth at 3 per cent per annum for 2013–14 and 2014–15, and 6 per cent for 2015–16 (see Figure 1).

For three years, business investment has been boosted by substantial investment in three liquefied natural gas (LNG) projects. During their construction phase these projects have a combined capital spend exceeding $60 billion. This investment is expected to peak in 2013. With no projects of similar size currently committed, the staged completion of these three mega-projects will see business investment fall each year from 2013–14 to 2015–16.

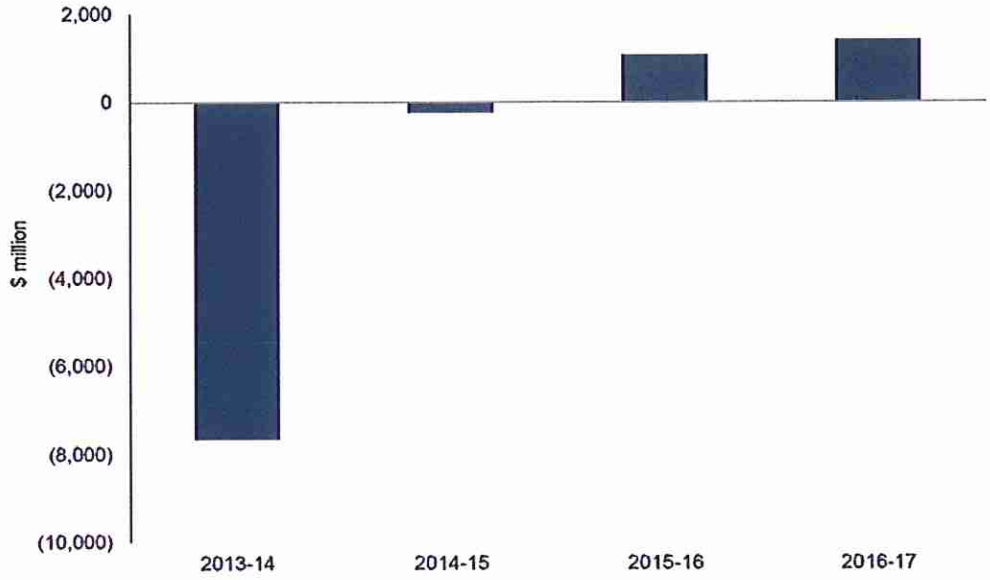

However, this unwinding of the LNG investment masks a forecast improvement in investment conditions outside the resources sector. Household consumption is expected to strengthen over the coming period.

The ramp up in LNG production will drive growth in overseas exports by 23.25 per cent in 2015–16. Combined with the strong domestic sector, this should boost economic growth to six per cent in 2015–16.

The forecast strengthening in the household sector is expected to drive a recovery in employment growth from 2013–14 onwards and a steady improvement in the unemployment rate from six per cent in 2013–14 to 5.5 per cent in 2015–16.

The 2013–14 State Budget continues the task of fiscal repair. It sees debt in the General Government sector rising by $9.4 billion over the forward estimates but, importantly, stabilising in 2015–16. A fiscal deficit of $7.7 billion is budgeted for 2013–14, and a modest $244 million deficit in 2014–15. The projected fiscal position continues to improve over the remainder of the forward estimates, with fiscal surpluses exceeding $1 billion projected in 2015–16 and 2016–17 (see Figure 2).

The government has published A Plan – Better Services for Queenslanders. This accepts the majority of recommendations in the Commission of Audit's final report. Government is committed to improving the quality and quantity of frontline services, restoring the state's fiscal position and crucially, taking action to boost productivity growth.

A framework for government intervention

Through the Queensland Plan process, the government is engaging with the community to develop a shared vision for the state for the next 30 years. This vision will identify local and state-wide priorities and guide future activities of all levels of government, business and the community. The vision for Queensland's economic future is a pivotal part of the Queensland Plan and will guide and shape actions developed under this framework.

Productivity gains will be central to long-term prosperity and sustained jobs growth in Queensland. The Commission of Audit emphasised the urgent need for action and set out the roles that government should play in the economy:

- setting the legal and institutional framework in which the private sector operates (which can be conducive to economic growth or otherwise)
- as an employer and purchaser of goods and services
- through efficient and effective uses of its revenue to build physical and human capital
- to correct for market failures.

While the private sector is the engine of the economy, the Queensland Government will create a positive environment for business growth and, where necessary, deliver catalytic actions to unlock economic opportunities. Governing for Growth provides the framework for how and where government will play these roles.

Many of the key issues confronting Queensland's economy such as global uncertainty, fluctuating commodity prices, a strong Australian dollar, and rising labour and input costs are outside the control of state government. Governing for Growth addresses those factors that the state government can control. First and foremost, it is about leadership - making the case for growth, providing certainty and stability so business can invest with confidence, and reducing burdens on industry.

The government is determined to make it easier to do business in Queensland. This starts with a whole-of-government commitment to support economic growth. Across all agencies, there will be a renewed focus on boosting productivity, reducing costs on business and providing clear and predictable decision-making. Government will actively facilitate major industry projects and provide direct access to key decision-makers.

The Commission of Audit found previous government assistance to industry was often poorly targeted, with limited evidence of economic impact or value for money.

The waste of the previous government resulted in missed opportunities to invest in the infrastructure that would have provided catalytic economic benefits.

The state government will ensure that spending on goods, services and infrastructure delivers greater productivity benefits. This demands that decisions take into account the opportunity to better deliver economic outcomes and promote innovation.

In future, government action to support industry will need to demonstrate that it:

- addresses a clear market or system failure
- is necessary and can make a difference at an industry, regional or economy-wide scale
- will be cost-effective.

Boosting productivity growth will deliver sustained benefits to Queensland communities. While there is no silver bullet for the challenge of productivity growth, the Productivity Commission[1] recommended a policy approach that embraces both the drivers and enablers of business performance. These include policies around human capital, innovation, infrastructure, regulatory restraints, and the business environment.

Priority areas for action

Governing for Growth identifies six priority areas for action to better support economic growth in the state:

- simplifying business regulation
- minimising impediments to business growth
- fostering economic growth and resilience
- enabling infrastructure for economic growth
- driving productivity growth in the public sector
- communicating the importance of economic development.

Simplifying business regulation

Regulation can promote competition, protect consumers and bring a range of economic, social and environmental benefits. However, when poorly designed, it can constrain growth by imposing additional costs on businesses or limiting their capacity to start-up or grow.

Over recent decades, the volume of regulation in Queensland and Australia has grown rapidly. In many cases, regulation has proven ineffective in achieving the desired policy objective. Frequently, the costs imposed outweigh the benefits. The Queensland Government will develop a regulatory environment that provides certainty for businesses and the public and is conducive to business growth and innovation. There will be a systematic approach to remove unnecessary red tape.

Delivered and current actions
Whole of government Regulatory Management System: Delivered actions • Established the independent Office of Best Practice Regulation (OBPR) within the Queensland Competition Authority (QCA) to implement a 20 per cent reduction target in the burden of regulation. Current actions • Implement and achieve the 20 per cent reduction in regulatory burden. • Require Regulatory Impact Statements (RIS) if the proposal is deemed to have a significant impact on business, the community or government. • Provide up to three options to reduce or 'offset' the regulatory burden of any proposal that imposes new regulations or procedures on small businesses.
Green tape reduction Delivered actions • Established the Green tape Reduction project to simplify and improve environmental licensing processes.
Regulatory review: Current actions • Take forward a program of zero-based regulation reviews through the QCA. • Develop actions to implement key findings of the Building and Construction Industry Payments Act 2004 (BCIPA) review. • Develop a new building code to reduce red tape for homeowners and simplify an unnecessarily complex approvals process. The code will remove superfluous layers of regulation and allow a timely and cost effective appeals process. • Bring forward the review of the Strategic Cropping Land (SCL) legislation. • Review the portable long service leave scheme (QLeave) to ensure that workers have adequate entitlements, and that liabilities are appropriately calculated. • Enable conversion of exploration gas wells to water bores where suitable, through the assent of the Land, Water and Other Legislation Amendment Act 2013 on 14 May 2013.

Delivered and current actions

Resources sector:

Delivered actions

- Established the Resources Cabinet Committee to encourage investment and support the competitiveness of the resources sector in Queensland by streamlining approvals and cutting red tape.
- Developed the Coal Seam Gas Engagement and Compliance Plan to achieve a balance between the interests of industry, rural landholders, regional communities and the environment.
- Introduced amendments to the Environmental Protection Regulation 2008 to help proponents ensure their Environmental Management Plans provide the right information about coal seam gas (CSG) water management to prevent delays in granting environmental authorities.
- Reduced red tape for small-scale alluvial mining.

Current actions

- Streamline and reduce by over 50 per cent, legislative complexity through the Modernising Queensland's Resources Legislation program by 2016.
- Undertake the post-implementation review of the Petroleum and Gas Safety and Health Fee to assess its impacts.
- Finalise the comprehensive review of the Queensland Government's approach to regulating the CSG industry.

Environmental management:

Delivered actions

- Amended the vegetation management framework to reduce the regulatory burden on landholders, business and government, while continuing to protect and manage Queensland's native vegetation resources.

Current actions

- Review the Queensland Government Environmental Offsets Policy, which will replace existing issue specific biodiversity offset policies.

Queensland is competing with other states and countries for a limited pool of international investment in new resource and energy projects. The regulatory environment and costs of doing business are major determinants of where this investment occurs. Capital investment in resources exploration and development can often be stalled by excessive red and green tape.

The Queensland Government established the Resources Cabinet Committee to drive regulatory reform and promote investment in resource exploration and production. The work of the committee has already delivered significant reductions in red and green tape that impeded profitability in the resources sector.

Case study: Green Tape Reduction

The Environmental Protection (Greentape Reduction) and Other Legislation Amendment Act 2012 simplified a range of environmental licensing procedures and was the most significant reform in more than a decade. These changes streamlined the application and approval processes under the Environmental Protection Act 1994, and removed licensing requirements for 20 environmentally relevant activities. They also introduced a new category of small scale mining activity that does not require an environmental authority. The reforms do not lower environmental standards but better match the approval requirements with the actual level of environmental risk of particular activities.

These greentape reduction measures came into effect in April 2013 to deliver significant benefits to both government and business. In total, the savings to businesses and government are estimated at $20 million through reducing administrative costs, as well as the removal or lowering of application and annual fees. These reductions mean that businesses can do what they do best, getting on with growing the economy and generating jobs for Queenslanders.

Government regulation imposes both direct and indirect costs on business. Direct costs include the time businesses are required to set aside to attend to regulatory paperwork or apply for permits. They also include the costs of hiring external experts to do regulatory compliance work, and any government fees and charges imposed on businesses. Indirect costs arise where regulations distort business decisions, reduce flexibility or unduly impact on investment spending.

Regulations can be state-wide and apply to all businesses in Queensland, such as building and planning laws, or be specific to industry sectors or government owned corporations that operate in the electricity, water and transport sectors.

Improving the efficiency of regulatory systems can make a big difference to business innovation and growth. Cutting red tape brings a number of productivity benefits by:

- allowing businesses the flexibility they need to make productivity-enhancing changes and investment to their products and services, processes or organisational models and work practices
- helping businesses access new markets and supply chains
- improving the ease of market entry, leading to increased competition, innovation and choice for consumers.

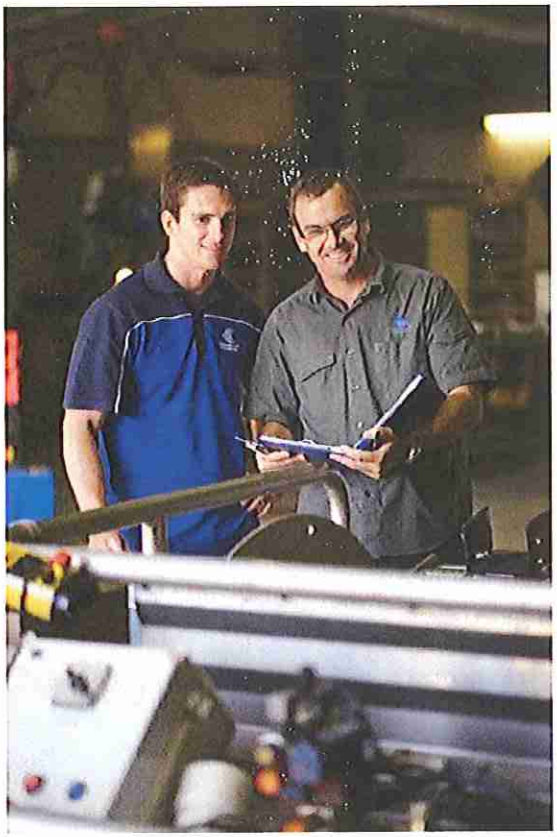

This helps to grow and sustain jobs in Queensland and also brings downward pressure on prices for consumers.

Business surveys suggest that some state regulations – such as those applying to occupational health and safety, workers compensation and building and construction activities[2] - are among the most time consuming for business. The most costly stage of the compliance process is the 'cost of money' incurred while waiting for regulatory decisions to be made. Close to 70 per cent of businesses surveyed for the Australian

[2] Ai Group and Deloitte National CEO Survey 2011: Business Regulation, September 2011.

Industry (Ai) Group and Deloitte National CEO Survey 2011 reported a rise in the direct cost of complying with regulations over the past three years, while approximately 75 per cent expected further increases over the next three years. Business regulation, including its costs, was also highlighted as a potential inhibitor of growth in the 2013 Ai Group National CEO Survey. It was noted as a 'growth blocker' by 20 per cent of miners, 14 per cent of services businesses and nine per cent of manufacturers and construction firms.[3]

The Queensland Government is committed to cutting red tape by 20 per cent and simplifying how business is done in Queensland. Achieving this target will particularly benefit small businesses that are least able to absorb the costs imposed by regulation. More than 300 red tape reduction reforms are in train. Many of these reforms are aimed at streamlining regulatory processes and reducing compliance and reporting requirements, levies and charges for smaller firms.

Minimising impediments to business growth

Businesses today face a range of challenges. Global economic uncertainty, a strong Australian dollar, cautious consumers, red tape burden, skills and labour supply issues, and the increasing costs of doing business all impact on productivity and business growth. Some factors, such as exchange rates and federal taxes, are largely beyond the control or influence of state governments.

The Queensland Government will continue to work in partnership with industry to minimise impediments to business growth. Significant progress has already been made to address impediments identified by businesses and peak bodies. This includes reforms to cut costs and complexity of planning, zoning and development assessments and to streamline major project approvals. Other key areas, including skills and labour, business capability and growth are also being addressed.

Delivered and current actions
Costs of doing business Delivered actions • Lowered payroll tax by increasing exemption threshold from $1 million to $1.1 million and as a result, 90 per cent of Queensland employers are exempted from payroll tax. • Conducted the Central Queensland Water in Mines pilot. Current actions • Implement further reform to payroll tax by 2015. • Expand the Water in Mines pilot scheme catchment wide for the 2013-14 wet season as an interim step towards a market-based mechanism.
Planning, zoning and development assessments Delivered actions • Implemented planning reform including State Planning Policy and State Assessment and Referral Agency to facilitate economic development and improve efficiency through streamlined processes. • Established Economic Development Queensland to facilitate development through land and development areas. • Prepared draft regional plans for Darling Downs and Central Queensland. Current actions • Replace the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 with a new act that is less prescriptive and provides better service development outcomes. • Review the Infrastructure Charges Framework to introduce a more balanced infrastructure charging framework that is equitable, transparent and certain. • Review the South East Queensland Regional Plan to align it with the government's policy and planning reform agenda to better deliver planning to ensure the state's continued growth and prosperity.
Streamlining major project approvals Delivered actions • Reduced the timeframes for major project approvals through the Office of the Coordinator-General to secure and speed up investment projects. Current actions • Streamline the EIS process and develop generic terms of reference.

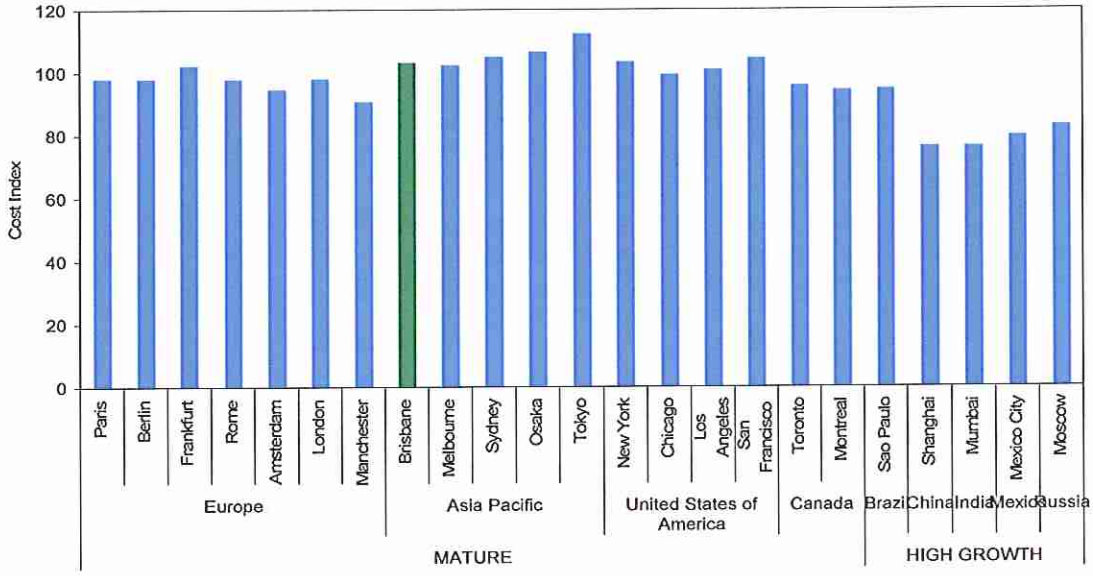

Delivered and current actions
• Develop clear and consistent guidelines for Social Impact Assessment supported by improved data to improve the management of impacts and reduce costs for industry and local government.
Innovation Current actions • Develop the Queensland Science and Innovation Action Plan to ensure the supply of demand driven science and remove impediments to business innovation. • Engage with the most innovative businesses to hear what they need from government to boost innovation.
Skills and labour Delivered actions • Allocated $86 million to the creation of 10 000 additional apprenticeship places over six years. • Refocused Department of Education, Training and Employment regional offices to provide training assistance. Current actions • Government is implementing key recommendations of the Skills and Training Taskforce report to strengthen Queensland's vocational, education and training sector. • Progress skilled and business migration reforms to encourage entrepreneurship, competition and address key skills gaps in the Queensland economy.
Business capability and growth Delivered actions • Developed and released the Small Business Action Plan 2013–15 to help small businesses grow and prosper. Current actions • Continue to implement Mentoring for Growth to facilitate small businesses to capitalise on growth opportunities. • Expand the Business and Industry Portal to provide businesses with greater time and money savings.

Costs of doing business

KPMG produces an annual report that benchmarks the relative costs of doing business in 14 countries in the Americas, Europe, Asia Pacific and high-growth countries. This demonstrates that Australia is a high-cost business location. These costs have increased since 2010, which has seen Australia's ranking drop from three in 2010 to eight in 2012 (out of the nine mature countries). Cost trends included an 11 per cent currency appreciation against the US dollar as well as increases in industrial facility costs and other costs including freight and electricity rates.

Source: KPMG, Competitive Alternatives 2012, Note: Business costs are estimated by KPMG modelling of representative business costs across 19 industries and include 26 individual cost components.

These increases in the cost of doing business have also been seen in the resources sector, a key pillar of the Queensland economy.

Case Study: Planning Reforms

Since coming to office, the government has worked to set a framework and create the conditions for business to grow, invest and create jobs with confidence and certainty. Government has already delivered a number of reforms to restore efficiency, consistency and certainty to the planning and development system, including:

- draft Statutory Regional Plans for the Darling Downs and Central Queensland
- progress on a single State Planning policy, reducing from 14 confusing and contradictory state policy documents to one document, which provides clarity on the state's interests in planning and development
- a review of referral triggers contained in the Sustainable Planning Regulation 2009 which has seen a significant reduction in the number of referral triggers and the number of development applications required to be referred. Two rounds of reductions will account for around 2500 referrals per year.

Feedback from the Government's inaugural Planning Forum in March 2013 indicated overwhelming support for reform of the current Sustainable Planning Act.

The government will pursue fundamental reform of the state's planning system through a once-in-a-generation overhaul of planning laws to boost Queensland's property and construction sectors. New planning legislation will be introduced into Parliament early next year.

The purpose of the new legislation will be to enable development. It will drive a major transformation of the state's planning system and culture from its current approach, which is stifling development.

The principle underpinning this is to simplify the state's land use planning, and development approval regulations and prescriptions. This will greatly assist local governments to better plan for their communities, without the constraints of an overly burdensome and prescriptive approach to their planning schemes

This will benefit the community, councils and industry, and enable the government to get on with developing and creating jobs.

Case study: Major Projects Approvals

Delays in the major project approvals process can impose unnecessary costs on proponents. The process itself may not be achieving its desired regulatory outcome. One of the top priorities of this government is to fast-track the approvals process. As of end of June 2013, the government had made 161 statutory decisions. This contrasts with 55 made in the equivalent 65-week period prior to April 2012 and is a decision rate nearly three times greater than the previous administration.

The Office of the Coordinator-General continues to deliver decisions that will progress significant economic projects. Currently, 29 projects are being assessed with a total capital cost of $69 billion, an estimated 32 000 construction jobs and a projected 23 000 operational jobs. The statutory decisions relate to multi-billion dollar projects at various stages of assessment to ensure that proper account is taken of all potential environmental, economic and social impacts. Assessment times for the stages of the environmental impact statement process have been reduced by 285 business days or by 54 per cent when compared to the four-year historical average of 619 days. The reduced timeframes for assessment bode well for attracting future investment to our state.

A Fast-Tracking Taskforce has been set up in the Office of the Coordinator-General to identify ways to speed up and streamline approvals processes. A 37-point action plan developed in conjunction with industry, and federal and local government has been implemented.

The Queensland Government has provided a detailed submission to the Productivity Commission, which is currently undertaking a study to benchmark Australia's major project development assessment and approvals (DAA) processes against international best practice. The Productivity Commission's draft findings are expected by the end of July 2013 with a final report completed by the end of December 2013.

Ease of doing business

The World Bank's 2013 Ease of Doing Business study ranks Australia favourably (10 out of 185 countries and 7 out of 31 OECD high-income countries) for ease of doing business. This highlights that while we are a relatively high-cost international location, the ease of doing business here makes the nation a favourable international location. The key to encouraging more business activity and fostering a productive business environment is to continue to minimise the impediments to business growth in Queensland.

The Queensland Government will continue to take action to address impediments within its control. In addition, we will advocate to the Australian Government for:

- bilateral arrangements that prevent duplication and unnecessary costs, delays or uncertainty
- micro-economic reforms at the Commonwealth level that will have significant impacts on productivity and the competitiveness of Queensland businesses.

Case study: State Assessment and Referral Agency

On 1 July 2013, the Queensland Government launched the State Assessment and Referral Agency (SARA). SARA establishes the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning (DSDIP) as the single lodgement and assessment point for all development applications where the state has jurisdiction under the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 (SPA).

SARA delivers a coordinated, whole-of-government approach to the state's assessment of development applications, providing a simpler, fairer development assessment system. It will be managed regionally by DSDIP regional centres. This system is unique in Australia and moves Queensland closer to the goal of implementing the best planning system in the nation.

Some of the many benefits of SARA include:

- a single agency lodgement and assessment point for development applications, where the state has a jurisdiction
- a final decision maker to ensure no 'unreasonable' requirements are imposed on applicants.

The outcome will be a more efficient system that cuts costs and time for the applicant.

SARA is supported by MyDAS—a new online system that allows an applicant to prepare and lodge or refer applications to DSDIP. MyDAS will provide:

- online lodgement of development applications and tracking through the Integrated Development Assessment System (IDAS) process
- access to and assistance with preparing IDAS forms
- integration with the SARA online mapping system
- electronic payment of fees.

SARA will contribute to the government's key priority to create the most efficient and effective planning and development assessment system in Australia.

Fostering economic growth and resilience

The last decade has seen unprecedented economic shocks. The prolonged effects of the GFC continue to beset many economies and capital markets. We cannot afford to be complacent and assume the growth levels of the past will continue into the future. Already we are seeing adjustments in key industries such as mining.

Policies need to reflect this challenging environment where international financial volatility, debt crises and geopolitical uncertainties are becoming more prevalent. The severity and recurrence of natural disasters have further impacted on the operations and productivity of key supply chains in Queensland. Against this backdrop, it is crucial to focus on policies that foster economic growth and resilience to build a stronger Queensland economy.

The government has demonstrated its focus on growing Queensland's economy, rebuilding after natural disasters and making communities more resilient for the future. The state is determined to diversify the Queensland economy, its four pillars and their associated supply chains.

Delivered and current actions

Growing a four pillar economy

Delivered actions

- Developed and released Queensland's Agriculture Strategy to double the value of agricultural production by 2040.
- Complete and release the Agricultural Land Audit Report.
- Strengthened the Geology Survey of Queensland's ability to provide information about development potential and exploration to attract investment.
- Developed new policies to enable the development of uranium mining and oil shale industries under clear and robust environmental conditions.
- Responded to the Uranium Mining Implementation Committee's recommended best practice policy framework for developing a uranium mining and export industry in Queensland.
- Established the $15 000 Great Start Grant to drive growth in Queensland's residential construction market.
- Established a construction industry 'go-to' person to act as a conduit between the construction and property industries and government, to assist in resolving industry-wide issues and encourage development.
- Developed the DestinationQ Blueprint 2012–15, which outlines the key actions for government in the tourism industry over the next three years.
- Established the Tourism Investment Attraction Unit to assist in achieving the government's goal of doubling annual overnight visitor expenditure by 2020.
- Established the $8 million Attracting Aviation Investment Fund to secure new aviation business and routes into Queensland.

Current actions

- Implement the actions identified in Queensland's Agriculture Strategy across the four key pathways to growth including resource availability, productivity, markets and production costs.
- Work with industry to develop supply chain productivity in North West and Central Queensland.

Delivered and current actions
• Identify industrial land to support mining, supply chains, freight and logistics routes. • Set up the independent Queensland Building and Construction Commission as the new industry regulator to improve industry governance. • Implement the initiatives identified by DestinationQ Blueprint 2012-15. • Developing a framework to support the sustainable development of the shale gas industry. • Develop a 20 year tourism strategy, in partnership with industry, to help reach the growth target of doubling annual overnight visitor expenditure in Queensland to $30 billion by 2020.
Promoting growth opportunities Delivered actions • Established Defence Industries Queensland to support the growth of the defence sector. • Developed and released the Small Business Action Plan to help capitalise on growth opportunities across Queensland's small businesses and regions. Current actions • Establish Trade and Investment Queensland to facilitate trade and investment and capitalise on growth opportunities in emerging and established export markets. • Prepare and publish a Defence Industries Roadmap to drive growth in the sector. • Work with industry to develop a plan to seize growth opportunities in the food processing and manufacturing sector. • Undertake a Property and Asset Utilisation Review to identify all government land assets, especially surplus land that could be used more productively to support economic growth.
Promoting economic resilience through infrastructure and strong communities Delivered actions • Allocated an initial $40 million to the Betterment Fund to assist local governments recovering from natural disasters. • Established the Royalties for the Regions program and committed $495 million over four years to invest in regional community infrastructure, roads and flood mitigation projects. Current actions • Continue to deliver recovery initiatives to foster economic resilience. • Continue to support community, road and flood mitigation projects through the Royalties for the Regions program.

Growing a four pillar economy

Queensland has a great natural advantage in our export industries. We grow healthy and safe food in a region that is increasingly demanding food security. We supply world class primary products, our research and education industries take knowledge to the world and our manufacturers use Queensland's know-how to deliver products to the world. The Queensland Government is committed to growing the four pillar economy – resources, agriculture, tourism and construction.

The three Queensland LNG plants on Curtis Island are pioneers in converting CSG to LNG for export. The industry has reached a new peak of almost 30 000 workers, with LNG companies injecting more than $20 billion into businesses across the state.

DestinationQ is a new partnership between the Queensland Government and the tourism industry. The main goal of DestinationQ is to make Queensland Australia's number one tourist destination, and in the medium-term, achieve the national target of doubling visitor expenditure by 2020.

Case study: Queensland's Agriculture Strategy

The Queensland Government has released Queensland's agriculture strategy, a strategy to double Queensland's agricultural production by 2040. The aim is to grow agriculture as one of the four pillars of the Queensland economy.

The government's 2040 vision for agriculture is for an efficient, innovative, resilient, and profitable sector, based on four key pathways:

- securing and increasing resource availability
- driving productivity growth across the supply chain
- securing and increasing market access
- minimising the costs of production.

These key pathways are the foundations required for sustainable and ongoing growth of the sector in terms of increasing production and value.

Similarly, the state has a vision to double Queensland's agricultural production by 2040. To achieve this vision, the government has endorsed four key pathways to growth: securing and increasing resource availability; driving productivity growth across the supply chain; securing and increasing market access; and minimising the costs of production.

The government also supports the continued growth of a strong, sustainable and socially responsible property and construction sector in Queensland.

Promoting growth opportunities

Queensland is world famous for its mining resources and expertise, but there is much that remains to be discovered about the geology and mineral potential of the state. In response, the government will provide new funding of $30 million over three years for a range of initiatives to upgrade the Geological Survey of Queensland. The government has also recently announced it will allow uranium mining to recommence and has set out policies for the shale gas and oil shale industries, governed by world's best practice and strict environmental, safety and approval processes.

Alongside the four pillars, the government is promoting new growth opportunities in high-value sectors such as defence, life sciences and engineering services. To provide new impetus to this work government has established Defence Industries Queensland, appointed a Defence Envoy and will shortly launch a new Trade and Investment agency.

There are opportunities arising from a fast-growing middle class in the developing world. Queensland needs to be outwardly proud and promote its achievements and unique characteristics—effectively pushing 'Brand Queensland' to the world. Now, more than ever, it is vital that Queensland businesses and industries maintain and develop their relationships with our major trading partners. Importantly, the government will focus on assisting small to medium enterprises to establish footholds in growth markets across Asia and the Americas.

Case study: Economic Development Queensland

The Economic Development Act 2012 was passed late last year to facilitate economic development by helping councils and the state make available land for economic development that may not have been possible under other legislation or council planning schemes. The Act helps cut the regulatory burden that has been constraining the state's property and construction sector.

The Act established Economic Development Queensland (EDQ) to facilitate and fast track economic development and development for community purposes across Queensland. EDQ has the ability to deal commercially in land, property and infrastructure and has responsibility for planning and development activities. Unlike the former Urban Land Development Authority (ULDA), EDQ can facilitate urban, residential, industrial, and retail and commercial developments. This has allowed the government to facilitate projects that were previously out of scope, including the Commonwealth Games Village.

Stakeholders benefit from the introduction of Priority Development Areas (PDAs) which fast-track development for specific sites and purposes if there is an overriding economic or community need to start the proposed development quickly.

EDQ has the potential to generate economic returns to communities that were previously held back by regulatory hurdles. Four PDAs were declared between February and July 2013, some of which may not have been possible under the ULDA Act. The 17 Urban Development Areas declared under the ULDA Act have been transitioned to PDAs and can now facilitate a much broader range of economic and community development activities. A PDA has also been proposed for the Maroochydore City Centre to help it become a focal point for regional business, community services and employment on the Sunshine Coast. This will provide an opportunity to reinvigorate the region through residential, commercial, retail and mixed-use development. As a result, the proposed PDA has the potential to make major contributions to the Sunshine Coast and state economies by boosting tourism and local businesses and creating more jobs for Queenslanders.

EDQ aims to generate over $240 million in private investment through land sales in 2013–14. Over the medium term, the establishment of EDQ in some instances is expected to bring forward approvals for a range of development projects by as much as two years. This should assist with spurring future investment and economic growth in the state.

Promoting economic resilience

The government is committed to promoting economic resilience through infrastructure and strong communities. The government has established a Betterment Fund to improve the resilience of flood-damaged community infrastructure by rebuilding it to withstand future natural disasters. The Royalties for the Regions program is also investing in floodplain security projects to support local governments in building the resilience of their economies.

Case study: Royalties for the Regions

Royalties for the Regions is designed to ensure that regional communities receive real, long-term royalty benefits through better planning and infrastructure investment. From 2012, the Royalties for the Regions program will invest $495 million over four years, and $200 million each year beyond that, in community infrastructure, roads and flood mitigation projects.

Round 1 of Royalties for the Regions was piloted as a competitive funding program with a two-stage assessment process comprising an expression of interest and a business case. Fourteen local councils experiencing the most acute growth pressures arising from resource development were eligible to apply for funding.

Eighteen successful projects have been announced which will see over $78 million invested in regional communities. This includes over $49 million in royalties program funds, alongside $9.7 million from industry, $6.7 million from councils and $12.4 million from other state and Australian Government agencies.

An evaluation of Round 1 found the program was very well received. Stakeholders supported a change to the geographic scope of the program which has resulted in eligibility being expanded to include all local governments outside of South East Queensland, but still including Toowoomba Regional Council.

Enabling infrastructure for economic growth

Productivity improvements are a pre-condition for a stronger Queensland economy. For businesses, increasing productivity is largely about having the right connections with the markets they supply and those that supply them. Economic infrastructure makes these supply chain and labour market connections and is vital to the competitiveness of the state. Economic infrastructure includes physical transport assets such as road, rail, air and sea and utilities such as water, power and broadband. Social infrastructure, including health and education, delivers the community amenity required to maintain liveability and to attract new residents to live and work. It enables communities to manage growth and to prosper.

How economic infrastructure is planned, prioritised, funded and delivered has significant implications for productivity outcomes, economic growth levels, and ability to meet the service needs of a growing Queensland population. The same can be said for how existing infrastructure is used, maintained, expanded and recycled.

The Commission of Audit identified the need to do more with less in terms of infrastructure. The private sector will play an increasing role in financing, delivering and operating economic infrastructure, often in partnership with the public sector. The government's first major private sector development, 1 William Street, stands as an example of the new approach.

Delivered and current actions

Infrastructure planning, prioritisation, coordination and strategic decision-making

Delivered actions

- Established Infrastructure Queensland
- Established Projects Queensland within Queensland Treasury and Trade to enhance the government's infrastructure development, assessment and procurement processes and increase private sector participation.
- Developed and released the Galilee Basin Infrastructure Framework, which sets out a clear policy for the coordinated development of infrastructure in the Galilee Basin – providing greater certainty for landholders and industry.
- Commenced the 1 William Street project.

Current actions

- Finalise a whole-of-government economic infrastructure prioritisation framework.
- Develop and release a 10-year infrastructure plan and an infrastructure pipeline that provides the private sector with the confidence to plan and invest.
- Finalise and release the Infrastructure Frameworks for Surat and the North West Minerals Province.
- Consider a broad range of options to encourage contestability and attract more entrants into Queensland's infrastructure market.
- Review regional infrastructure plans and supply chain requirements to best equip regional areas for economic development.
- Released the Building Projects Industry Guide for 2013–14, detailing upcoming capital works worth around $2.8 billion.

Delivered and current actions

Transport infrastructure

Delivered actions

- Developed and released the Queensland Transport and Roads Investment Program 2013–14 to 2016–17, which outlines the current transport and road projects that Queensland Government plans to deliver over the next four years to meet the state's infrastructure needs.
- Devised the Bruce Highway Action Plan, which sets out a detailed program of works to improve the capacity and safety of the highway over the next 10 years.
- Announced new routes for innovative high productivity heavy vehicles across Queensland.
- Completed a revised business case for the Toowoomba Second Range Crossing.

Current actions

- Finalise and release Moving Freight to provide a 10-year strategic approach for developing a sustainable and productive multi-modal freight network that is responsive to customers needs, changing industry requirements and growing economic activity.
- Form an expert panel to review the public transport infrastructure needs of South East Queensland.

Power, water and energy infrastructure

Delivered actions

- Released draft water resource plans, which provide frameworks for sharing water equitably and sustainably between urban, rural, industrial, environmental, social, and indigenous uses.

Current actions

- Finalise and release the 30-year water sector and electricity sector strategies to deliver water and energy services to meet the future needs of Queensland.
- Reform Queensland's electricity sector, e.g., merging electricity suppliers to reduce costs of living and doing business, as part of a plan to save more than $580 million over seven years.

International gateways

Current actions

- Release an Economic Development Statement for Queensland Airports.
- Finalise the Queensland Ports Strategy to pave the way for future port development by increasing productivity through improvements to planning, governance, environmental management and supply chain connections.
- Work with industry to examine options for improving freight access to the Port of Brisbane.

Community, health and education infrastructure

Delivered actions

- Announced further boosts to spending in education, health and community in the 2013–14 State Budget.

Case study: Queensland Ports Strategy

The Queensland Government is developing the Queensland Ports Strategy to support the most efficient and strategic use of ports to grow the four pillar economy, whilst ensuring high standards in environmental management. The strategy will be informed by the results of public consultation on the Great Barrier Reef Ports Strategy in late 2012.

The strategy aims to increase productivity through system improvements to the planning, governance, environmental management and supply chain connections of ports. It will pave the way for future port development and planning that recognises the differing strategic roles and opportunities of Queensland ports.

The Queensland Ports Strategy will extend the principles developed for Great Barrier Reef Ports Strategy to all Queensland ports, namely:

1. strategic use of ports to facilitate economic growth
2. a whole of network approach
3. the right balance between economic development and environmental protection
4. maximise efficiency throughout the port system
5. clarity and transparency in port planning.

The strategy will also support the efficient commercial operation of ports, improved port and infrastructure corridor protection, consistency and mutual compatibility of ports, rail, roads and freight strategies, improved landside infrastructure planning for port supply chains and rigorous environmental management.

The Queensland Government has established Infrastructure Queensland, which brings together industry leaders and infrastructure experts. Infrastructure Queensland provides advice to the Queensland Government on infrastructure priorities and long-term planning.

Working with Infrastructure Queensland, government will develop a new policy framework for economic infrastructure. This will address the imperative and challenges of providing infrastructure to enable the next wave of economic growth. It will also outline the government's approach to decision making and set the framework for the development by government of a 10-year infrastructure plan. The benefits will be considerable:

- improved infrastructure services for Queensland businesses and communities
- greater certainty for the private sector, bringing new capital and improved management of Queensland's infrastructure networks and assets
- better value for money for taxpayer investment in infrastructure

Key actions will include:

- a coordinated approach to infrastructure planning across geographic boundaries, asset classes, co-location of infrastructure, and levels of government
- selecting the appropriate infrastructure options to maximise productivity and deliver value for money

- greater contestability to infrastructure decisions and more disciplined prioritisation between infrastructure options
- harnessing the strengths of private sector financing and funding of economic infrastructure
- a more disciplined approach to asset lifecycle management – from procurement and delivery to recycling of mature assets.

Driving productivity growth in the public sector

An essential part of lifting our productivity performance is improving the efficiency of the public sector. The public sector employs a large workforce and public services are highly labour intensive. Increased public sector productivity will help restore Queensland's long-term fiscal position. It will reduce the unit cost of service delivery, the cost of doing business for firms using services and the level of taxes required to deliver them.

Delivered and current actions

Innovation within the public service and public sector renewal

Delivered actions

- Realigned workforce to ensure public sector skills and expertise are best utilised to meet the government's priorities.
- Implemented a culture and values renewal program to help achieve the government's vision of Queensland being the best administered state in Australia.
- Implemented new chief executive and executive performance and development frameworks to drive performance and accountability for customer service delivery.
- Reduced red tape and streamlining of employment directives, guidelines, policies, awards and agreements to enhance managerial decision-making – 'letting managers and employees get on with the job.'
- Undertaking departmental reviews by the Public Sector Renewal Board into the range and quality of services delivered to customers and stakeholders.

Current actions

- Implement five-year strategic workforce plans to help ensure that the Queensland public sector is sourcing, developing and retaining the workforce with the capabilities Queensland needs, now and into the future.
- Promote the innovative use of government information and information sharing across government agencies.
- Take forward a culture and values renewal program informed by results of the 2013 Working for Queensland employee opinion survey to embed innovation, and drive improvement in the way we work.
- Continue to reform public sector employment legislation to provide a simplified and streamlined employment environment with enhanced flexibility and mobility.
- Invest in the development of leaders across the public sector, through the executive capability assessment and development initiative, given the critical importance of leadership in achieving better services and outcomes for customers and stakeholders.

Service delivery

Delivered actions

- Delivered better customer service through initiatives, such as Open Data and the Intellectual Property Audit, which are early actions to help unlock commercialisation opportunities.
- Undertook an independent audit of ICT within the Queensland Government to support effective delivery of services and achieve savings and reduce waste.
- A commitment to pay bills to small business within 30 days, backed by a new Late Payments Policy which will guarantee that private sector suppliers who do not receive payment within 30 days will receive interest on the amount they are owed.

Delivered and current actions

Current actions

- Implement the recommendations accepted in A Plan: Better Services for Queenslanders in response to the Commission of Audit to revitalise front line services.
- Use digital technology to improve access to information for people and business and personalise delivery of government services.

Leveraging assets and procurement

Delivered actions

- Established the Government Land and Asset Management (GLAM) unit to drive the better use of government assets through effective identification, assessment and management of the state's real property-based assets.
- Completed a review of whole-of-government strategic sourcing to identify and act on opportunities for greater cost savings.

Current actions

- Continue to facilitate the effective identification, assessment and management of the state's real property-based assets through GLAM
- Implement the first wave of reforms identified by the review of whole-of-government strategic sourcing to capitalise on cost savings.
- Implement innovative approaches to maximise value of assets and information.
- Implement the 'ICT as a service' strategy, which includes using cloud email and other emerging technologies.
- Deliver the Queensland Government ICT Strategy 2013–17 to improve service delivery, increase efficiencies and reduce costs.
- Implement the Building and Asset Services (BAS) unit to centrally coordinate the procurement and contract management of building services, which will ensure the best value for money is achieved.

Private sector operators and non-government organisations have new ideas and ways of delivering solutions to problems. The state government needs to harness these by moving from being the 'doer' to an 'enabler'.

A key principle in this transformation is contestability, as recommended by the Commission of Audit. Contestability is a process where government tests the market to ensure it is providing the public with the best possible solution at the best possible price. It also means the government works within those areas where it is best placed when compared to the services offered by the private sector. This approach could provide significant cost savings, improve public services and support economic development. Implementing these reforms will require the right skills and systems to be in place.

The state government is committed to delivering Australia's most innovative and productive public sector. The Commission of Audit showed that a productivity gain of between 0.8 per cent and 1.1 per cent per annum across sectors involved in the provision of government services would not only help maintain fiscal balance but also have very significant wider economic benefits. This includes lifting average Gross State Product (GSP) by around 0.5 per cent per year, equivalent to $8320 per year in today's dollars for each Queenslander by 2050-51.

Case study: Government Land and Asset Management (GLAM)

The Commission of Audit report found that Queensland's stock of General Government land holdings is significantly higher than other states, comprising $90.7 billion, or just under half of the land stock of all states. On a per capita basis, the contrast between Queensland and other states is even more pronounced. General Government land holdings in Queensland are over $20 000 per capita, about five times higher than New South Wales and three times higher than Victoria.

The Commission of Audit report recommended that the government's state assets (including land holdings) are managed efficiently and effectively to ensure enhanced value for money. This would release funding that could be used to support the delivery of front-line services. The Government Land and Asset Management (GLAM) group within the Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning is investigating a whole-of-government approach to drive the better use of government land assets.

GLAM will ensure the state's real property-based assets are identified, assessed and managed to their full potential now and into the future. Opportunities for the private and not-for-profit sectors will become available as the government looks to optimise its land holdings. A Property Asset Utilisation Review is being undertaken to identify all government land assets, with a focus on determining surplus land that will not be required for government programs and needs. It is expected to be completed by the end of 2013.

Communicating the importance of economic development

We need to create wealth through economic development so we can maintain and improve our standard of living.

However, we can no longer take it for granted that the community automatically understands or accepts the need for economic development. We need to bring communities along on the journey.

So why is economic growth important?

Improvements in productivity are needed to deliver:

- a higher standard of living, with healthy and more prosperous communities
- greater business confidence and investment that feed through into profits and jobs
- competitiveness of Queensland businesses, products and services in global markets
- more and better jobs, providing higher wages and better opportunities for advancement
- increased revenues, generating the money to finance spending on public goods and services, such as infrastructure, schools and health services without the need to raise taxes.

In the wake of the GFC many countries and regions are facing pressures of structural adjustment. This includes China which played a dominant role in driving demand for Queensland's natural resources. Global growth rates have moderated and significant risks remain. And while developing economies present major opportunities for Queensland exporters, new and lower sources of supply threaten our position in global markets. Against this backdrop, we cannot afford to be complacent. The case for boosting Queensland's competitiveness needs to be made afresh.

The Queensland Government recognises that growth needs to be well managed. Economic development can and must occur in a way that protects the unique environment and communities of Queensland. Nowhere is this more evident than in the determination of the government to work with industry and the community to protect our unique, world-renowned Great Barrier Reef and its wonderfully diverse environment which provides us with an unrivalled lifestyle. Productivity growth and environmental protection can and must go hand in hand.

There is a good story to tell. But government and industry both need to lift their games about the way we engage with the community and communicate the need for and benefits of growth.

Case study: Water in mines

Unnecessarily restrictive mine water release conditions imposed following the 2008 Ensham mine flooding, coupled with unprecedented wet season rainfalls, has resulted in flooding of operational pits and increased production costs for Central Queensland coal mines.

The flooding of the coal mines has caused job losses and cost the state in the order of $750 million in lost royalties – that is money that could be invested in better public services.

In response to the significant economic impacts of this legacy mine water, the Queensland Government initiated a pilot mine water release program at four mines during the 2012-13 wet season. Understandably the community, downstream businesses and landholders had significant concerns about the potential for impacts on water quality for drinking water, stock, irrigation and other business uses.

To provide confidence to the community, Government committed to a carefully controlled pilot program and to provide transparent, high quality data on its impacts. Ministers have demonstrated clear leadership and accountability by engaging in regular and open communication with the community to address concerns and share the findings of the pilot program. This approach has been positively received by stakeholders and the community.

The pilot program has demonstrated successfully that mine water releases could be sustainably increased, whilst ensuring the protection of water quality.

The mine water program is currently being extended to other coal mines in the Fitzroy Basin. Participating mines will be provided with the opportunity to optimise their mine water releases, if they can demonstrate best practice mine water management. This expanded program will not only address the legacy water issue, but will drive a long-term improvement in coal mine water management and catchment water quality.

Government remains committed to keeping the community fully informed. Alongside an enhanced environmental monitoring program, Government has developed an interactive water quality map that allows the public to easily get up to date information on water quality in the Fitzroy Basin. Interested parties can also subscribe to receive immediate information on mine water releases. This will complemented by regular information updates on releases and results from the monitoring program. We have also committed $120,000 per year to support the Fitzroy Partnership for River Health's ongoing assessment of the catchment's health.

Delivered and current actions

Engaging the community in planning the future of Queensland

Current actions

- Through the Queensland Plan journey, enable Queenslanders to shape the 30 year vision for the state.

A commitment to sound science and evidence-based decision-making

Delivered actions

- Committed $10 million in 2013-14 to the Reef Protection Program, which is part of the Government's $35 million per year commitment to the Great Barrier Reef Plan
- Committed $4 million over two years to the Gladstone Healthy Harbour Partnership

Current actions

- Working with the Australian Government to undertake a comprehensive Strategic Assessment of the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area and the adjacent coastal zone to achieve best practice in managing a balance between growth and environment protection.

Improving coexistence

Delivered actions

- Established the GasFields Commission to improve sustainable coexistence of landholders, regional communities and the onshore gas industry in Queensland
- Prepared draft Statutory Regional Plans for Darling Downs and Central Queensland

Better managing the impacts of growth

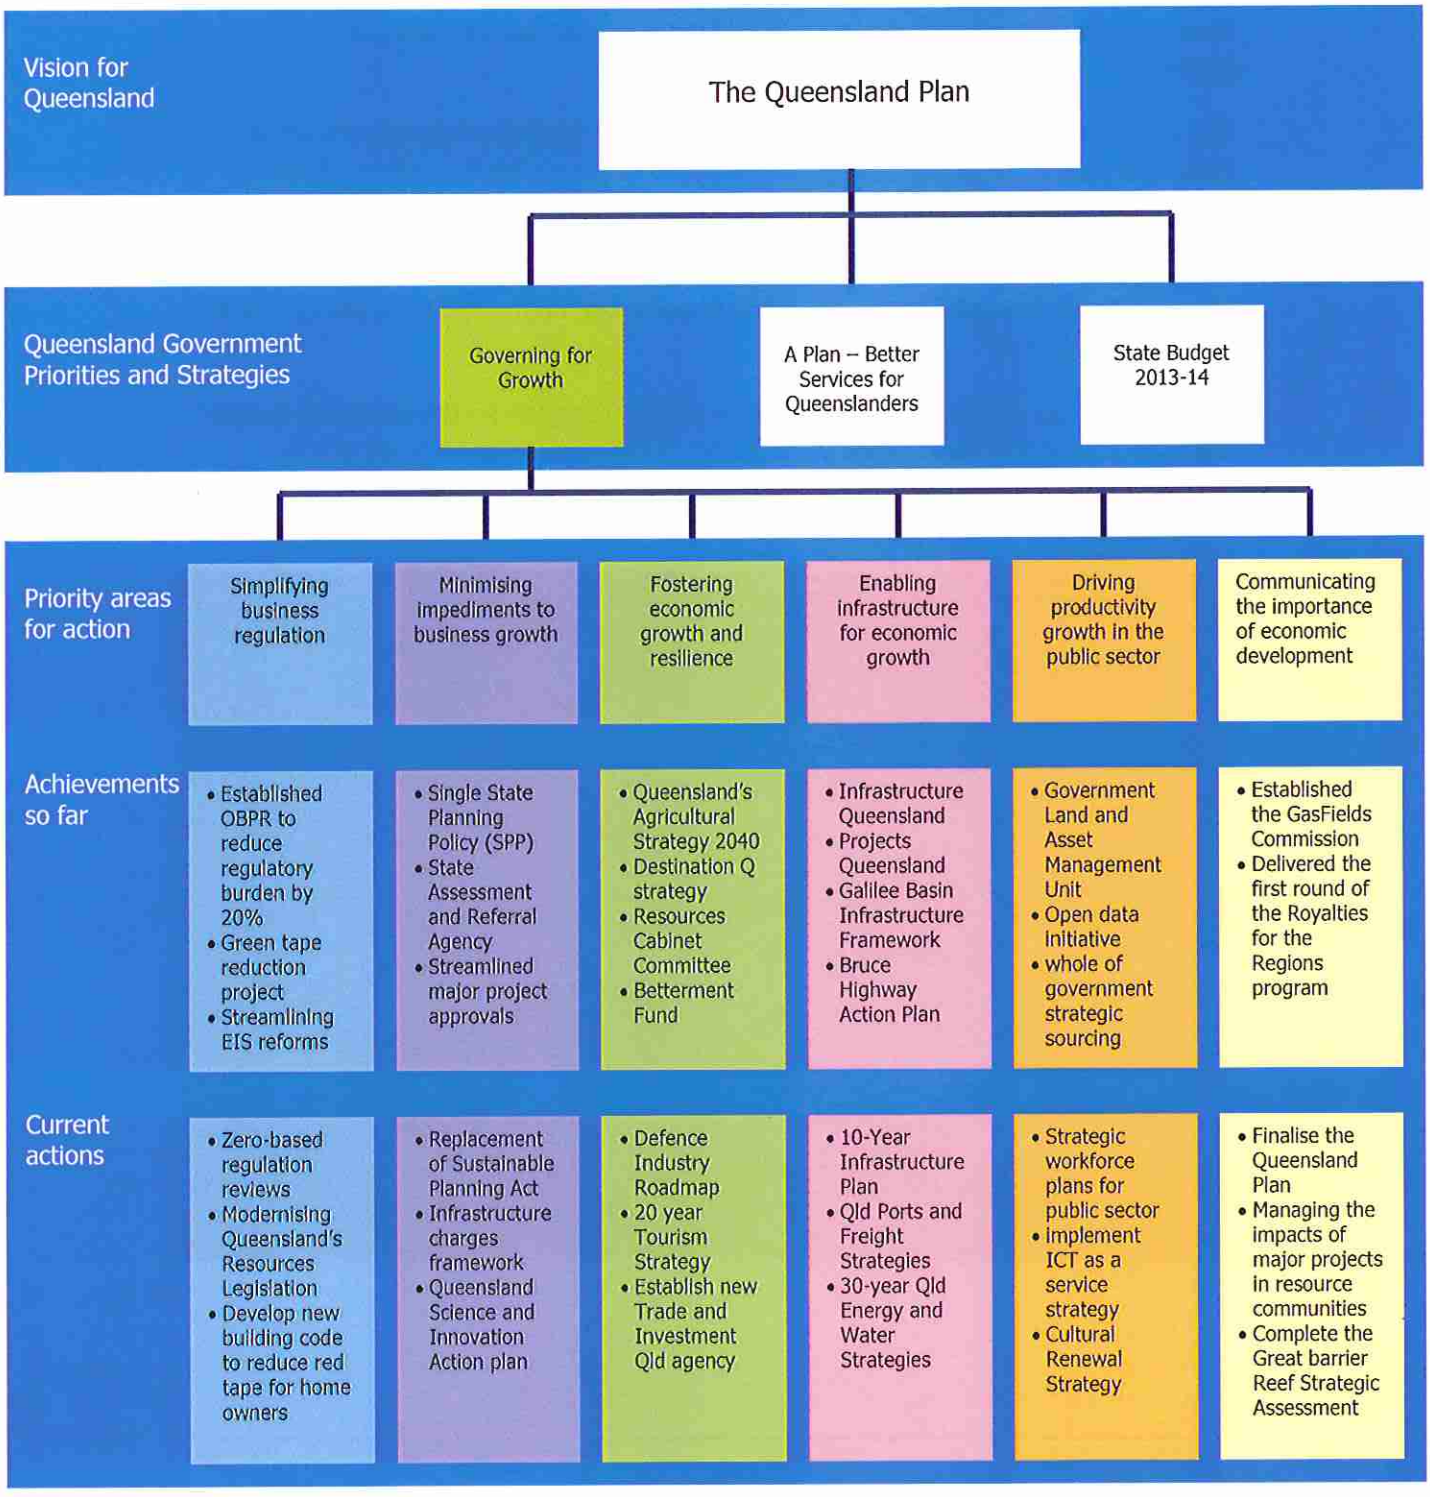

Delivered actions

- Invested $50 million through the first round of Royalties for the Regions to address infrastructure needs arising from resource sector growth, with a commitment to grow the program to $200 million per year
- Developed a new policy framework to better manage the impacts of major projects in resource communities to improve the legacy of growth for resource regions.

The story so far

The following diagram is a summary of the Governing for Growth economic framework, showing how it fits within Queensland Government priorities, and strategies. Achievements and future actions demonstrate how activities align with the framework.

Where to from here—Governing for future growth

The actions identified in this Governing for Growth statement represent the first wave of government efforts to promote increased productivity and economic growth.

They are the crucial building blocks of economic growth but they are just the beginning.

Our next task is to drive and embed reforms that will ensure economic growth and jobs for a decade of growth. We will continue to focus on the four pillars of the economy and look at wider opportunities where Queensland has existing or emerging comparative advantage.

The six priority areas for action focus the government on moving from being a 'doer' to being an 'enabler'.

A more detailed plan for action under each priority area will be developed to support the long-term vision established through the Queensland Plan. Actions will be informed by consultation with industry and the community to ensure action is aligned, effective and provides value-for-money.

Hon Jeff Seeney MP
Deputy Premier
Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning

RECEIVED
28 JUN 2013
STATE DEVELOPMENT, INFRASTRUCTURE AND INDUSTRY COMMITTEE

26 JUN 2013

Mr David Gibson MP
Chair
State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee
Parliament House
George Street
Brisbane QLD 4000

Dear ~~Mr Gibson~~

Appropriation Bill 2013 – Public Hearing

I refer to your letter of 27 May 2013 that detailed the Chief Executives who should make themselves available to attend the hearing. Included in the list relevant to my portfolio are the Chief Executive Officers of the GasFields Commission and Urban Land Development Authority.

As the position of General Manager, GasFields Commission is currently vacant, I intend to invite Mr John Cotter, Chairman, GasFields Commission to attend the hearing. The Urban Land Development Authority (ULDA) is no longer in existence and the functions of that body are now performed by Economic Development Queensland (EDQ). Accordingly I have asked Mr Chris Mills, General Manager, EDQ to attend the hearing should the Committee wish to direct any questions regarding the ULDA.

I trust this will satisfy the requirements of Schedule 7 of the Standing Rules and Orders of the Legislative Assembly.

Yours Sincerely

JEFF SEENEY MP
DEPUTY PREMIER

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee

Questions on Notice

Minister for Energy and Water Supply

1 I refer to page 11 of the SDS, why was the goal of having appropriate drinking water quality monitoring and response frameworks in place for 100% of the state's drinking water services not met in 2012-13? Which drinking water services did not meet the required standard in 2012-13 and what steps will be taken to ensure 100% compliance in 2013-14?

2 I refer to pages 7 and 8 of the SDS. Will the Minister please advise how much water was supplied from water grid sources such as the Gold Coast Desalination Plant and the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme and other sources reported separately during 2012-13?

3 I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many households are currently participating in the Solar Home Bonus Scheme broken down into how many are receiving the 44c/kWh rate and how many are receiving the 8c/kWh rate reported separately by state electorate?

4 I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise the total annual generating capacity of solar panels installed and participating in the Solar Bonus Scheme on both the 44c/kWh and the 8c/kWh rate (listed separately)?

5 I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many applications were received to join the Solar Bonus Scheme between the announcement on 26 June 2012 that the 44c/kWh rate would be discontinued to new applicants and 9 July 2012 and how many of those applications have had solar panels installed and are receiving the 44c/kWh rate?

6 I refer to page 2 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many staff in his Department have been tasked with developing the 30 year electricity and water strategies, reported separately and when are those plans expected to be published?

7 I refer to page 3 of the SDS and the planned reduction of red tape in 2013-14. Will the Minister please outline what areas or regulations are being targeted for further deregulation and explain why the current regulations are planned to be modified?

8 I refer to pages 7 and 8 of the SDS and I refer to the decision to shelve the LNP's election commitment to move to a 40 year price path for the repayment of water grid debt. Will the Minister please advise what the modelling done, either by Queensland Treasury or the Department of Energy and Water Supply, showed the water grid debt would peak at and in what year if a 40 year price path had been adopted?

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee

Questions on Notice

Minister for Energy and Water Supply

9 I refer to page 2 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise what contingency plans the department has in place to guarantee water supply in Brisbane should the Mt Crosby water treatment plant be unable to supply water as occurred in January 2013 and how much water could be supplied under those contingency plans?

10 In your strategic direction in the budget you say you are developing a 30-year strategy for water supply services through effective planning and policy. Why is there no mention, nor funding in the Budget for irrigation plans for the North West, including the Flinders Agricultural Precinct irrigation scheme, or for smaller centres, such as Forsayth or Georgetown? With the current drought conditions in the north, and no strategy for building dams, how can you ensure a cost-effective, safe, secure and sustainable water supply for residents in rural and remote communities?

11 What key features of the 2013 Budget will ease the cost of living pressure on Queensland families and businesses?

12 In the Departmental Overview of the Service Delivery Statements it states that the Department of Energy and Water Supply will continue to deliver cost-effective, safe, secure and reliable energy and water supply by developing 30 year strategies for Queensland's energy and water supply sectors. How will the development of these strategies assist the continuation of delivering cost-effective, safe, secure and reliable energy and water supply for Queensland, and is there any additional value of having such long term plans?

13 What are the key priorities for the Department of Energy and Water Supply in the next year to empower consumers and other stakeholders, and how will this achieve better service outcomes?

14 The Departmental Overview in the Service Delivery Statements discusses the continuation of delivery on effective reforms, what reforms will have the most significant impact on irrigators, and how will these reforms improve the viability of the agricultural industry?

15 What Channel Schemes will be participating in the Local Management Arrangement reforms and what practical impact will this have on the everyday irrigator?

16 How much will the cost of the Community Service Obligation under the Uniform Tariff Policy for the Ergon area be in 2013-14, and what steps will the Department of Energy and Water Supply be taking to ensure this is the most efficient and effective way of providing electricity services to remote and isolated communities?

Questions on Notice

Minister for Energy and Water Supply

17 What policy directions have been taken to reduce the cost of bulk water in south east Queensland, and what effects are they expected to have on the cost of water in the region?

18 How will the placement of the Tugun Desalination Plant into hot standby and the shutdown of the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme impact on critical supply issues in south east Queensland and the delivery of vital water services?

19 The Strategic Direction section of the Departmental Overview in the Service Delivery Statements for Energy and Water Supply states that the Department will deliver effective reform by reducing red tape and streamlining regulatory requirements. What reforms will the Department implement in 2013-14 to reduce red tape and how will this impact on the average consumer directly or indirectly?

20 In the Department of Energy and Water Supply's Strategic Direction it states that stakeholder engagement is a strategic risk and challenge in 2013-14. What regulatory and compliance standards are utilised by the Department of Energy and Water Supply to assist consumers facing difficult or uncooperative engagement by water or electricity service providers that falls outside the jurisdiction of the Energy and Water Ombudsman, and how does the Department intend in improving its service by supporting consumers?

QUESTION:

I refer to page 11 of the Service Delivery Statement, why was the goal of having appropriate drinking water quality monitoring and response frameworks in place for 100% of the state's drinking water services not met in 2012-13? Which drinking water services did not meet the required standard in 2012-13 and what steps will be taken to ensure 100% compliance in 2013-14?

ANSWER:

The percentage is calculated by determining the number of drinking water service providers (providers) that have an approved drinking water quality management plan in place OR where there is no approved drinking water quality management plan, whether the provider has met the minimum microbiological - Escherichia coli (E. coli)) monitoring requirements or has been issued a direction notice to ensure compliance with regulatory requirements.

The performance percentage has increased over time from 85.9 per cent in April 2012 to 93.7 per cent in June 2013. As more drinking water quality management plans are approved, this percentage will continue to rise. It is not anticipated that the 100 per cent performance percentage target will be met until after all providers have an approved drinking water quality management plan in place. This is likely to be mid 2014. At present, 30 of 70 providers have an approved drinking water quality management plan.

Between January 2012 and March 2013 the following providers, at some point in time, did not meet the E. coli monitoring requirements and two providers have been issued with Direction Notices. These two providers, Maranoa and Torres Strait Island Regional Councils are shown in bold in the list below:

- Aurukun Shire Council
- Cherbourg Aboriginal Council
- Delaware North Heron Island Pty Ltd
- Diamantina Shire Council
- Hope Vale Aboriginal Council
- Lockhart River Aboriginal Council
- Maranoa Regional Council
- Mapoon Aboriginal Council
- McKinlay Shire Council
- Napranum Aboriginal Council
- Palm Island Aboriginal Council
- Paroo Shire Council
- Quilpie Shire Council

- Richmond Shire Council
- Torres Shire Council
- Torres Strait Island Regional Council
- Winton Shire Council
- Wujal Wujal Aboriginal Council

In the majority of cases, the inability of a provider to meet the E. coli monitoring requirements was due to the impact of natural disasters, staff capacity and turnover. Many of these providers were also in the process of developing drinking water quality management plans for approval by the Queensland Water Supply Regulator, which impacted on their resourcing. In the case of the two Direction Notices, both Councils responded or are responding to the Direction Notices appropriately.

QUESTION:

I refer to pages 7 and 8 of the SDS. Will the Minister please advise how much water was supplied from water grid sources such as the Gold Coast Desalination Plant and the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme and other sources reported separately during 2012-13?

ANSWER:

Please find below water supplied from the Gold Coast Desalination Plant and the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme for the 2012-13 year. Production for the same period from all other South East Queensland sources is also included.

Source	Volume produced to end June 2013 (megalitres)*
Gold Coast Desalination Plant	2810
Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme	2160
From all other sources	277020

*Rounded to nearest 10 megalitres.

Manufactured water represented 2% of total water supplied.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many households are currently participating in the Solar Home Bonus Scheme broken down into how many are receiving the 44c/kWh rate and how many are receiving the 8c/kWh rate reported separately by state electorate?

ANSWER:

At the end of May 2013 there were 274,440 small customers participating in the 44c/kWh Scheme and 19,687 small customers participating in the 8c/kWh Scheme.

Unfortunately it is not possible to accurately disaggregate the number of customers connected to the 44 c/kWh rate and the 8 c/kWh rate, by state electorate. I have instead tabled information provided by Energex and Ergon Energy on all customers connected to the Scheme, broken down by postcode.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise the total annual generating capacity of solar panels installed and participating in the Solar Bonus Scheme on both the 44c/kWh and the 8c/kWh rate (listed separately)?

ANSWER:

At the end of May 2013 there was 831 megawatts of capacity connected to the 44 cents per kilowatt hour (c/kWh) rate and 62 megawatts of capacity connected to the 8 c/kWh rate offered under the Queensland Solar Bonus Scheme.

The amount of energy generated by a solar system varies annually depending on factors such as the amount of sunshine and system performance. The total generation of each solar system connected to the Scheme is not captured by the electricity meters that are installed in homes with solar power. The meters measure the amount of surplus solar energy exported to the electricity grid after the solar energy is used to meet household demand.

For the 2012 calendar year, the total solar energy exported to the electricity grid under the Scheme was 356,000 megawatt hours.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 7 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many applications were received to join the Solar Bonus Scheme between the announcement on 26 June 2012 that the 44c/kWh rate would be discontinued to new applicants and 9 July 2012 and how many of those applications have had solar panels installed and are receiving the 44c/kWh rate?

ANSWER:

Between the announcement on 26 June 2012 and the closure of the 44 cents per kilowatt hour (c/kWh) rate to new customers on 9 July 2012, approximately 100,000 applications were received across Queensland.

Between 30 June 2012 to 31 May 2013, 80,969 customers installed solar panels and are receiving the 44 c/kWh rate. This includes customers who had submitted an application but not installed their solar system prior to the announced closure of the 44 c/kWh rate on 26 June 2012, in addition to those who applied during the 10 day notice period leading up to 9 July 2012.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 2 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise how many staff in his department have been tasked with developing the 30-Year electricity and water strategies, reported separately and when are those plans expected to be published?

ANSWER:

Queensland must have an electricity supply system that can meet the changing economic and social needs of our communities and businesses. This is why the Government has embarked on a plan to develop a 30 Year Electricity Strategy to ensure the electricity sector becomes more resilient, cost-effective and customer-focussed.

The development of a 30 Year Electricity Strategy is a key priority of the Department of Energy and Water Supply. To deliver this important initiative, this Government has committed the following staff:

Position Title	Level	Full-time equivalent
Director, 30 Year Electricity Strategy	SO1	1.0
Manager	AO8	0.8
Project Coordinator	AO4	1.0
Project Coordinator	AO4	1.0
TOTAL		3.8

The 30 Year Electricity Strategy is being developed through a three stage consultative process. A directions paper was released in late-2012, and feedback from the directions paper has informed the development of a detailed discussion paper. The discussion paper is due for release in mid-2013 with an extensive three month consultation period to follow. Following the consultation period, the final 30 Year Electricity Strategy will be released by early-2014.

The 30-Year Strategy for Queensland's Water Sector (the water strategy) is being developed by 3 full-time equivalent staff, as follows:

Position Title	Level	Full-time equivalent
Team Leader, 30 Year Water Plan	AO8	1.0
Senior Analyst, 30 Year Water Plan Implementation	AO7	1.0
Analyst, Water Planning and Science Research	PO2	1.0
TOTAL		3.0

The Director and General Manager of the area are also substantially involved in the development of the strategy, due to the complexities of the water sector and the need for greater oversight and co-ordination across 10 other government departments that have an interest in this sector.

Between August 2012 and June 2013, the water strategy staff have developed, released and consulted on the Queensland's water sector: a 30-year strategy discussion paper (discussion paper), collated and analysed the discussion paper submissions, developed and released a summary feedback report and are developing a draft water strategy.

The Business and Corporate Partnerships unit (a shared service) completed design tasks associated with the release of the discussion paper including the production of an animation, web-page development and document layout.

Public consultation on the draft water strategy will be undertaken in the last half of 2013 and the final strategy will be released in early 2014.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 3 of the SDS and the planned reduction of red tape in 2013-14. Will the Minister please outline what areas or regulations are being targeted for further deregulation and explain why the current regulations are planned to be modified?

ANSWER:

The department will deliver a number of red tape reduction initiatives in 2013-14. A description of each initiative and the rationale for change is outlined below.

Cease the Queensland Gas Scheme
This initiative will implement the Government's decision to cease the Queensland Gas Scheme (the Scheme) as at 31 December 2013. The Scheme requires electricity retailers to source 15 per cent of their electricity from gas-fired generators to develop the gas industry and reduce greenhouse gas emissions from electricity generation. Ceasing the Scheme will require legislative amendments to the Electricity Act 1994, the Electricity Regulation 2006 and the Energy and Water Ombudsman Act 2006.

Rationale for cessation of the Scheme:

- Since the commencement of the Scheme in 2005, gas-fired generation has become a significant contributor to generation in Queensland. Currently, electricity retailers source around 20 per cent of their electricity from gas-fired generators, exceeding the Scheme's mandated target of 15 per cent. (In 2005, gas made up 2.4 per cent of the Queensland electricity generation mix.)
- This additional gas-fired generation has reduced greenhouse gas emissions by around 17.1 million tonnes[1] (compared with coal fired power stations).
- The fact that electricity retailers are sourcing electricity from gas-fired generators in excess of the mandated target indicates that other commercial factors are likely to be driving this greater use of gas.
- The continued operation of a Scheme to achieve an objective that is likely to be already supported by other market mechanisms will impose unnecessary compliance costs, administrative burden and complexity on both business and government
- The cessation of the Scheme will lower the cost of living by contributing to lower electricity prices as electricity retailers pass the cost of complying with the Scheme onto consumers.
- Given the small residual benefit to gas-fired generators, it is considered that the financial implications to generators of ceasing the Scheme will be minimal.

[1] In 2012, the average emission intensity of coal was 0.897 tCO2/MWh and the average for gas was 0.506 tCO2/MWh.

Cease the Smart Energy Savings Program

This initiative will implement the Government's decision to cease the Smart Energy Savings Program (the SESP). The SESP requires businesses with energy consumption above certain thresholds to undertake an energy audit, develop an Energy Savings Plan and publish their actions on a five-yearly cycle. Ceasing the SESP will require repeal of the Clean Energy Act 2008 and amendments to the Queensland Civil and Administrative Review Tribunal Regulation 2009.

Rationale for cessation of the Scheme:

- Removes a compliance burden (compliance costs) from SESP participants which will improve their competitiveness and may flow indirectly to consumers through lower prices.
- Reduces the regulatory burden for government, freeing up resources for government priorities.

Implement the National Energy Customer Framework

The Government has conditionally agreed to adopt the National Energy Customer Framework (NECF) in 2014 after consideration of options that will ensure that protections for customers outside South East Queensland are delivered. The NECF harmonises the way states and territories regulate energy retail operations replacing the multiple energy retailer licensing regimes with one.

Implementing the NECF will requirements amendments to the Electrical Safety Act 2002, the Electricity Act 1994, the Energy and Water Ombudsman Act 2006, the Gas Supply Act 2003, the Queensland Competition Authority Act 2003 and the Retail Shop Leases Act 1994.

Rationale for implementation of the NECF:

- For Queensland, implementing the NECF allows Parliament to repeal separate retail licensing, reporting and customer protection regimes for electricity and gas in favour of a new regime covering both electricity and gas.
- The NECF will create efficiencies for retailers operating across state and territory borders.
- Simplifying regulation for retailers of electricity and gas will mean a reduction in regulatory compliance costs that may, due to increased retailer competition, result in reduced cost pressures on customer retail pricing.
- Adoption of the NECF in Queensland will also deliver more immediate customer effects. It will strengthen safety net support for vulnerable electricity customers and bolster customer protections for gas customers generally. It will also provide all-new protections for energy consumers in on-supply arrangements (e.g. tenants supplied electricity or gas by a landlord).

Water and Sewerage Services Red Tape Reduction
This initiative will propose improved business arrangements and reduce operational costs for water service providers by:

- Replacing the requirement for various management plans with annual performance reporting, publication of a comparative report, and increased transparency for customers.
- Simplifying the regulation of recycled water by only requiring schemes with higher risks to have Recycled Water Management Plans.
- Allowing an authorised person appointed by a service provider who replaces and maintains water meters to also install them to reduce costs and save time.

The initiative will require amendments to the Water Supply (Safety and Reliability) Act 2008, the South East Queensland Water (Distribution and Retail Restructuring) Act 2009, the Environment Protection (Water) Policy 2009 and the Plumbing and Drainage Act 2002.

Rationale for the initiative:

- Cost savings for water service providers that can be passed on to consumers to address cost of living pressures.
- A focus on service delivery outcomes and transparency that will provide an incentive for improved performance in the delivery of water and sewerage services.
- Empowering local governments and communities to decide on service targets and the best way to deliver services.
- The water industry has been seeking simplification for some time and strongly supports the proposals.

QUESTION:

I refer to pages 7 and 8 of the SDS and I refer to the decision to shelve the LNP's election commitment to move to a 40 year price path for the repayment of water grid debt. Will the Minister please advise what the modelling done, either by Queensland Treasury or the Department of Energy and Water Supply, showed the water grid debt would peak at and in what year if a 40 year price path had been adopted?

ANSWER:

The government has inherited a financial position which does not allow flexibility to extend the price path and associated debt over a longer timeframe. The Commission of Audit Report identified the current Queensland debt position is unsustainable and that the accumulating South East Queensland (SEQ) water sector debt was a significant financial risk to Queensland. Any extension to the current price path and debt repayment periods would lead to increased debt level.

The decision by the previous government to build the SEQ Water Grid and purchase existing bulk water assets from councils largely funded by debt, has resulted in the significant water infrastructure debt that is now held by Seqwater (currently around $7 billion). This is in addition to approximately $2 billion of debt, also held by Seqwater that is funding the losses associated with the sale of bulk water to council water businesses.

It is not possible for this government to adopt measures that would further increase Queensland's debt. The government has made the fiscally responsible decision to commit to repaying the water sector debt, at least over the same timeframe as the previous government did. This means that the debt from the losses from bulk water sales will be repaid over 20 years, and debt that funded the bulk water infrastructure is effectively repaid over the life of the assets.

The government has, therefore, had to find other ways to reduce the significant upward pressure on bulk water prices due to the lower than forecast water use.

QUESTION:

I refer to page 2 of the SDS, will the Minister please advise what contingency plans the department has in place to guarantee water supply in Brisbane should the Mt Crosby water treatment plant be unable to supply water as occurred in January 2013 and how much water could be supplied under those contingency plans?

ANSWER:

A number of actions have been undertaken in response to the January 2013 extreme weather event.

These range from immediate operational improvements through to planning studies to determine the most effective means to achieve long term system resilience. They also follow a range of improvements undertaken following the January 2011 floods.

One of the key lessons from the Australia Day event was a new understanding of the capacity of the Mt Crosby Water Treatment Plants (WTPs). This has resulted in the establishment of a new turbidity threshold and operating mode which will allow the plants to continue to produce supply at reduced volumes at higher turbidity levels.

Other improvements completed include:

- An enhanced forecast model to better predict turbidity levels at Mt Crosby WTPs up to 12 hours in advance. The model was used successfully to forecast turbidity levels during the February/March 2013 extreme weather event.
- Increased and improved communication between Seqwater and Queensland Urban Utilities (QUU) to maximise reservoir levels ahead of any future events.
- A commitment by the State Government to ensure that the Tugun Desalination Plant can continue to be utilised during emergencies and incidents.

An improved level of system preparedness and resilience will be implemented prior to the 2013/14 summer and will include:

- Infrastructure upgrades to further improve Mt Crosby WTPs' ability to treat high turbidity loads and improved chemical dosing reliability and capability.
- Increased catchment monitoring and additional redundancy. Seqwater is investigating the installation of more robust equipment better able to deal with extreme weather events.
- Improved online visibility to allow Seqwater and QUU to view each other's operational systems allowing better communication of any emerging issues during an event.
- A joint Summer Preparedness Plan between Seqwater and QUU. Each organisation currently prepares separate plans.

There will be further improvements planned beyond summer 2013/14 with a focus on optimising existing Water Grid assets.

The actions undertaken to date and those planned means our water authorities are better equipped to manage the impact of future extreme weather events on water supplies.

QUESTION:

In your strategic direction in the budget you say you are developing a 30-year strategy for water supply services through effective planning and policy. Why is there no mention, nor funding in the Budget for irrigation plans for the North West, including the Flinders Agricultural Precinct irrigation scheme, or for smaller centres, such as Forsayth or Georgetown? With the current drought conditions in the north, and no strategy for building dams, how can you ensure a cost-effective, safe, secure and sustainable water supply for residents in rural and remote communities?

ANSWER:

The private sector will have primary responsibility for funding of irrigation development.

Urban water service providers including local government have primary responsibility for water supply funding. The state provides subsidy and grant funding under Royalty for the Regions and the Local Government Grants and Subsidies Program.

The Commission of Audit has identified that any future bulk water storage facilities be developed by the private sector, unless there are compelling public good or market failure reasons not to do so.

The Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation (CSIRO) is undertaking an agricultural resource assessment of the Flinders and Gilbert River basins. CSIRO's report is due by the end of 2013 and will evaluate the feasibility, economic viability and sustainability of agricultural development in these two catchments as part of the North Queensland Irrigated Agricultural Strategy. Until this work is complete, there will not be any consideration of state government funding.

The Department of Energy and Water Supply undertakes regional water planning to ensure future urban, rural, industrial and mining water needs can be met. There are no water entitlement access issues restricting water resource development or the delivery of appropriate urban and rural water supplies at this time.

A challenge in the North West and particularly the Flinders River catchment is finding suitable dam and other water resource development sites, especially sites conveniently located for agricultural development and potential future mining expansion.

QUESTION:

What key features of the 2013 Budget will ease the cost of living pressure on Queensland families and businesses?

ANSWER:

The 2013 Budget contains a number of initiatives to help ease the cost of living pressure on Queensland families and businesses as outlined below.

Electricity costs

The Queensland Government is aware that rises in electricity costs have placed significant pressure on the community, especially on low income households. That is why we have increased our assistance in 2013-14 to those who are most vulnerable.

In 2012-13, expenditure for energy concessions was around $120 million. In 2013-14, we have allocated $153 million to providing concessions and rebates to pensioners, seniors and eligible concession card holders to help them cope with the electricity price rise.

Our main electricity rebate will increase by $52.08 from $230.46 last financial year (including GST) to $282.54 in 2013-14. On top of this, households that have higher electricity consumption due to their reliance on medical equipment can access our Electricity Life Support Concession and the Medical Cooling and Heating Electricity Concession Scheme, which have also increased by over 22 per cent, in line with the Queensland Competition Authority's determination for a 22.6 per cent increase in the general household electricity tariff.

This means that annual concession amounts (GST inclusive) for 2013-14 will be increased as follows:

- Electricity Life Support Scheme (Oxygen Concentrator) will increase by $106.05 to $575.44;
- Electricity Life Support Scheme (Kidney Dialysis) will increase by $71.04 to $385.36; and
- Medical Cooling and Heating Electricity Concession Scheme will increase by $52.08 to $282.54.

The Reticulated Natural Gas Rebate will increase by $1.35 to $65.58 per annum (including GST), in line with CPI of 2.1 per cent.

As part of the 2013 budget, the Government also committed to doubling the funding of the Home Energy Emergency Assistance Scheme (HEEAS) to $10 million. HEEAS provides a payment of up to $720 for households who have suffered an emergency and, as a result, are experiencing severe financial distress or may be on the brink of disconnection. Consumer advocate groups have expressed how important this assistance is as a form of alleviating emergency hardship situations.

Community Service Obligations (CSO)

The Department provides CSO payments to SunWater and Seqwater, estimated to be $16.4 million in 2013-14. These payments are made to SunWater and Seqwater for the provision of rural irrigation services, and to SunWater to provide additional water security to Cloncurry residents through the building and operation of the Cloncurry pipeline. The Cloncurry pipeline connects the town of Cloncurry to Lake Julius and enables the transport of up to 900 megalitres of water to Cloncurry's water treatment plant each year.

South East Queensland (SEQ) bulk water prices

Following the latest review of bulk water prices, the government has further reduced the annual household increase for 2013-14 to $49 for a household using 200 kilolitres of water a year.

The $49 price increase is $5 less than that forecast by the previous government and well below the $83 increase that would have been required without preventative action by this government.

The government has already abolished the Queensland Water Commission and merged the SEQ bulk water entities into one entity to deliver savings.

The new single bulk water authority, Seqwater, will focus on implementing efficiencies, reducing costs and ensuring continued resilience within the bulk water network. These cost-saving actions will not impact on water security.

The government has also provided a one-off $80 rebate to SEQ households and retirement villages.

SunWater non-irrigation water pricing

The government also understands that councils that receive bulk water from SunWater will be subject to price increases. These increases will be thoughtful and smoothed out over a price path to minimise price shocks on customers.

No. 12

QUESTION:

In the Departmental Overview of the Service Delivery Statements it states that the Department of Energy and Water Supply will continue to deliver cost-effective, safe, secure and reliable energy and water supply by developing 30 year strategies for Queensland's energy and water supply sectors. How will the development of these strategies assist the continuation of delivering cost-effective, safe, secure and reliable energy and water supply for Queensland, and is there any additional value of having such long term plans?

ANSWER:

Queensland's electricity system powers our economy and underpins our way of life – we must ensure that it remains resilient, cost-effective and customer-focussed to support the economic and lifestyle aspirations of Queensland customers. This is why we have embarked on a path to deliver a 30 year electricity strategy.

A key objective in developing the strategy is to prompt thinking beyond the short term to help build resilient policy to address the many emerging challenges facing the sector. A 30 year time horizon is particularly important for Queensland's electricity system which is underpinned by capital intensive, long-lived assets that can remain operational for many decades.

Through the development of a proactive 30 year electricity strategy, the Queensland Government will provide policy and regulatory certainty to support the evolution of our complex, multi-billion dollar industry in the coming decades. A 30 year time horizon will ensure policy responses extend well beyond the short term to provide a solid foundation for the growth of the industry in the future.

The 30-Year water strategy (water strategy) developed by the Department of Energy and Water Supply will create a Queensland water sector that will provide resilient, sustainable, safe and cost effective water supply, sewerage and irrigation services to meet the changing needs of the community and the economy.

Delivery of water supply and sewerage services remains the responsibility of local governments and other service providers. The sector faces a number of organisational, fiscal and regulatory challenges, which affect the service providers' ability to deliver cost-effective, safe, secure and reliable water supply for their communities.

The initiatives proposed in the water strategy aim to overcome these challenges into the future. As foreshadowed in the discussion paper, the government intends to introduce substantial reform by moving to a performance-based regulatory approach, integrating planning for catchments, empowering customers through transparent pricing and increased choice, and equipping the sector for the challenges of the future by increasing skills and capacity.

Consultation on these initiatives will occur in the coming months through the release of the draft water strategy, with a final strategy due for completion in early 2014.

ESTIMATES QUESTION ON NOTICE
FOR THE MINISTER FOR ENERGY AND WATER SUPPLY

No. 13

QUESTION:

What are the key priorities for the Department of Energy and Water Supply in the next year to empower consumers and other stakeholders and how will this achieve better service outcomes?

ANSWER:

The Department of Energy and Water Supply (DEWS) will publicly consult through the development of the 30 Year Electricity Strategy on options to improve the engagement of electricity customers with the electricity market. It will work with a reference group of customer representatives and electricity retailers to develop a customer engagement strategy.

Evidence from international jurisdictions suggests that improving customer engagement can lead to:

- increased competition;
- discounted or lower prices;
- product innovation; and
- improved customer service.

In addition to delivering these benefits, the development of engagement strategy will also support other reforms underway by supporting:

- the transition from electricity price setting to price monitoring as it will provide additional customer protection and increase the likelihood that customers will benefit from greater competition;
- the proposed electricity tariff reform strategy by improving customer understanding of the market, increasing the propensity of customers to select products which suit their needs and energy use patterns, and reducing the risk that customers will move to new tariff structures that do not suit their circumstances; and
- customers facing difficulties paying their electricity bills as engaged customers are more likely to understand and act upon the assistance options available to them and are less likely to be disconnected for non-payment of electricity bills.

The Queensland Government will also support the establishment of a national energy consumer advocacy group to provide a stronger voice for customers in policy and regulatory debates. We will also examine other ways to improve advocacy on behalf of Queensland customers and strengthen protections.

In early 2014 a review will commence of the Water and Sewerage Services Code for Small Customers in South East Queensland (Code) under the South-East Queensland Water (Distribution and Retail Restructuring) Act 2009.

The Code outlines customer service standards and responsibilities applying to South East Queensland (SEQ) service providers (Queensland Urban Utilities, Unitywater and Gold Coast, Redland and Logan City councils) and their small customers, including standards and conditions of service and supply for relevant water and sewerage services. Small customers are residential customers or those who use, or would use, no more than 100 kilolitres of drinking water or recycled water per annum. Consumers and other stakeholders will be part of developing an improved streamlined code which will deliver better service outcomes, through public submissions.

The effectiveness of the Energy and Water Ombudsman Queensland will also be looked at by DEWS, including its current SEQ jurisdiction, and whether there are any improvements that can be made, so that it can support consumers more broadly. DEWS will also work with the Queensland Council of Social Service in relation to potential approaches for matters such as hardship.

A range of reform proposals are also being progressed including removing requirements for mandatory submission of a range of prescriptive water and sewerage asset management plans and associated reporting, reviews and audits.

These plans will be replaced with a proven performance monitoring and benchmarking framework which focuses on service delivery outcomes and will empower local governments and communities to determine the best way to deliver water and sewerage service outcomes in their communities.

ESTIMATES QUESTION ON NOTICE
FOR THE MINISTER FOR ENERGY AND WATER SUPPLY

No. 14

QUESTION:

The departmental overview in the Service Delivery Statements discusses the continuation of delivery on effective reforms, what reforms will have the most significant impact on irrigators, and how will these reforms improve the viability of the agricultural industry?

ANSWER:

In Queensland, there are a small number of irrigation businesses which are required to register as service providers under the Water Supply (Safety and Reliability) Act 2008 (Act). The obligation of an irrigation business to register only arises in limited circumstance if it supplies water or sewerage services to third parties for a charge. It does not apply where irrigators simply take water for their own irrigation use or do not charge. However, the Queensland Government is still looking to make doing business even easier.

While government is still considering the exact structure of the reforms, it is anticipated that unless the business is doing something more complex like providing drinking water or sewerage services, future obligations of a registered irrigation business would be limited to a simple registration requirement. Registration under the Act will remain desirable for those irrigation businesses because it gives rise to a number of retail-type powers which assist the business in dealing with its customer base. This includes the power to disconnect unauthorised connections, direct remedial work, install water meters, restrict or interrupt supply and enter places for restricted purposes.

As a separate initiative, the government is also investigating introducing local irrigator ownership and management of eight channel irrigation schemes. These schemes are currently owned and operated by the Queensland Government's Government-Owned Corporation, SunWater.

For government to decide whether local management is in the best interests of irrigators and the state, the irrigators within the schemes must demonstrate how they would run them as long-term viable businesses.

Significant funding has been provided by the Queensland Government to help local irrigators develop their business proposals This funding will help irrigators establish local irrigation boards to run this investigation process and to fund business planning, modelling and due diligence which will inform these proposals.

This funding also includes a review of the local management experience in other states to learn from this process and to establish how this has affected the viability of the agricultural industry in other parts of Australia. Preliminary work shows that given the right regulatory, financial and transitional arrangements, local management can result in positive experiences for local areas.

The Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry will also be undertaking work which will provide the government with further information about what contribution local management arrangements or other reforms could make to the Queensland Government's commitment to doubling agricultural production by 2040. These pieces of work will help to form an overall picture of viability of the agricultural industry and how local management might fit into that picture.

ESTIMATES QUESTION ON NOTICE
FOR THE MINISTER FOR ENERGY AND WATER SUPPLY

No. 15

QUESTION:

What channel schemes will be participating in the local management arrangement reforms and what practical impact will this have on the everyday irrigator?

ANSWER:

The customers of each of SunWater's eight channel schemes will be given an opportunity to make a case to government about how local management arrangements could be made to work for their schemes. The eight channel schemes are: St George, Eton, Lower Mary, Burdekin-Haughton, Mareeba, Theodore, Emerald and Bundaberg. Irrigators in each of these schemes have put in place interim boards, made up of both irrigators and other people with business experience, to help develop proposals to government.

Government is assisting those boards by providing funding for further legal, engineering, financial and taxation expertise in developing proposals. An independent local industry working group has also been established, headed by Irrigator and National Water Commissioner, Ms Leith Boully, to allow a whole of industry perspective to be brought in relation to technical and policy issues as they arise during the proposal. Members of the working group include Queensland Farmers' Federation, Canegrowers, Growcom and Cotton Australia.

Ultimately, what the local management arrangements will look like is being driven by irrigators themselves. For example, the government is open to proposals containing vastly different pricing, operations or customer service standards to those currently provided by SunWater, provided these proposals show the new way of operating is financially sustainable. The management and shareholding structures of the new entities will also be determined by the irrigator boards themselves in order to ensure the new arrangements meet the needs of their customers.

From an individual irrigator's perspective, while they will still receive their bulk water from SunWater, they can expect their everyday business dealings to be with the companies they participate in and own.

ESTIMATES QUESTION ON NOTICE`

QUESTION:

How much will the cost of the Community Service Obligation under the Uniform Tariff Policy for the Ergon area be in 2013-14, and what steps will the Department of Energy and Water Supply be taking to ensure this is the most efficient and effective way of providing electricity services to remote and isolated communities?

ANSWER:

The Government's Community Service Obligation (CSO) arrangement with Ergon Energy ensures that most Queenslanders pay the same electricity prices regardless of their location. The current budget forecast for the CSO for 2013-14 is $615 million.

The CSO provides great assistance to households and businesses in regional Queensland. It is a significant budget item for the Government which, on current estimates, will see an average subsidy in excess of $800 per customer for regional Queenslanders in 2013-14.

The Government is taking a number of steps to improve the efficiency of electricity supply to regional, remote and isolated areas. It has announced recently its response to the report of the Interdepartmental Committee (IDC) on Electricity Sector Reform. Within the IDC report, the Independent Review Panel recommendations on network efficiency are valued at $3.6 billion in savings in the period to 2014-15. Implementing these recommendations will place downward pressure on CSO costs.

The Government has also directed Ergon Energy enter into wholesale energy purchase agreements with the State-owned electricity generators, CS Energy and Stanwell, improving the efficiency of the State's energy portfolio. In addition, the Government is implementing new reporting and monitoring of input costs to ensure continued effort to reduce the CSO.

The Government is also focussing on reducing the high cost of electricity supply to Ergon Energy's 34 isolated systems, which equates to a subsidy of around $15,000 per customer. To test the efficiency of these isolated systems, the IDC recommended the Government call for expressions of interest from the private sector for energy supply to the isolated systems in 2014-15. The Government has agreed in principle, subject to the results of consultation with employees and other stakeholders.

The Government is also addressing barriers to the growth of retail competition in regional Queensland to ensure that electricity supply to regional, remote and isolated communities is efficient and cost-effective.

No. 17

QUESTION:

What policy directions have been taken to reduce the cost of bulk water in South East Queensland, and what effects are they expected to have on the cost of water in the region?

ANSWER:

The government has taken action to reduce bulk water costs to be recovered through bulk water prices, including merging the three bulk water entities and abolishing the Queensland Water Commission. This means the previous complex and costly bulk water supply arrangements have been simplified to avoid duplication, cut operating and administration costs and reduce board and executive expenses.

In addition, the government has removed the existing requirement to build additional infrastructure, given the significant excess capacity in the bulk water supply system, such as Wyaralong Water Treatment Plant and pipes (estimated to cost around $500 million).

Further, the government has announced the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme will be shutdown with care and maintenance, and the Gold Coast Desalination Plant will continue in standby mode and will only operate in critical supply situations. This action will significantly reduce the operating costs of these plants.

Without government action to reduce bulk water costs, the annual household price increase would have been over $80 per household. The annual household increase for 2013-14 will be $49 for a household using 200 kilolitres of water a year. The same price increase will apply for 2014-15, except for Somerset households and businesses—having already reached the destination price point, they will have a lower price increase.

No. 18

QUESTION:

How will the placement of the Tugun Desalination Plant into hot standby and the shutdown of the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme impact on critical supply issues in south east Queensland and the delivery of vital water services?

ANSWER:

Due to a combination of our current water security and interconnected infrastructure, the new operating modes for the Tugun Desalination Plant and the Western Corridor Recycled Water Scheme will have no impact on the delivery of drinking water to South East Queensland (SEQ).

SEQ currently enjoys a high level of water security. Based on the current levels, even in the absence of further rainfall such as that experienced during the Millennium Drought, restrictions would not be required for approximately six years and would only be required for a matter of months if at all.

The interconnected nature of the Water Grid ensures that bulk drinking water can be moved across the region to where it is needed most. Twelve of the region's major drinking water storages are connected by a 600km pipe network stretching from the Gold Coast through greater Brisbane to the Sunshine Coast and east to Redlands. This means that Seqwater is able to isolate, blend and transfer water, ensuring the quality and reliability of the region's bulk water supply.

The Gold Coast Desalination Plant still plays a vital role in preserving water security. By maintaining the plant on hot-standby, it can be ramped up to 33 per cent capacity within 24 hours and full capacity within 72 hours.

Seqwater's longer term planning involves consideration of the wide range of options to ensure SEQ has sufficient water to support the lifestyle and environment of future generations. As one of the first steps in this planning, Seqwater will undertake the more technical assessments of water supply requirements and flood mitigation management in SEQ.

Seqwater also seeks to ensure that infrastructure is not built before it is needed and will assess the merits of the various options for meeting future water supply security needs, as and when required. Any future water supply options will also be assessed across a range of criteria, including economic, social and environmental factors.

ESTIMATES QUESTION ON NOTICE
FOR THE MINISTER FOR ENERGY AND WATER SUPPLY

No. 19

QUESTION:

The Strategic Direction section of the Departmental Overview in the Service Delivery Statements for Energy and Water Supply states that the Department will deliver effective reform by reducing red tape and streamlining regulatory requirements. What reforms will the Department implement in 2013-14 to reduce red tape and how will this impact on the average consumer directly or indirectly?

ANSWER:

The department will deliver a number of red tape reduction initiatives in 2013-14. A brief description of each initiative and the impact on consumers (either directly or indirectly) is provided below.

Cease the Queensland Gas Scheme
This initiative will implement the Government's decision to cease the Queensland Gas Scheme (the Scheme) as at 31 December 2013. The Scheme requires electricity retailers to source 15 per cent of their electricity from gas-fired generators to develop the gas industry and reduce greenhouse gas emissions from electricity generation.

The cessation of the Scheme will reduce compliance costs for retailers. It is difficult to determine the true cost to retailers of complying with the Scheme as these costs are likely to vary considerably for both vertically integrated and stand-alone merchant retailers. The cessation of the Scheme however, will lower the cost of living by contributing to lower electricity prices as electricity retailers pass the cost of complying with the Scheme onto consumers. Additionally, it will reduce administrative burden on government and compliance cost to industry.

Cease the Smart Energy Savings Program
This initiative will implement the Government's decision to cease the Smart Energy Savings Program (the SESP). The SESP requires businesses with energy consumption above certain thresholds to undertake an energy audit, develop an Energy Savings Plan and publish their actions on a five-yearly cycle.

The cessation of the SESP will remove a compliance burden (and associated compliance costs) from SESP participants, which will improve their competitiveness and may flow indirectly to consumers through lower prices. It will also reduce the regulatory burden for government, freeing up resources for other government priorities.

Implement the National Energy Customer Framework

The Government has conditionally agreed to adopt the National Energy Customer Framework (NECF) in 2014 after consideration of options that will ensure that protections for customers outside of South East Queensland are delivered. The NECF harmonises the way states and territories regulate energy retail operations replacing the multiple energy retailer licensing regimes with one. In doing so it creates efficiencies for retailers operating across state and territory borders.

In Queensland specifically, the NECF allows Parliament to repeal separate retail licensing, reporting and customer protection regimes for electricity and gas in favour of a new regime covering both electricity and gas.

Simplifying regulation for retailers of electricity and gas will mean a reduction in regulatory compliance costs that may, due to increased retailer competition, result in reduced cost pressures on customer retail pricing.

Adoption of the NECF in Queensland will also deliver more immediate customer effects. It will strengthen safety net support for vulnerable electricity customers and bolster customer protections for gas customers generally. It will also provide all-new protections for energy consumers in on-supply arrangements (e.g. tenants supplied electricity or gas by a landlord).

Water and Sewerage Services Red Tape Reduction

This initiative will propose improved business arrangements and reduce operational costs for water service providers by replacing the requirement for various management plans with annual performance reporting, publication of a comparative report, and increased transparency for customers. The proposal will simplify the regulation of recycled water by only requiring schemes with higher risks to have Recycled Water Management Plans. It will also allow an authorised person appointed by a service provider who replaces and maintains water meters to also install them to reduce costs and save time.

The proposed changes provide cost savings for water service providers that can be passed on to consumers to address cost of living pressures. The focus on service delivery outcomes and transparency will provide an incentive for improved performance in the delivery of water and sewerage services. Local governments and communities will also be empowered to decide on service targets and the best way to deliver services.

The water industry has been seeking simplification for some time and strongly supports the proposals.

FOR THE MINISTER FOR ENERGY AND WATER SUPPLY

No. 20

QUESTION:

In the Department of Energy and Water Supply's Strategic Direction it states that stakeholder engagement is a strategic risk and challenge in 2013-14. What regulatory and compliance standards are utilised by the Department of Energy and Water Supply to assist consumers facing difficult or uncooperative engagement by water or electricity service providers that falls outside the jurisdiction of the Energy and Water Ombudsman, and how does the department intend in improving its service by supporting consumers?

ANSWER:

The Department of Energy and Water Supply (DEWS) oversees a number of regulatory and compliance standards to assist consumers in their interactions with water and electricity providers, outside the jurisdiction of the Energy and Water Ombudsman.

The South-East Queensland Water (Distribution and Retail Restructuring) Act 2009 provides for a customer water and wastewater code, which is known as the Water and Sewerage Services Code for Small Customers in South East Queensland (Code).

The Code outlines customer service standards and responsibilities applying to South East Queensland (SEQ) service providers (Queensland Urban Utilities, Unitywater and Gold Coast, Redland and Logan City Councils) and their small customers, including standards and conditions of service and supply for water and sewerage services. Small customers are residential customers or those who use or would use no more than 100 kilolitres of drinking water or recycled water per annum.

In early 2014, the Minister will commence a review of the Code. Through public submissions, consumers and other stakeholders will be part of developing an improved streamlined Code which will deliver better service outcomes.

The department will also look at the effectiveness of the Energy and Water Ombudsman Queensland (EWOQ) including its current SEQ jurisdiction and whether there are any improvements that can be made so that it can support consumers more broadly.

Currently, a complaint can be made to the EWOQ for investigation, if a small customer and SEQ service provider are unable to resolve a dispute about the Code standards. For SEQ, in the year 2011-12 the EWOQ closed 739 water complaints.

Outside SEQ, local governments are the main service providers. Service providers outside SEQ are required to have, and meet, Customer Service Standards based on performance standards, unless they have a contract with a customer.

If a customer cannot resolve a complaint with a service provider there are further avenues of redress to assist them to resolve their issue. Complaints about local government service providers outside SEQ can be made to the Queensland Ombudsman for investigation and resolution. The Queensland Water Supply Regulator (QWSR) may be referred complaints about customer service standards for service providers which are not subject to the Ombudsman's jurisdiction. The QWSR can inquire into the matter and may require the service provider to comply with the standard or may require them to revise the standard.

DEWS is progressing a range of reforms to empower service providers and communities. This includes service providers setting performance targets against key water and sewerage performance indicators in a published Customer Service Standard, and then reporting on performance achieved.

The QWSR will be able to direct remedial action where necessary, and will publish a comparative report detailing the relative performance of each service provider, which will provide an incentive for improved performance and service delivery outcomes for water and sewerage.

DEWS administers the Electricity Act 1994 (the Act). Under the Act the delegated Regulator is the Director-General.

Small energy customers with a complaint about a retailer or distributor have access to the EWOQ which can investigate the complaint and has the power to take action under the Energy and Water Ombudsman Act 2006. Small energy customers are those that consume up to 100 MWh of electricity or 1 terajoule of natural gas per annum. This includes most residential and many small business customers.

All other "energy complaints" are referred to DEWS for consideration.

Of these complaints, many relate to services which are not regulated by energy specific legislation. In those cases, general legislation applies to some, which is administered by another department or agency, and for others no legislation applies (unregulated market), in which case the customer relies on general contract law.

In all cases, DEWS seeks to minimise inconvenience for customers by providing information about their rights and obligations, and contacts for appropriate agencies that can provide assistance.

For energy complaints relating to large customers or on-supply arrangements, the matters are investigated to determine if there is evidence of a breach of the Electricity or Gas legislation, or a systemic issue. If there is clear evidence of a regulatory breach DEWS will refer the matter to the Regulator for appropriate action under the Act. Systemic issues are referred to policy areas of DEWS for further consideration and possible action (eg. legislative change).

In cases where it is determined that there has been no regulatory breach, DEWS provides information and informal dispute resolution services to consumers.

DEWS provides information to empower consumers to resolve issues themselves, understand their energy bills and adapt their energy consumption patterns to reduce costs, through call centre scripting, fact sheets, information on the DEWS website and correspondence.

In regards to improvements to customer support, I would refer to the government's response to the Interdepartmental Committee Report on Electricity Sector Reform. This response outlines various areas for further work including improvements to customer assistance and hardship arrangements, implementation of the National Energy Customer Framework, and better arrangements for customer engagement and understanding.

Cost of Living: Electricity

Under Labor, the average Queensland family has had $700 added to their household power bills despite Labor's promise that nobody would be worse off under the Bligh Government's electricity privatisation.

Because Labor can't get the basics right, Queenslanders are facing spiraling costs of living and family budgets are under severe strain. There is no forward planning, but there is growing government waste.

While Labor has finally agreed with the LNP's opposition to the flawed Ambulance Tax, even removing that tax from power bills will not offset the already approved electricity price rise for this coming year and Labor's Carbon Tax will make it even worse.

The Queensland Competition Authority has reviewed power pricing in Queensland and has reported that the system is flawed.

LNP Policy Commitment:

The LNP is committed to:

- Keeping costs of power down through better management and tariff systems; and
- Opposing the Federal Labor Government's proposed carbon tax, because it will impose further costs on Queensland households.

To date, the LNP has committed to:

- Act to address Queensland's rising household energy bills and immediately freeze the standard domestic tariff (Tariff 11) providing savings of around $120 a year on power bills compared with Labor.
- Abolish the current electricity retail system that allows retailers to charge Queenslanders more if they use less power (the so-called BRCI).
- Work with the electricity industry to pursue optional initiatives to give customers and incentive to reduce electricity consumption including possibly introducing a lower Tariff 11 economy rate for households who install a range of appliances to interruptible power supply devices.

An LNP government would immediately freeze the standard domestic tariff, tariff 11, while allowing the fixed charge to rise in accordance with the QCA recommendation. By freezing tariff 11, average households using around six megawatt hours per year could save around $120 on their power bills in 2012-13—that is $120. It is the difference between being 'can-do' and this long-term Labor government.

In addition, an LNP government will abolish the current ridiculous pricing system that allows retailers to charge you more if you use less power. That is right: Queenslanders who use less power pay more under this tired Labor government. We will achieve this by abolishing the so-called benchmark retail cost index. By abolishing the benchmark retail cost index, power bills may well be reduced even further. I might add that, when the Queensland Competition Authority last reported on the 6.6 per cent pay rise under Labor's failed BRCI mechanism, the LNP raised the urgent need for electricity tariff reform.

Labor is responsible for soaring power prices and it could have done something long ago to fix this problem. In making this announcement today, I am hoping Labor members steal this policy. We urge them to. Just as they have with our announcement on water prices, policing on the Gold Coast, the GPS tagging of sex offenders and abolishing the ambulance tax, I am urging them to pinch this idea. If Labor acted today to freeze tariff 11 at 2010-11 levels and only allowed the fixed cost to increase in accordance with the QCA recommendation on 1 July, average families could save, we estimate, up to $70 this year compared to Labor's proposed price rise—I repeat: a saving of $70 this year compared to Labor's proposed price rise. Our challenge to the government is to steal this policy: do not be proud, do not be afraid to accept that you have failed Queenslanders by not dealing with rising power prices, do something to make a difference and do it now.

The LNP is also affirming its continued support for abolishing Labor's insidious ambulance tax. This is a tax that should never have been applied. It is a tax that hit those who least could afford to pay it and it is one that the LNP argued against when it was introduced by the Labor Party. As conceded by the government, this measure will save Queenslanders an additional $114 on their power bills on top of the savings we would introduce.

As I have already discussed, the LNP is resolute in opposing Labor's carbon tax. The carbon tax will have a significant impact on electricity prices and the government has no plan to deal with this problem. If Labor forces a carbon tax on Queenslanders, we will require electricity and water retailers to clearly show the full carbon tax component on power and water bills—Queenslanders will know how much they are paying for Labor's carbon tax policy.

As a final measure to drive down the cost of electricity, an LNP government will work with the energy industry to pursue optional initiatives to give customers an incentive to reduce electricity consumption. Options that customers might want to consider include the installation of smart meters for those who choose to have them installed and the possibility of introducing a new lower tariff 11 economy rate for households who choose to connect a range of appliances to interruptible power supply devices. These customers would get a lower overall cost in exchange for small interruptions to the power used in peak periods for equipment like air conditioners. Under our plan, the LNP would be able to offer Queensland households lower power bills than Labor. Our plan, which includes abolishing the ambulance tax and incentives for reduced electricity consumption, will save the average household around $250 and up to $330 a year—$250 to $330 a year in savings on electricity bills. If Labor steals our policy today—and we encourage it to do so—Queensland families, on an average bill, could save another $70 on top of those savings before the next election.

The contrast could not be clearer. Under Labor, reform has stalled. Since 2007 Labor has sat on its hands while the BRCI has failed Queenslanders. Labor failed to act in 2009 when the Queensland Competition Authority recommended a change to the BRCI. It failed to help Queenslanders when the cost of generating electricity was actually falling. Every day Labor wastes is a day of lost opportunity for Queensland. Every day Labor wastes is a day that Queenslanders are being forced to pay spiralling government taxes and charges. The LNP will forward plan, not live for the moment. We will save Queenslanders money, we will deliver more by getting action on the basics and cutting waste and, importantly, we will oppose Labor's outrageous slug on homeowners through its 125 per cent increase in transfer duty.

The dirty shame of Tuesday's budget—the black rabbit that the Treasurer pulled from his hat—was a tax that will cost many Queenslanders thousands of dollars a year. Despite what the government says, regardless of how it spins the facts, an increase in transfer duty will cost Queenslanders dearly. If you do not believe me, here is an example: with average homes in Brisbane selling for $515,000 and the average home being sold every seven years, the state government's transfer tax will cost the owners of those homes—will cost residents—$2,315 a year. At $2,315 a year, that is almost twice the cost of council rates. This government is so out of touch that it told journalists that homebuyers could simply add this tax to the mortgage. While the Treasurer might be able to keep adding bills to the Queensland mortgage, real families cannot get the loans to do that. It is just another sign of this government's lack of real-world experience.

Answers to Questions Taken on Notice at the Hearing

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee

QUESTION ON NOTICE

taken during Estimates Hearing for Minister for Energy and Water Supply

on 17 July 2013

The Member for Mulgrave asked the Director-General, Department of Energy and Water Supply (referring pp. 52-53 of proof hearing transcript):

Mr PITT: While I have you here, Director-General, the answer to non-government question on notice No. 8 tries to elicit when the government decided not to proceed with the election promise to pay off water grid debt over 40 years. I am not asking you to comment on the election promise itself. Has your department had any role in providing advice to the minister regarding the decision to not proceed with the 40-year path? When did you become aware that the decision to not undertake that had been taken?

Mr Black: The department has provided advice on options and the impact and financial modelling of all scenarios that the government requested of the department.

Mr PITT: Another aspect to that question on notice was about the level at which debt was forecast to peak under a proposal to pay it off over 40 years. It is my understanding that extending the repayment period would have resulted in a higher level of peak debt. Could you advise what level the debt would have been at under that plan? Was that part of your advice to the minister?

Mr Black: Yes. I might ask my deputy director-general if he has that figure at hand.

Mr PITT: If you do not have it at hand I am happy for you to take that on notice.

Mr Black: I will take that on notice.

CHAIR: You will be taking that on notice for the committee and you will provide that question?

Mr PITT: Certainly.

CHAIR: Only the minister can take the question on notice.

Mr McARDLE: I will take it on notice.

ANSWER:

The Department of Energy and Water Supply (DEWS) undertook analysis on the options for South East Queensland bulk water prices to apply from 1 July 2013. This included analysis of the implications, for prices and debt levels, of extending the timeframe for the repayment of the debt that is funding the losses from the price path from 20 years to 40 years. The outcome of this analysis was considered by government prior to the announcement on 3 May 2013 of bulk water prices to apply from 1 July 2015.

As bulk water prices do not currently recover the full costs of supplying bulk water, the associated financial loss is being funded by debt. In setting bulk water prices, the government needed to make the appropriate balance between prices and the State's financial position.

DEWS modelled a range of options associated with bulk water prices to inform the government. In particular, the DEWS assessed impacts on peak debt level and the pact in the level of peak debt and the year of peak debt.

Modelling showed that extending the debt repayment period from 20 years to 40 years leads to increased peak debt with the peak occurring later. This would therefore have increased overall State debt levels and led to additional annual interest costs which would need to be recovered from bulk water prices. DEWS did not model what the total debt would be over the 40 years, however, the impact of holding debt for a longer period of time would have significant impacts on the State's financial position.

QUESTION ON NOTICE

taken during Estimates Hearing for Minister for Energy and Water Supply

on 17 July 2013

The Member for Mulgrave asked the Minister for Energy and Water Supply (referring pp. 48-49 of the proof hearing transcript):

Mr PITT: Minister, I draw your attention to page 4 of the Capital Statement. I am comparing the figures for actual expenditure in 2012-13 with the budgeted figures on page 4 of last year's Capital Statement. You may not have that handy.

Mr McARDLE: I do not have that with me at the moment.

Mr PITT: I know that there was a capital underspend of approximately $60 million in the energy generation sector for 2012-13, an underspend of $53 million in the energy transmission sector in 2012-13 and an underspend of $194 million in the energy distribution sector. That is a massive underspend of $300 million in the capital budget. It raises the question about how it is being managed. It is a big underspend. You may be able to provide an explanation for it.

Mr McARDLE: Is that the department or one of the corporations you are talking about?

Mr PITT: Sorry, I have to go back to my own notes.

Mr PITT: Yes.

Mr McARDLE: And which corporation are you talking about?

Mr PITT: This is overall. This is the total. This is across all sectors: it is the energy transmission sector, it is the energy distribution sector and it is the energy generation sector. The underspend accounts for about $300 million.

Mr McARDLE: I will take it on notice, if you don't mind, and get back to you. It might well be something we need to get one of the CEOs of the GOCs to look at.

ANSWER:

I thank the Member for the Question. I note the capital expenditure figures quoted by the member were estimated actuals for the 2012-13 financial year, however the actual expenditure figures for the year are now available. The information provided below is based on the actual energy Government Owned Corporations capital expenditure figures for 2012-13.

I can advise that the five energy Government Owned Corporations spent $2.657 billion in capital expenditure in the 2012-13 financial year. This expenditure is approximately $578 million below the budgeted capital expenditure of $3.235 billion.

Energex's capital expenditure in 2012-13 totalled $948.5 million compared to a budget of $1.131 billion. The $182.6 million reduction in Energex's capital expenditure has been driven by the Electricity Network Capital Review, released in late 2011. Reduced demand for electricity has also placed downward pressure capital expenditure requirements.

Ergon's capital expenditure in 2012-13 totalled $901 million compared to a budget of $964.4 million, a reduction of $63.4 million. Ergon has prudently reduced its capital expenditure in response to reduced electricity consumption, flattening peak demand.

Powerlink's capital expenditure in 2012-13 totalled $558.3 million compared to a budget of $666.2 million, a reduction of $107.9 million. Powerlink's focus is on providing transmission services that strike the right balance between reliability of supply and cost to consumers. Efficiency opportunities and ongoing reviews of relevant programs have continued, including a review of its capital program. The lower capital expenditure takes into account these efficiencies as well as reductions in growth and forecast electricity demand across Queensland.

CS Energy's capital expenditure in 2012-13 totalled $56.82 million compared to a budget of $109.6 million. The reduction in capital expenditure by CS Energy is largely the result of a deferral of projects to later years because of softening electricity demand and reduction in growth.

Stanwell's capital expenditure in 2012-13 totalled $192.7 million compared to a budget of $363.9 million. Stanwell reduced its capital expenditure budget through a combination of expenditure deferrals to later years and project savings through scope revision.

Ultimately the decisions relating to these capital expenditure reductions are matters for each Government Owned Corporation board. The Boards of the energy Government Owned Corporations are independent and operate under the corporatised model, and are accountable for their performance to Shareholding Ministers, and ultimately all Queenslanders.

The reduction in 2012-13 capital expenditure for the five energy Government Owned Corporations was carried out carefully to ensure the reductions do not have a material impact on the capacity and supply of electricity to Queensland customers, while maintaining the safety of employees and the community and the reliability of the electricity network.

What these expenditure reductions achieve is a more efficient operation of the five energy Government Owned Corporations, while still outperforming the strict targets they must meet for the safety and security of electricity supply to all Queenslanders. It also avoids significant unnecessary costs, which will help reduce the upward pressure on electricity prices.

Dear Mr Gibson MP

I am writing to provide clarification around figures I provided at the Energy and Water Supply portfolio Estimates Hearing on 17 July 2013.

I refer to page 52 of the Hansard transcript proof where Mr Young asked me about the community service obligation payments (CSO) in relation to uniform tariff policy (UTP). I advised that in the 2013–14 year a total of $638.1 million is being paid in CSO to Ergon Energy. I would like to clarify that this figure is the total CSO being paid across the portfolio including water related CSO and rebates.

I would like to advise that the CSO being paid to Ergon Energy in relation to the UTP is estimated to be $615 million for 2013–14, with a further $5 million being paid to Origin Energy.

Further, in the hearing I provided a rough figure of $700 million for the CSO as it relates to UTP in 2014–15. I would like to advise that the actual 2014–15 figure is forecast to be $728 million for Ergon Energy with a further $5 million for Origin Energy (totalling $733 million), which allows for provision of similar protections to consumers in the border areas around Goondiwindi, who are supplied from the New South Wales system.

Yours sincerely

Minister for Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games

1. I refer to the funding allocations for the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games (SDS p.4). Will the Minister provide a list of all contracts which have been awarded through her department and statutory bodies under her authority since 1 July 2012 including (a) the purpose of the contract, (b) the organisation awarded with the contract, (c) the amount of money associated with the contract?

2. With respect to the Commonwealth Games Village for which construction is expected to begin this financial year (SDS p.2) it is noted that during last year's estimates process the Minister committed to providing the Leader of the Opposition with information once planning was complete, stating in relation to the village: "The master planning is not due to be completed until April 2013. I am sure that as soon as it is we will furnish the honourable member with that information." Will the Minister detail if that master planning has been completed, whether she has made any attempt to provide that information to the Leader of the Opposition and, if not, will the Minister provide it now?

3. I refer to the role of the Minister's department in attracting and retaining major events to Queensland (SDS p.7) and ask: will the Minister detail all discussions she, her department or Tourism and Events Queensland have conducted with the organisers of the Gold Coast V8 supercars event concerning ongoing funding for the event? Will the Minister commit to funding the event in the future?

4. With reference to page 34 of the SDS and the impact of natural disasters on the tourism industry: will the Minister detail all discussions she and/or her department have conducted with the Gold Coast City Council, industry bodies and private organisations concerning significant beach erosion? Will the Minister commit to providing funding to assist in the development and implementation for a long-term plan to address the issue?

5. Will the Minister provide the funding breakdown for each of Queensland's thirteen regional tourism organisations (SDS p.34) for the 2012-13 and 2013-14 budget years, with separate line items for base funding and the money awarded through contestable grants?

6. I refer to page 38 of the SDS and the expense for grants and subsidies. Will the Minister detail why there has been a significant underspend in this area and provide a list of all grants which have been awarded through her department and statutory bodies under her authority since 1 July 2012 including (a) the purpose of the grant, (b) the organisation awarded with the grant, (c) the amount of money associated with the grant?

7. Will the Minister provide a breakdown of the funding allocation to Tourism and Events Queensland (SDS p.34)? Specifically will the Minister detail how this funding is divided between the tourism and events functions of the organisation?

8. With reference to the Emergency Management, Fire and Rescue Levy (BP4 p.12) has the Minister or her department conducted any modelling on the impact the increased emergency levy and insurance duties will have on the tourism industry? If so, will the Minister release that modelling? Will the Minister confirm that reports that some businesses will be facing increased costs of up to $86,000 are accurate?

9. Will the Minister provide a list of all community, sporting and other groups that are currently operating out of the Gold Coast Parklands (SDS p.2) or have operated out of the Parklands in the 2012-13 financial year? Further will she outline what assistance have been provided to these organisations to find alternative accommodation?

10. The pressures of drought, competition from national franchises, and the withdrawal of disposal incomes via fly-in-fly-out mining communities in towns such as Mount Isa and Cloncurry have seen too many small and family businesses close in recent years. The "Strategic Direction" in your department's Budget paper lauds small businesses as "the engine room of our economy" and cites how recent flood events "tested their endurance" (no mention of drought doing the same), yet offers no real assistance other than a 24-hour "advice portal". Can you please advise why there is no mention of, or plan to combat, the impact of FIFO or drought on small businesses in the North West, and what tangible and workable plans in your tourism strategy will ensure that retail and small businesses in rural and remote areas not only survive, but prosper?

11. Can the Minister please outline the role of the newly created Tourism and Events Queensland in growing the tourism industry?

12. Can the Minister advise what actions the Department is undertaking to attract investment in the Queensland tourism industry?

13. Can the Minister advise of the progress of delivering action items from the DestinationQ 2012 forum?

14. Can the Minister please advise what work has been undertaken to grow and develop existing events in Queensland towards Major Event status?

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

I refer to the funding allocations for the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games (SDS p.4). Will the Minister provide a list of all contracts which have been awarded through her department and statutory bodies under her authority since 1 July 2012 including (a) the purpose of the contract, (b) the organisation awarded with the contract, (c) the amount of money associated with the contract?

ANSWER:

I can confirm a total of $118,101,465 excluding GST has been awarded through the department and statutory bodies under my authority since 1 July 2012.

The Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games has awarded contracts to the value of $75,511,570 excluding GST. Included in the value of contracts awarded since 1 July 2012 are contracts relating to preparations for the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games including redevelopment of Gold Coast Aquatic Centre, grants to the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Corporation and grants for the AFC Asian Cup Australia 2015 of $72,853,000 excluding GST.

The Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Corporation has awarded contracts to the value of $2,578,061 excluding GST.

Tourism and Events Queensland has awarded contracts to the value of $40,011,834 excluding GST.

Please find attached the list of suppliers and their purpose of engagement to both my department and the statutory bodies under my authority. Tourism and Events Queensland operates in a commercial environment. Details for Tourism and Events Queensland contracts awarded since 1 July 2012 have been aggregated by category for reasons relating to Commercial-in-Confidence.

Asked on 17 June 2013

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

With respect to the Commonwealth Games Village for which construction is expected to begin this financial year (SDS p.2) it is noted that during last year's estimates process the Minister committed to providing the Leader of the Opposition with information once planning was complete, stating in relation to the village: "The master planning is not due to be completed until April 2013. I am sure that as soon as it is we will furnish the honourable member with that information." Will the Minister detail if that master planning has been completed, whether she has made any attempt to provide that information to the Leader of the Opposition and, if not, will the Minister provide it now?

ANSWER:

Following passage of the Economic Development Act 2012 the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority and Economic Development Queensland were established in February 2013.

Economic Development Queensland is managing the land use planning and development of the Parklands Priority Development Area for the Commonwealth Games Village.

The proposed development scheme for the Parklands site is anticipated to be completed by Economic Development Queensland by August 2013.

Public release will be in accordance with legislative requirements.

The Queensland Government has sought private sector innovation for delivery of the Commonwealth Games Village.

A procurement process is currently underway to engage a private development partner.

Three proponents have been short-listed to submit detailed proposals and the selection process should be completed by early 2014.

The development partner will be responsible for the detailed master planning of the Parklands.

The State Government will make available the preferred development partner's master plan once the Request for Proposal process is complete in early 2014.

The Deputy Premier and Minister for State Development, Infrastructure and Planning is responsible for delivery of the Commonwealth Games Village and for the release of the master plan next year.

Will the Minister commit to funding the event in the future?

ANSWER:

The current contract with V8 Supercars Australia to deliver the Gold Coast, Townsville and Ipswich events run until after the 2013 Gold Coast event. Negotiations to continue the contract are continuing and remain commercial-in-confidence. It would not be appropriate for me to detail the nature of discussions nor pre-empt the outcome of these negotiations.

With reference to page 34 of the SDS and the impact of natural disasters on the tourism industry: will the Minister detail all discussions she and/or her department have conducted with the Gold Coast City Council, industry bodies and private organisations concerning significant beach erosion? Will the Minister commit to providing funding to assist in the development and implementation for a long-term plan to address the issue?

ANSWER:

I refer the honourable member to the question without notice asked in Parliament on 7 March 2013 which answered this question.

The Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games has not had any discussions regarding beach erosion as it does not fall within their responsibilities.

The Queensland Government has received a proposal from the Gold Coast City Council. The proposal has been referred to my colleague the Hon Andrew Powell, Minister for Environment and Heritage Protection for evaluation by hydrologists from within his department.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

I refer to page 38 of the SDS and the expense for grants and subsidies. Will the Minister detail why there has been a significant underspend in this area and provide a list of all grants which have been awarded through her department and statutory bodies under her authority since 1 July 2012 including (a) the purpose of the grant, (b) the organisation awarded with the grant, (c) the amount of money associated with the grant?

ANSWER:

I can advise the variance of $9.4 million between Tourism and Events Queensland's (TEQ's) 2012-13 Estimated Actual ($43.2 million) and the 2012-13 Budget ($52.6 million) as per page 38 of the SDS is due to:

- The deferral of $11.6 million of grant funding to 2013-14 relating to business and regional event grants. This funding has been deferred as the commitment is contracted however the event activity and related milestones relate to 2013-14;

- Offset by the recognition of $2.2 million in grants and subsidies expenses in the 2012-13 Estimated Actual that was not a part of the 2012-13 Budget relating to RTO Network Grants and Regional and Business Event Grants milestones fell in 2012-13. Revenues for these grants were recognised in previous financial years in accordance with Australian Accounting Standards.

TEQ's grants programs for 2012-13 included:
- The Regional Tourism Organisation Core Grant Program;
- The Regional Tourism Organisation Contestable Grant Program;
- The Regional Development Program;

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Will the Minister provide a breakdown of the funding allocation to Tourism and Events Queensland (SDS p.34)? Specifically will the Minister detail how this funding is divided between the tourism and events functions of the organisation?

ANSWER:

I refer the Committee to the income statement on SDS page 38.

Tourism and Events Queensland has been structured as an integrated tourism and events entity and therefore there is no separate pool of 'tourism' and 'events' funding.

Funding allocations for tourism and events are considered as a whole with funds allocated to activities that support the function of the new entity.

With reference to the Emergency Management, Fire and Rescue Levy (BP4 p.12) has the Minister or her department conducted any modelling on the impact the increased emergency levy and insurance duties will have on the tourism industry? If so, will the Minister release that modelling? Will the Minister confirm that reports that some businesses will be facing increased costs of up to $86,000 are accurate?

ANSWER:

The Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games has not conducted any modelling on the impact the increased emergency levy or insurance duties may have on the tourism industry.

The question is outside of my portfolio responsibilities, and should be directed to my colleague, the Honourable Jack Dempsey MP, Minister for Police and Community Safety.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Will the Minister provide a list of all community, sporting and other groups that are currently operating out of the Gold Coast Parklands (SDS p.2) or have operated out of the Parklands in the 2012-13 financial year? Further will she outline what assistance have been provided to these organisations to find alternative accommodation?

ANSWER:
A consultative committee has been established to facilitate the closure of Parklands and ensure major stakeholders remain informed of developments.

The Gold Coast Harness Racing Club
The future location for the Gold Coast Harness Racing Club will be determined by the Honourable Steve Dickson MP, Minister for National Parks, Recreation, Sport and Racing in consultation with Racing Queensland.

Parklands Indoor Sports Centre
Parklands Indoor Sports Centre (Sports Centre) is a private enterprise.
The Sports Centre is currently considering a range of options to develop a new centre in the Southport area.

The Gold Coast Show
The State Government is providing support for the development of a concept master plan for the relocation of the Gold Coast Show.

The Big Day Out
The Big Day Out has entered into an agreement with the State Government to hold the event on the Gold Coast for at least the next five years, at Metricon Stadium.

Lions Club of Southport kiosk
The Lions Club operates a kiosk on the Parklands site during the Big Day Out and the Gold Coast Show. The State Government is supporting the Lions Club to develop an alternative catering strategy.

Other Events and Functions

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

The pressures of drought, competition from national franchises, and the withdrawal of disposal incomes via fly-in-fly-out mining communities in towns such as Mount Isa and Cloncurry have seen too many small and family businesses close in recent years. The "Strategic Direction" in your department's Budget paper lauds small businesses as "the engine room of our economy" and cites how recent flood events "tested their endurance" (no mention of drought doing the same), yet offers no real assistance other than a 24-hour "advice portal". Can you please advise why there is no mention of, or plan to combat, the impact of FIFO or drought on small businesses in the North West, and what tangible and workable plans in your tourism strategy will ensure that retail and small businesses in rural and remote areas not only survive, but prosper?

ANSWER:

A number of challenges and opportunities face small businesses in Queensland, such as new mobile technologies, marketing through social media, the growth of online retailing, natural disasters, red tape, consumer spending changes and the impact of FIFO workers.

Given the diversity of Queensland's small businesses and the range of issues faced by businesses in various regions, the "strategic direction" of the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Game's (DTESB) budget paper, highlights the importance of a one-stop shop to provide business information and tools, or to transact with government. Also, it should be recognised that DTESB leads with specific initiatives and has a collaborative approach with other economic and regional development departments, to support Queensland small business.

For Queensland's 412,000 small businesses, the business and industry portal provides an efficient and cost effective mechanism for both business and the Queensland Government. The portal provides access to information and business tools to support business operators in running and growing their business. Forms and other transactional services from the local authorities, as well as the Australian and Queensland government are available at the one location to reduce the regulatory burden on business and make it easier for business to obtain licences and permits.

The portal is proving to be very successful with the number of people logging onto the site having trebled over the past 12 months, with a consistent customer satisfaction rate of over 80 per cent.

DTESB will continue to expand the portal, as it makes it easier for small business to engage with government and access the information and business tools that they need to operate their business. In the future with a national broadband, the tyranny of distance for businesses in western regions like Mt Isa and Cloncurry will be reduced.

DTESB undertakes other initiatives which support small business in the regional centres. These include Mentoring for Growth, Webinars, the 'Think Queensland, Buy locally' campaign, and the Queensland Small Business Week which will be held from 24 to 31 July 2013. The department is hosting an event with the local Chamber of Commerce in Mt Isa to engage with the local businesses and stimulate business networks. I acknowledge that Mt Isa faces its own hardships as an outback city. The event in Mt Isa will focus on developing local successful businesses and will include a presentation and discussion on the digital economy.

I now refer to several specific issues raised in your question – tourism, drought, and FIFO workers.

Tourism and Small Business in Rural and Remote Areas

Currently, Tourism and Events Queensland (TEQ) is partnering with the Outback Queensland Tourism Association to deliver the 'Outback Queensland Eventures' campaign. This campaign promotes the 'Aussie' experience and events in Outback Queensland. It evolved from research in 2012 which indicated that 45 per cent of Brisbane residents considered travelling to Outback Queensland however, only two per cent actually travelled. Promoting events in Western Queensland aims to give prospective travellers a reason to visit which will in turn assist small businesses in these areas.

In November, Mount Isa Chamber of Commerce and Outback Queensland Tourism Association will host the 2013 Outback Queensland Tourism Awards and Symposium in the city which will be assisted with funding from TEQ. The success of the 'Outback Queensland Eventures' campaign will be discussed at the symposium.

Drought and Small Business in the North West

The Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry has responsibility for administering information and advice on accessing assistance for drought affected areas.

I recognise that many local small businesses in primary production areas impacted by the drought are dependent on primary producers for business.

On 30 May 2013, the Premier and the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry announced an $11.2 million drought assistance package. This package acknowledges the impact that drought is having on communities in Central and North West Queensland, and while these assistance measures are directed at primary producers, the financial assistance these measures provide will inevitably flow-on to benefit the local community and small businesses which service the agricultural sector.

The Queensland Government makes a financial contribution to the Australian Government Rural Financial Counselling Service which is available to rural primary producers and regional small businesses.

FIFO and Small Business in the North West

FIFO is a controversial issue as often there is the need to recruit from outside a region to meet the skills and labour needs of resource companies. The Queensland Government, through its approval and conditions for mines, has a process to consider FIFO on a case by case basis. As part of the process of approval, the impact on the local economy is considered. The Queensland Government is now urging resource companies to instigate local buying programs where local small businesses can register their interest in tendering for supply of goods and services, to allow local businesses to share in the economic benefit.

Also, the Queensland Government's Royalties for the Regions program will invest in communities that are supporting resource projects. Again, this has positive flow-on benefits to regional small businesses.

The Queensland Government is providing support to enable small businesses in the North West to be flexible and grow in a changing business environment, with a range of measures including initiatives appropriate for drought, the FIFO workforce, economic development and growing tourism.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister please outline the role of the newly created Tourism and Events Queensland in growing the tourism industry?

ANSWER:

Tourism has been identified by the Queensland Government as one of the State's four key economic pillars. Combining the resources and expertise of Tourism Queensland and Events Queensland ensures the most coordinated and strategic approach to supporting the Government's goal of doubling annual overnight visitor expenditure from $15 billion to $30 billion by 2020.

Tourism and Events Queensland (TEQ) is new entity with a key focus on driving growth in Queensland's tourism and event industries in close partnership with industry. The newly created TEQ is overseen by a board of tourism and event experts and is responsible for promoting and marketing Queensland and its world-class destinations, building unique and appealing tourism experiences, and attracting and developing major events for the State.

Events play an important role in the tourism industry by creating exposure, promoting community pride and driving visitation during the quieter periods. During 2012-13, TEQ supported 44 major events and 97 regional events in 2012-13.

TEQ is operating in a competitive national and international environment and is looking at new and innovative ways to make the most out of emerging opportunities, to the benefit of industry and the Queensland economy as a whole.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister advise what actions the Department is undertaking to attract investment in the Queensland tourism industry?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government is committed to restoring Queensland to its rightful status of Australia's number one tourism destination. Our goal is to double overnight visitor expenditure from $15 billion to $30 billion by 2020.

To meet our vision, the government has championed the nation-leading DestinationQ initiative. This involves a unique partnership agreement between the government and the tourism industry.

We are committed to providing leadership to drive demand for tourism and attract new investment into Queensland tourism infrastructure. Investment into new and revitalised tourism product is essential to meet the demands of increasingly sophisticated global consumers.

Immediately following the election we established the Tourism Investment Attraction Unit within the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games (DTESB) and acts as a one-stop-shop for tourism investment in Queensland. DTESB works with domestic and international investors interested in investment opportunities across the state such as ecotourism and island resorts; short term accommodation; leisure attractions; and major tourism infrastructure.

A whole-of-government approach is necessary to support investment into new tourism product. This is achieved through the Tourism Investment Working Group which consists of representatives from government agencies which have an interest in tourism. The working group provides a co-ordinated approach to tourism investment in Queensland.

DTESB is building strong relationships with the investment community to promote Queensland as a tourism investment destination. On 22 May 2013 the Premier and I hosted the inaugural Queensland Tourism Investment Forum, bringing together over 100 local and international investors, to demonstrate this government is open for business.

At this event I launched the tourism investment gateway, an interactive website designed to provide information about investing in Queensland and to access the services of the department. The tourism investment gateway is located at website address: www.business.qld.gov.au/tourism-investment.

The investment forum built on the international connections established during my mission to China in July 2012. DTESB has hosted over 43 targeted investment attraction initiatives, both domestically and internationally, including hosting inbound delegations; and an outbound investment attraction mission to China and Hong Kong in April 2013.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister advise of the progress of delivering action items from the DestinationQ 2012 forum?

ANSWER:

The inaugural DestinationQ forum last year was the first time in over a decade government sat down with the tourism community and seriously discussed issues impacting on their capacity to operate and grow their businesses in Queensland. We came away from the event with a clear direction for action with a Partnership Agreement and 12 Month Key Action Plan signed between the Queensland Government and the Queensland Tourism Industry Council (QTIC).

Both the Partnership Agreement and the action plan are available on the DestinationQ website www.destq.com.au, as well as reports against the actions to be taken by government and industry. Key deliverables included:

- forming the Tourism Cabinet Committee Cabinet to specifically focus on achieving cross-agency coordination and deliver tourism growth – supported by a tourism interdepartmental working group;
- establishing the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games (DTESB) as the go-to agency for tourism government issues, and taking a lead in coordinating tourism outcomes across agencies;
- tasking the Post Forum Working Group chaired by the Director-General, DTESB to guide and ensure delivery of the 2012 DestinationQ forum's actions;
- reviewing the Nature Conservation Act 1992, and commencing development of an Ecotourism Plan for the State;
- industry, through the Queensland Tourism Industry Council, lobbying the federal government for industrial relations reform;
- cutting red tape for ecotourism operators and reducing permits required to access national parks;
- TEQ negotiating partnership agreements with the Regional Tourism Organisations (RTOs) outlining joint marketing and development activities and the new $7 million RTO grant funding model announced in the 2012-13 budget;
- enhancing the tourism investment attraction capacity of DTESB - activities which included leading and supporting 7 outbound and 14 inbound trade missions, chairing a cross-agency Tourism Investment Working Group Committee, and running Queensland's first Tourism Investment Forum;
- enacting a new temporary State Planning Policy to recognise the importance of tourism in the planning process;

- Department of State Development, Infrastructure and Planning working with a number of proponents to analyse the range of issues related to tourism development proposals;
- enabling tourism operators and existing workers who already hold a qualification at Certificate III level or higher to be able to undertake Asian language and cultural awareness skills sets relevant to their business needs;
- commencing fine-tuning of the Queensland Eco and Sustainable Tourism (QuEST) policy;
- identifying hero experiences in each of the State's destinations and leading RTOs in the development of product clusters to leverage and build upon these experiences;
- reinforcing the lead role RTOs play in developing and promoting their destination – with RTOs delivering product forums in their own regions;
- lobbying the federal government on tourism related aviation issues for the State such as air services agreements, aviation security, Trans-Tasman border processing and facilitation, regional access and the commercial challenges of route development to regional centres;
- formalising relationships between RTOs and Local Tourism Organisations (LTOs), through partnership agreements, for the delivery of activities to be undertaken in their region;
- developing a 2020 Strategic Marketing Plan in consultation with RTOs, QTIC, industry leaders and visionaries in the tourism and events sector, stakeholders, and other partners; and
- QTIC developing the Tourism Best Practice Strategy and Plan as the way forward for attracting, recruiting and retaining tourism employees within the Queensland tourism industry; across four sectors (Tourism services, Accommodation, Food and Beverage and Adventure Tourism).

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister please advise what work has been undertaken to grow and develop existing events in Queensland towards Major Event status?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government recognises the important role that major events play in achieving our goal of doubling annual overnight visitor expenditure from $15 million to $30 billion by 2020. Tourism and Events Queensland (TEQ) is committed to increasing the benefit generated by the major events in Queensland.

TEQ created a new development department to work with the State's regional events and identify those that have the potential to grow into major events. This includes providing advice and expertise to regional event organisers to maximise opportunities presented by their events.

In 2012-13 the following four events were added to the Queensland's 2013 major events calendar:

- Australian Festival of Chamber Music, Townsville;
- Birdsville Races, Outback Queensland;
- Blues on Broadbeach, Gold Coast; and
- Easterfest, Toowoomba.

These events, which were previously supported through the Events Queensland Regional Development Program, have seen significant growth and will now fall under the Major Events portfolio.

TEQ supported 44 major events in 2012-13 to contribute to Queensland's economy and promote Queensland to visitors interstate and overseas.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister advise of any action taken to assist Tourism and Small Business operators affected by natural disasters in 2013?

ANSWER:

The Queensland Government provided a number of services and programs to assist Tourism and Small Business operators affected by natural disasters in 2013 including:

- Timely support information was made available to tourism and small business operators via the Business and Industry Portal (www.business.qld.gov.au) and included:
  - An interactive checklist for recovery.
  - Information on assistance available to small business including Queensland Rural Adjustment Authority (QRAA)/National Disaster Relief and Recovery Arrangement (NDRRA) financial assistance for affected businesses.
- Social media channels were also used to promote the availability of disaster recovery assistance via the portal. The provision of online information was complemented with an after-hours phone and email service established to take direct enquiries from customers requiring assistance.
- Significant investment was provided to the NDRRA, a joint Commonwealth / State program that provided grant and loan assistance to disaster affected small businesses.
- The Mentoring for Recovery program was delivered to connect targeted businesses with a panel of voluntary mentors to help address their challenges following these disaster events.
- QRAA organised sessions were delivered on 25-27 June 2013 for businesses in the North Burnett Regional area to discuss assistance available to support their disaster recovery efforts.
- On 2 February 2013, the Australia Day II campaign was launched to promote the message Queensland was back in business, and curb cancellations on forward bookings following the Australia Day weather events.
- On 10 April 2013, the Events Flood Assistance Program, a one-off fund of $150,000, was launched to provide financial assistance to events affected as a result of the 2013 floods.

- A $120,000 marketing campaign was implemented in partnership with Bundaberg and North Burnett Tourism to help drive visitation to the region during the Easter school holiday period. The campaign generated a much needed boost for the local economy, with tourism operators and restaurants reporting an increase in visitors and expenditure. Additionally, financial support ($8,150) was provided to the Avondale Relief Roadshow, held on 11-12 May 2013.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Minister, what action is the Newman Government taking to develop open channels of communication with business?

ANSWER:

One of the most effective channels of communication with business is the Business and Industry Portal (www.business.qld.gov.au). The Portal provides a comprehensive range of information, advice and assistance for businesses at all stages of the business life cycle.

The portal delivered $155 million in time and money savings to Queensland businesses in the 2011-12 financial year. Customer satisfaction with the portal remains steady at 83 per cent indicating businesses are able to easily find what they are looking for.

The portal also links with the Australian Business Account providing not only a better way for small business to manage their government-related licences, permits and regulations, but also enabling the direct channelling of communications that are relevant to a business.

In addition, the Department of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games retains the ability to provide face to face services to customers through use of the regional office network of the Department of State Development, Infrastructure & Planning.

In May this year, the government launched the Queensland Small Business Strategy and Action Plan 2013-2015. Small business provided input in shaping the Strategy and Action Plan, in particular through the strong partnership with Chamber of Commerce and Industry Queensland.

I also have the opportunity to hear first-hand the issues facing business operators on a day-to-day basis through the Queensland Small Business Advisory Council. The Council has been established to provide input on identified small business issues, feedback on proposed small business policies, and bringing to the government's attention systemic and emerging issues which impact on small businesses.

Can the Minister please outline how the Government's Business and Industry Portal is helping Queensland small businesses?

ANSWER:

The government's Business and Industry Portal (www.business.qld.gov.au) continues to grow and deliver benefits to Queensland businesses.

I am pleased to advise that in the 2012-13 financial year an additional 151 services were added to the Portal, bringing the total number of services to 606. Some of the new services added in recent months include:

- Smart Forms to save businesses time and money when dealing with government.
- online business planning and market research kits
- tourism industry investment services, driving greater investment in Queensland that flows through to local businesses in the supply chain
- information guidance, tools, calculators and checklists with particular focus on small businesses, tourism operators, investors, mining and agriculture businesses.

With the government transitioning and moving more services online, there's no surprise that the overall customer satisfaction has increased to 84 per cent.

It's no surprise the Business and Industry Portal successfully acts as the government's One-Stop-Shop for businesses to government services.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Minister, what initiatives have been introduced to assist Small Businesses in Queensland?

ANSWER:

On 16 May 2013, I launched the Queensland Small Business Strategy and Action Plan 2013-15 to articulate the policy directions and actions the government currently has and will put in place over the next two years.

The Strategy and Action Plan aims to promote the growth of profitable, innovative and resilient small business enterprises. The document outlines 32 actions being delivered across 10 Queensland Government Agencies.

The Queensland Government will also prioritise the expansion of the Business and Industry Portal, which successfully acts as the government's One-Stop-Shop for businesses to government services.

The Mentoring for Growth suite of programs also supports growing Queensland small businesses by providing access to a panel of volunteer business mentors who can help address commercial challenges such as business growth, export strategies and investment attraction.

A total of $7.01 million has been allocated in the 2013-14 Budget to further develop and enhance business to government services to assist Queensland small businesses.

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister advise what planning action has been undertaken to assist in delivering the 2018 Commonwealth Games?

ANSWER:

The Commonwealth Games Federation has established a Coordination Commission to monitor the progress of Games planning and preparations on a six monthly basis. The first Coordination Commission meeting is proposed for November 2013.

In 2013-14, the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Corporation (GOLDOC) moves into the strategic planning phase of the Games planning process.

The focus of strategic planning by GOLDOC in 2013-14 will include:

- Input into the design brief for the Commonwealth Games Village
- Development of security and transport strategic plans
- Planning for the Glasgow 2014 Commonwealth Games flag handover ceremony
- Defining the roles, responsibilities and governance arrangements with other key delivery agencies

Financial planning is being undertaken across all key delivery agencies.

Planning for risk mitigation is also a focus across key delivery agencies.

Legislation

The Commonwealth Games Arrangements Act 2011(the Act) is in place to establish GOLDOC to plan, organise and deliver the Commonwealth Games.

The Act also protects the Games brand to maximise sponsorship revenue while allowing as much community ownership and celebration of the Games as possible.

Legacy

The government, in collaboration with the City of Gold Coast (CGC), is developing a legacy plan. The plan will outline how we can use the local, national and international profile of the Commonwealth Games to provide benefits to Queensland.

We will launch the legacy plan at the end of this year. It will be accompanied by an evaluation and monitoring framework.

Security

Queensland Police Service (QPS) is working in partnership with other State Government agencies, City of Gold Coast and Federal Government to develop coordinated security strategies for the Games.

A Strategic Security Framework has been developed.

The roles and responsibilities of partner agencies are to be formalised over the next 12 months.

Transport

Department of Transport and Main Roads (TMR) is working in partnership with other State Government agencies and CGC to develop coordinated transport strategies for the Games.

Special governance arrangements have been established to support the partnership model and ensure transport planning is aligned across agencies and with other Games planning activities.

Cross-agency technical advisory groups meet regularly to guide and coordinate transport planning activities.

Commonwealth Games Village

The Economic Development Act 2012 established the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority and Economic Development Queensland.

The government has sought private sector innovation for delivery of the Commonwealth Games Village.

Short-listed respondents for development partners were announced on 26 June and invited to submit detailed proposals for further consideration.

It is expected that the successful development partner will be announced in early 2014.

The Commonwealth Games Village master plan is progressing and will be further developed through the procurement process.

Games Venues

The Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games will be staged in a combination of newly built and enhanced existing venues, all satisfying International Sport Federation competition standards.

The works schedule will ensure new buildings and those requiring upgrades will be completed well ahead of the Games.

Planning has been completed for the Gold Coast Aquatic Centre and construction is well underway.

Initial venues planning is currently underway for many other venues through coordinated efforts of a range of Games partners.

Procurement

A process has commenced to develop a whole of games procurement framework that will assist in ensuring a consistent approach to Commonwealth Games procurement across Government.

GOLDOC is currently developing its forward procurement program and is working with Industry Development specialists and individuals experienced in supply chain development from previous Commonwealth Games, to develop and implement a Local Industry Participation Plan.

Local Industry Participation Plans are already in place for the Commonwealth Games Village development and the redevelopment of the Gold Coast Aquatic Centre.

Question on Notice

No. 20

Asked on 17 June 2013

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Can the Minister please explain the organisational structures in place to plan and deliver the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games?

ANSWER:

The governance arrangements for the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games have been established under the Commonwealth Games Arrangements Act 2011.

The leading authority for the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games is the Gold Coast Organising Committee (GOLDOC) Board. The Board is supported by the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Corporation and is responsible for planning, organising and delivering the Commonwealth Games, in conjunction with the Australian Commonwealth Games Association and the Commonwealth Games Federation.

GOLDOC works closely with the Office of Commonwealth Games Coordination (OCGC) within my Department. The OCGC manages the whole-of-government interest in the Games and ensures effective coordination across Government.

On 1 February 2013, the Economic Development Act 2012 came into effect. It established the Commonwealth Games Infrastructure Authority, a board that will work with the Minister responsible for Economic Development Queensland through the Economic Development Board to steer the delivery of the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Village and other venues.

It is not possible or necessary for all stakeholders to be a member of the organising committee. The Queensland Government convenes a range of coordination groups to ensure multi partner coordination and involvement in games planning, preparation and delivery. Representatives from the Federal Government and the Gold Coast City Council are represented in these forums.

The Gold Coast City Council has established a Commonwealth Games unit which has a strong focus on benefits for the Gold Coast. The Council owns and/or operates many of the venues that will be used for the Games and is responsible for operations and improvements in the public domain to ensure appropriate city presentation for the Games. It is a party to venues and operations planning and works with the OCGC on legacy consultation and planning.

Subject RE: Qld National Parks Tourism Opportunities Strategy

Hi John

Happy new year. Hope the break was good and you're back on deck and feel refreshed.

Thought I would touch base to see when might be best to have a meeting with your team about some of the detail in formulating a strategy regarding the national parks tourism development opportunities.

Also recalled that we briefly discussed late last year, when you and Andrew Harris and I caught up, about the current changes in motion with Stadiums Qld and your query regarding if we manage any such facilities. I have done a little investigation into this and we have managed some larger stadiums for major sporting events (e.g. Olympics) so happy to have a chat about this further with you if you thought worthwhile.

I've got a reasonably flexible diary for next week other than Wednesday.

Speak soon

Cheers

Ben

Hi John

Trust all is well in the lead up to the Christmas break. Just a follow up on our conversation a few weeks back re the State/National Parks tourism opportunities strategy.

I recall that Anne Greentree (?) was going to be putting together some information relating to the categories / opportunities and wanted to touch base and see how that was coming along and if you needed any further preliminary input from us as yet.

Happy to catch up this week if you have time, and can arrange for our Managing Director, Geoff McIntyre, to come along as well.

Burleigh Brewing Company Wins Queensland Telstra Business Award

Burleigh Brewing Company, a boutique, husband-and-wife run purveyor of fine brews, has trumped some of Queensland's biggest operators to take the title of Telstra business of the year.

The Gold Coast craft beer creator was crowned at a gala awards ceremony in Brisbane on Tuedsay night.

The brewer boasts beers such as "My Wife's Bitter" and "FIGJAM IPA" and won judges'praise for distinctive branding and visionary marketing.

"Burleigh Brewing Company has done some excellent work getting into environments with limited wholesale channels and its products have been celebrated both nationally and internationally," judges said.

The micro-brewery, which has just 19 employees, was also named small business of the year.

The company was founded in 2007 by former corporate lawyer Peta Fielding and her brewer husband Brennan Fielding.

"We wanted to create a business that adds to the heart of our region and we just happen to be doing it through one of the world's most ancient and community-oriented beverages – beer," Mrs Fielding said.

Burleigh Brewing Company created Australia's first no-carb beer and a wheat beer that was named the world's best at the 2012 World Beer Cup in the US.

Among the other winners at the Queensland Telstra Business Awards were three Sunshine Coast operators.

Event centre Bli Bli House was named start-up business of the year and electrical generator manufacturer ENIQUEST was named micro-business of the year.

Medium business of the year went to Becker Helicopters, which started at Noosa airstrip in 1995 and has grown into an 18 helicopter operation that employs 70 people.

State Development, Infrastructure and Industry Committee
Question taken on Notice

Asked on 17 July 2013

ASKED THE MINISTER FOR TOURISM, MAJOR EVENTS, SMALL BUSINESS AND THE COMMONWEALTH GAMES (MRS STUCKEY) —

Ms TRAD: Thank you, Mr Chair. Can you turn your mind to the answer to question on notice No. 1, and I appreciate that you might not be able to answer this question. In relation to the Gold Coast 2018 Commonwealth Games Corporation expenditure on contracts awarded since 1 July, there is an expenditure of $320,000 to Javelin Australia for the emblem launch.
Mrs STUCKEY: To who, sorry?
Ms TRAD: Javelin Australia.
Mrs STUCKEY: Thank you. There are quite a lot of contracts.
Ms TRAD: I understand, and that is why I prefaced my question by saying that I appreciate you might not have the detail to hand immediately. My question is: $320,000 seems like quite a lot of money for a launch. Can you please detail exactly what this money was spent on in terms of the launch?
Mrs STUCKEY: I would need to ask Mark Peters, the CEO, to the table. Might I say that it was a very well-promoted, well-organised launch that captured the spirit. It was an important announcement that we were making that day. I think the result of that is certainly one that we can all relate to. It is very Gold Coast, very vibrant. The date of 4 April marked the five-year countdown to the games. I will hand over to Mr Peters, if he is now ready?
Mr Peters: I thank the honourable member for the question. The launch was held on 4 April. It involved a number of components that were part of that clock. Some of them involved the actual production of the blow-up emblem which was a key part of the national campaign. It also involved the campaigns in getting all of the major interstate and national networks there. We had Sunrise and Channel 9 there and we had crosses by the ABC. There was a management fee that went to Javelin. There were also a number of capital items. The surfboard at Surfers Paradise, which has been hugely successful, was also part of the expenditure under that contract. With the minister's permission, I am happy to get a breakdown of that $320,000.
CHAIR: Minister, are you happy to take that question on notice?
Mrs STUCKEY: I am happy to take that question on notice if that satisfies the member.

ANSWER:

The expenditure of $320,000 for the emblem launch as undertaken by Javelin comprised of the following items:

Item	Cost
Inflatable emblem that will be re-used in future events	$78,000
Countdown clock in shape of surfboard in Surfers Paradise	$43,000
Staging of the event at the Broadwater Parklands	$65,000
Travel and appearance fees for performers and sports celebrities	$23,000
Media conference	$1,000
Agency fee	$110,000

Javelin has an office in Brisbane. All of the businesses involved in the emblem launch were based in south east Queensland with 86 per cent of them from the Gold Coast.

Dear Mr ~~Gibson~~ David

I write regarding the Parliamentary Estimates Hearing for my portfolio of Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games, scheduled for 4.45pm on Wednesday 17 July 2013.

The activities of my portfolio include undertaking commercial negotiations to, for example, encourage new airline routes to Queensland or secure significant major events for the State.

In a highly competitive market, in which airlines and event organisers may be considering proposals from various jurisdictions, it is critical that dollar amounts associated with any offers from, or contracts with, the State remain Commercial-in-Confidence. Should such figures become public, there is a risk that current and future negotiations could be severely compromised or fail, with resultant loss of opportunity and economic benefit to the State.

Should direct questions relating to Commercial-in-Confidence matters be asked during the hearing, I will seek your consideration as Chair to invoke any appropriate standing orders to allow provision of the answer in a manner that will protect commercial sensitivities and prevent release or publication of the information.

Your support in this matter would be appreciated.

Should you require further information, please contact my Chief of Staff, Mr James Martin, on 3224 2003.

Yours sincerely

Jann Stuckey

1.5 Ministers' use of ancillary materials

The committee agreed to the following:

As in previous years, some ministers may wish to use ancillary materials during the hearing. These can include things such as PowerPoint presentations shown on projector screens and display stands. The committee should consider informing the department that while it does not object in principle to the use of such materials, the following guidelines should be complied with:

- The materials should not be of a size or nature which could create safety or security issues (e.g. they impede movement within the Chamber, impede access to and from the Chamber, require power cords to be run across the floor, are difficult to move into and out of the Parliamentary precinct)
- If the materials contain or depict information, that information should also be presented to the committee in documentary or other acceptable form
- Advance notice should be given to the research director of the nature of any ancillary materials the Ministers propose to use, so that the committee can assess its compliance with the above.

3. Correspondence	On the motion of Mr Hart, seconded by Mr Mulherin, the committee resolved that inwards correspondence be accepted and outgoing correspondence be endorsed and the correspondence register be placed on Comdocs.
4. Estimates 2013	4.1 Answers to questions on notice Members confirmed receipt of answers to questions on notice. Members noted Standing Order 182(8) providing the answers to questions on notice deemed to be authorised for release by the committee and published upon the commencement of the hearing. Members noted that the answers to questions on notice were suitable for publication and Ministers had not made any requests for confidentiality. 4.2 Background material The secretariat circulated: the hearing program, organisational charts, copy of Schedule 7 (Chief Executive Officers), lists of witnesses, and the Administrative Arrangements relevant to the portfolios areas under consideration.

4.3 Public hearing procedures

In relation to public hearing procedures, the committee noted the following:

- A quorum is four members, including at least one non-government member. In order for quorum to be maintained at all times please advise the Chair if members need to leave the hearing for a period of time.
- Members participating with leave of the committee do not form part of the quorum.
- The hearing should be adjourned for any committee deliberations, which are to be held in private.
- Members may ask the Minister, Director-General or Chief Executive Officer direct questions (SO181).
- All questions taken on notice must be taken by the Minister (if asking a question on notice, please write the question on the forms provided and give to the Research Director. The RD liaises with the CLLO at the end of each session to confirm questions taken on notice).
- Any document tabled at a portfolio committee's hearing is deemed to be authorised for release by the committee unless the committee orders otherwise (SO184(3)).
- A Minister or any witness may only table a document at the committee's hearing with leave of the committee (SO184(2)).
- Members who appear by leave of the committee to ask questions are also required to seek leave to table a document.
- The Chair may, after warning, order any member whose conduct in their opinion continues to be grossly disorderly or disruptive to withdraw for a stated period (SO185 (1)).
- The Chairperson may also require a person other than a member to leave the place of meeting if behaving in an offensive or disorderly manner (SO257(2)).

4.4 Broadcasting of public hearing

The secretariat circulated updated guidelines for the broadcasting of its public hearings, as adopted by the Committee of the Legislative Assembly in September 2012.

On the motion of Mr Mulherin, seconded by Mr Young, the committee resolved to adopt the following Conditions for Broadcasters of Proceedings and Guidelines for Camera Operators for its public hearings.

4.5 Attendance of non-committee members

Members noted correspondence dated 16 July 2013 from the Member for South Brisbane, the Leader of the Opposition, and the Member for Rockhampton seeking leave to attend the committee's hearing and ask questions.

Members noted the committee's previous resolution of 22 May 2013 granting leave for non-committee members to attend and ask questions during the hearing.

Members also noted correspondence dated 16 July 2013 from the Leader of the Opposition appointing the Member for South Brisbane and the Member for Mulgrave to replace the Member for Mackay for various sessions in accordance with Standing Order 202(1).
