Luxury
Paints

The Ipswich Jets, on the 20th of January, announced Luxury Paints as major sponsors for the upcoming season. The 3 year deal will see Luxury Paints become the Ipswich Jets' naming rights and front of shirt sponsor.

General manager Vicki Baradel said Luxury Paints was delighted to be back on board with the jets, "We believe the relationship between ourselves and the iconic Ipswich club is extremely valuable to both parties as we continue to grow our respective brands." Ms Baradel said.

"Ipswich is a core area to our business and is the focus of our growth in the future," she said.

Luxury Paints is looking ahead to a strong relationship with the Ipswich Jets and the broader community of the Queensland Rugby League, as it has done with the Brisbane Roar and the A-League.

Luxury Paints has grown to become one of the largest privately owned paint companies in Australia and offers a full range of decorative, industrial, specialty and texture coatings with 17 stores throughout Queensland.

Bartercard

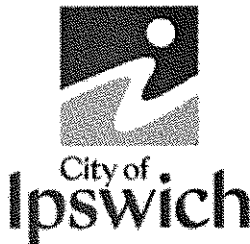

The Bartercard business model provides a platform enabling SMEs and corporate Australia to convert their idle capacity into usable goods and services. This idle capacity can include downtime within labour based and professional services industries, additional machinery capacity for manufacturers and excess, slow moving or end-of-run stock for the wholesale or retail industries.

Although the concept of barter is thousands of years old, bartering through Bartercard is the most innovative way of combining modern technology, a community of businesses, and indirect and direct marketing channels to increase your customer base, sales, profit and improve cashflow.

Ever since the inception of Bartercard into the Australian economy in 1991, the way companies across the country conduct their day-to-day business has been revolutionised. Bartercard's world-leading innovative Trade Exchange system enables over 55,000 trading members in six countries to benefit from the cashless economy of barter.
